SPAIN DEPORTS CARDINAL; MOB HUNTS FOR HIM

Catholic Pilgrims Stoned; One Dies.

BULLETIN.

MADRID, June 16 (Tuesday).—Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura y Saenz passed out of Spain into France at 5:30 a. m. today (12:30 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time).

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, June 15.—How Pedro Cardinal Segura, primate of Spain, escaped to slip out of this country in all its mysterious, to its start, end with tonight set on the country, nothing else of spectacular.

CARDINAL SEGURA.

His name is unmentioned. He was formally informed out by the national government. And he went quiet as a mouse public, sitting stiffly beside a representative of the department of public safety in a big, black police car, rushing towards France in the wake of another car rigged with rifles. Late tonight his exact whereabouts was unknown. An angry mob waited at San Sebastian to intercept the cardinal's car and the authorities have abandoned Madrid, asking for his passage through the city be delayed until after midnight. It is believed he was route to the border was sought.

Rob Tells "Death to Clergy."

The cardinal left Spain in flight of the republican initiative a month ago with its edicts of burning monasteries in all capitals. He is leaving tonight on his vacation," but with threats of violence raging in his para.

A halt was passed in front of the Pauline monastery in Guadalajara, where it spent the night "detained." The mob cried "Long live the republic" and "Death to the clergy" when he arrived there at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Although the government has given no reason for the expulsion, it is known officially that the primate's presence in Spain would menace public order. Radical elements at Toledo, ancient imperial capital and seat of the primacy, have threatened to apply the torch again in protest against the return of the prelate, whom the extremists considers an enemy of the people.

4,000 Catholics Stoned.

Believing that the republicans are now more friendly now to Catholic elements, was offered today at Navarre. A special train carrying 1,300 Catholic extremists from a gathering in honor of Don Jaime, the Bourbon pretender, ran through stoning mobs of republicans on its way to Madrid, and was finally stopped at Alsasua. Sticks and stones were thrown. Many of the pilgrims, fearing violence, leaped from the windows when the train stopped. One fell under the wheels and was decapitated. Many were wounded in one way or another. A number of priests abandoned their cassocks before they reached Madrid.

Recalled Back by Pope.

Cardinal figure, it is understood, was recalled to Spain because he was ordered to do so by Pope Pius XI. In official circles here it is said the pope showed strong disapproval of the cardinal as he did. The government called his recall because his utterances were construed as opposed to the régime, but he left on his own, it is understood, were to return to his post and stand by it, even if he had to make the last sacrifice. The Vatican considered that the republic had won its victory too easily and that if it wanted the privileges of Spain it must take the responsibility for putting him out, capping the climax of what the Vatican calls a campaign of violence against the church.

Refuses to Go.

Cardinal figure, when arrested near the frontier, said he was too sick to travel. Doctors were called in, who declared it was true that he was suffering from a minor complaint, but that after the cardinal traveling he had done in the past month he could stand 12 hours more on the way to the frontier. The cardinal then refused to budge without a written order by the government to back up the verbal "invitation" which all police were in-

PREDICTS A NEW, HIGHER LEVEL OF WELL BEING

Defends His Course in Depression.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 15.—[Special.]—President Hoover explained the economic depression to the American people and justified the measures and policies he has employed to meet it, in a speech here tonight, before an audience of 5,000 persons in attendance at the dinner of the Indiana Republican Editorial association.

He took the depression apart, listed its causes, weighed its effects; then he reassembled it again and displayed it as an object lesson from which are to be drawn preventives against similar catastrophes in the future.

Likewise he took his critics and the purveyors of political panaceas apart, pictured their patent pills as bootlegged, alien products—and didn't bother to gather up the pieces and put them together again.

He Stresses Confidence.

In his speech, his first bid for popular support for a second term, President Hoover sought to get across the message that he was confident of the present, confident of the future, confident of his administrative course.

At one point he departed from his prepared text to remark:

We are suffering more today from frozen confidence than from frozen securities.

"We have come out of each previous depression," he said, "into a period of prosperity greater than ever before. We shall do it this time."

"We shall keep this ship steady in the storm," he stated at another place. "By the activities and courage of the American people we will recover from the depression."

"Whatever the immediate difficulties may be, we know they are transitory in our lives and in the life of the nation," was another assertion. "We should have full faith and confidence in those mighty resources, those intellectual and spiritual forces, which have impelled this nation to a success never before known in the history of the world. Far from being impaired, these forces were never stronger than at this moment. Under the guidance of Divine Providence they will return to us a greater and more wholesome prosperity than we have ever known."

He'll Stick to His Guns.

He had charted out his course, he said; he had followed it thus far and would continue to follow it, because he believed it the right course for the American people. Others might advocate a course divergent from the true path of American character and tradition. Inspired by foreign social experiments, he said, they sought to "regiment the population into a bureaucracy to serve the state," and urged "that we should use force instead of coöperation in plans, and thereby direct every man as to what he may or may not do."

But so long as he had it in his power to decide, he promised, the central government should remain a coördinating force and not a dictatorship, a guide to and not a competitor with private initiative and enterprise.

Those who listened called it the most aggressive utterance the President has yet made. That his speech was politics, no one, not even his friends, disclaim.

Crowd Is Apathetic.

The only trouble was that the crowd did not applaud as it was scheduled to applaud. The President, with Mrs. Hoover and their son, Allan, got off the train late this afternoon to find the streets of Indianapolis flag draped, but the throngs that had been anxiously hoped for did not materialize.

The city that gave Al Smith an unforgettable reception in 1928 displayed curiosity and respect for Herbert Hoover, but the sort of enthusiasm that breaks out in irrepressible cheers wasn't there.

Earlier, as the President's special rolled westward through West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio, there had been watchers in farm yards and cross roads along the right of way, and big gatherings at the stations where stops were made. But Indiana, one of the three central western key states the President came out to woo, was cool, not to say apathetic.

Last fall Indiana's Democratic state ticket was victorious and Mayor Reginald Sullivan, who joined Gov. Harry G. Leslie in greeting the President today, is a Democrat.

It was not until President Hoover reached the dinner and, dressed in an ordinary business suit, stood in his place that he got a real ovation.

It was speaking to the five thousand

NAMELESS HEROES RESCUE THREE IN LAKE ACCIDENT

Three nameless heroes, who under ordinary circumstances come under the classification of hoboes, rose to the heights last evening, risked their lives in an oarless, leaky rowboat, and saved two boys and a girl who had been thrown into the lake a quarter of a mile off 16th street.

The trio saved are Robert Mayfield, 22 years old, 2228 South Kolin avenue; Frank Maxwell, 17, of 2320 South Kolin avenue, and Katherine Belchak, 19, of 3116 South Millard avenue. They were thrown into the water when Mayfield's outboard motor boat, the Remarks, capsized on its maiden trip.

On shore three hoboes, sitting inside a handmade hut, saw the accident. They jumped into an anchored rowboat, found it chained, and broke the lock on the chain. But there were no oars. Undaunted, the casuals set out, paddling with their hands. The boat leaked. They bailed it also with their hands. Eventually they dragged the three victims into the rowboat. However, their heroism was not yet ended. Six persons in the tiny craft were too many. Two of the hoboes lowered themselves into the water, swam behind the boat and pushed it to shore.

The nameless heroes departed, wet and smiling, without bothering to identify themselves.

Father Heeds Son's Letter; Kills Himself

The body of a father, a gray haired man of 60, lay unclaimed in a north side morgue last night. Investigation of the death revealed that the father had shot and killed himself after receiving a letter from his son, a college student, in which the youth had urged his parent to "take the easy way out" of his troubles.

The man who ended his life after receiving this advice from his son was R. J. Capron. The son was John Capron. These two, principals in the strange drama, remained mysterious figures although a search was made to determine their identities. The father had recently encountered financial difficulties. The son is believed to be a student at an Illinois college. That was about all police could learn last night.

A Startling Epistle.

The letter found on the body was a startling epistle. Young Capron, apparently imbued with the melancholia which sometimes seizes the young intellectual, had written dramatically and with much quotation of poetry to his father, suggesting that the elder man find "a simple method" to end it all.

For nearly two weeks, Capron carried that letter with him, for it was postmarked on June 2. The police found evidence that in the meantime the father made a desperate attempt to recoup his lost fortune by wagering on the races at Washington Park. He had only $1.85 in his pockets when he strolled into Lincoln park yesterday afternoon, sat down on a bench, put a revolver to his head and pulled the trigger.

Postmark Is Defaced.

The postmark had been scratched out with a penknife but police were able to discern "June 2. 1:30 p. m. Station A . . . . Illinois." Champaign, Ill., adjacent to the University of Illinois, has a station A and an inquiry was made there. Capron's name was not on the list of students for the year 1931. The letter read:

"Dear Dad: I am sorry I have not more time to write, but my examinations begin tomorrow morning and there remains still so much to be done in preparation. I received your letters of Saturday and Sunday just a few moments ago. Came home from the library to get them.

"I am sorry we are leaving. I am wishing for you, dear dad, hoping for you—wishing you all I can wish—thinking of you all the time. If we get a break it will be a grand thing, dad.

"Find Easy Way Out."

"If we do not, find the easy way out, dear dad. Know that I will be thinking of you—grand thoughts, dad. I will be hoping that I can be as game as my dad was. And I will always remember the while we spent alone together, too, dad. But if you must, if the breaks are not with us, do find a simple way, medicine—something. I am sure you know why I am saying it.

"These lines—I like them:

If you shall take my hand some day
Hold it a moment gently, then
Lead me into the quietude
Of ships that loiter at the quay
With cargoes of the dreams of men
Sweet scented as of sandalwood.
Then you and I shall sail away
To keep our long predestined trip
And you who waited long for me
Shall smile at my surprise and say
That had I known, I had not missed
Life's little things so bitterly.

"We will see each other again some day, dad. And we will have everything as it always was. And at all events we have been very happy together. I will keep writing you until it is time to stop. And after

FORD HOPES TO RAISE ON A FARM ALL RAW MATERIALS FOR AUTO

Detroit, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—Henry Ford has taken up the wholesale growing of cantaloupes, not, however, to compete with truck gardeners, but for raw material used in the production of automobiles.

On one of the farms near Macon, in southern Michigan, which forms a part of Ford's 3,000 acre agricultural laboratory in Lenawee county, an extraordinary amount of acreage has been devoted to planting of the canteloupe seeds. Old dirt farmers, who have sold their land to Ford and gone to work for him on a $5 eight hour a day basis, expressed surprise at the planting of so much. Now the secret is out.

"One day when Mr. Ford was on one of his numerous personal inspection trips over the fields I heard him make a remark that gave me the tip" said one farmer. "I heard him say, 'I'm going to rush this experiment through with the idea of determining whether every raw material that goes into an automobile can't be raised on a farm.'

"Take these cantaloupes, for instance. His chemists plan to get alcohol for auto paint out of the melons.

Police Squads Will Guard Gang Leader

Al Capone will be arraigned at 2 p. m. today before Federal Judge Wilkerson on two indictments. While plans were being completed yesterday to guard the gang chief in court the big question at the federal building was whether Capone will plead guilty or not guilty. The unvarying, although unofficial, report was that it would be guilty.

United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said he did not know what Capone would do, and Capt. William F. Waugh, Capone's only attorney of record since his indictments charging income tax evasion and conspiracy to violate the liquor laws, said the plea would be not guilty. However, there were many reports that the chief public enemy has resigned himself to the seemingly inevitable and will plead guilty to both charges, thereby saving himself two or three years in Leavenworth and $50,000 or so in legal fees.

Call "Guilty" Best Bet.

Not only lawyers who represent Capone hoodlums in the federal courts but federal officials declared that a plea of guilty on both the indictments is Capone's best bet.

District Attorney Johnson conferred until after 6 p. m. with his battery of assistants and internal revenue agents, an unusual occurrence when nothing more important than debating a date for trial is under consideration.

Following the conference, it was announced that First Assistant United States Attorney Victor E. La Rue will arraign Capone on the indictment charging him and 68 of his henchmen with conspiracy in a $20,000,000 a year beer business, and Dwight H. Green, income tax expert, will arraign the gangster on the tax fraud charges.

See Significance in Plan.

The attorneys and officials who expressed their confident belief that Capone will plead guilty, pointed out that the plan of arraigning him on both indictments at once is significant. Setting a date for trial is the only purpose of an arraignment, unless a defendant pleads guilty, they declared, and no date can be set for Capone's conspiracy trial until his co-defendants, or at least as many of them as the government expects to try, are apprehended.

"Why is Capone being arraigned on the booze charge when none of the other defendants—a few of them are already under commissioner's bonds—are being arraigned with him?" This question was asked by one federal official, who declared it meant a plea of guilty to both charges.

Lawyers Discuss Plea.

Attorney Waugh declared that he had not seen Capone since Friday and at that time the gang chief told him he wished to enter a plea of not guilty on both indictments. However, it was learned that the law firm of Nash and Ahern has been negotiating on a plea of guilty and there were reliable reports that still another lawyer, one who is little known in the federal courts, has entered the picture.

Mr. Johnson conferred with Acting Police Commissioner Alcock and completed plans for the same arrangement that was used during Capone's trial for contempt of court to handle the crowds at the federal building. A special police squad will be on hand, as well as postal inspectors, secret service operatives, agents of the bureau of investigation, agents of the intelligence unit, and others.

Clerks to Be Turned Away.

The corridor leading to Judge Wilkerson's courtroom will be barred, and few except court attachés, attorneys, and newspaper men will be admitted. Mr. Johnson declared that "curious government clerks" will be turned away.

Capone faces a possible maximum sentence of 32 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $80,000 on the income tax charges and two years and $10,000 on the beer conspiracy indictment. It is not unusual for persons convicted of conspiracy to get the maximum—two year—but the highest sentences of record for tax fraud is five years and a day, which Jack Guzik, Capone's business manager, received. Federal prosecutors regard that sentence as about as high as the courts will go.

Jack Heinan, proprietor of the Paddock Grill, 2507 South Wabash avenue, one of the beer dispensers indicted with Capone, surrendered yesterday and posted a $5,000 bond in the form of $1,000 treasury notes.

FAMILY BARES TRAGIC SECRET IN STARR'S LIFE

Betrayed When Child by Family Friend.

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards invited former Mayor Andrew J. Peters of Boston publicly today to appear voluntarily before the Nassau county grand jury investigating the death of Starr Faithfull. Mrs. Peters is a distant relative of the family but she denied knowing anything that would help solve the case.

Meanwhile Stanley E. Faithfull, the dead girl's stepfather, lifted the veil from a sordid intrigue of which she was the victim.

His revelations, borne out by the Nassau district attorney in an interview at Mineola, helped to explain why he and Mr. Edwards have clung so tenaciously to the theory that the 25 year old girl was murdered.

Miss Faithfull's stepfather—and his statement was corroborated by Mr. Edwards—charged that she suffered a harrowing experience at the hands of an elderly man who, in the guise of a family friend, won her confidence and abused it while she was still a child.

Broke Down Her Health.

As a result of this betrayal, undiscovered until an episode in a Manhattan hotel only five years ago laid it bare, Mr. Faithfull said Starr was left with a warped mind and impaired health.

Long and expensive medical care was necessary if she was to be restored, the father said, and in consequence he demanded that the man he held responsible reimburse him. A settlement of between $20,000 and $25,000 was made, according to Mr. Faithfull and Mr. Edwards, and this part of the story was confirmed by Charles F. Rowley, a Boston attorney, who admitted having a part in the negotiations.

Meanwhile, progress was reported in tracing the movements of Miss Faithfull from the time she left her home until her body was washed up by the tide three days later. The assistance of the New York police was asked late in the afternoon, it was reported, in rounding up two men and a woman believed to have been with Miss Faithfull the day she disappeared.

Stepfather Names Two Men.

In an interview tonight Faithfull named Jack Greenaway and Bruce Winston as two men whom he said he believed might have some knowledge of Starr's activities before her disappearance. Greenaway is an actor, the stepfather said.

"Starr planned to meet these men on Thursday afternoon, the day before she was last seen," said Faithfull. "After returning home for dinner, she departed between 9 and 10 p. m. She said she had an engagement with the men or some one she believed was a friend of theirs. She returned home at 1:30 o'clock Friday morning from a party at the Savoy Plaza. Starr left the house again late that morning."

Faithfull said that Starr told him on this occasion she was going to a beauty parlor, but he intimated a belief that she went to meet the people she had met the previous evening.

Jury Quiz Held Up.

So important did Mr. Edwards think the day's developments that he stopped plans presenting evidence tomorrow to the Nassau county grand jury in a John Doe and Richard Roe proceeding and said he would not present any additional evidence until a week hence.

"Will you summon former Mayor Peters of Boston?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "I shall not. But if he cares to appear voluntarily before the grand jury to help us in our investigation of this case, we shall be only too glad to have him do so."

While Mr. Faithfull set the figure of the settlement at $20,000 and denied that he ever had made further demands for money, Mr. Edwards asserted the sum was $25,000 and added that the individual who had protected his reputation with a cash payment some years ago, had become "alarmed" three weeks before Miss Faithfull disappeared.

Tells of Phone Call.

Mr. Edwards said:

About three weeks ago Mrs. Faithfull was questioned as to whether or not she had been talking about the wrong done the girl, and as a result of a telephone communication Mr. Faithfull went to Boston two days before the girl disappeared.

"I am told by the family that the girl was taught to snuff ether and that she, at one time, was quite an addict. In March, 1930, she was taken to Bellevue hospital after a night spent in some place in New York, beaten up and dased, and she showed, according to the family, some after effects of an ether condition."

The part of Mr. Edwards' statement bearing upon Mr. Faithfull's trip to Boston just before the girl's disappearance was supported by Mr. Dewley, the attorney who played a part in arranging the settlement.

Tells of Faithfull's Call.

Mr. Faithfull had called upon him at his office in Boston the day before Starr vanished, the lawyer said, but he did not disclose the purpose of the visit.

The attorney refused to disclose the identity of the man accused by Mr. Faithfull, adding that the accused individual always maintained his innocence but settled to avoid a scandal.

The statement made by Mr. Faithfull was startling in the extreme. He asserted that a perverted relationship existed between Starr and the accused man for several years before the family discovered it.

The man himself was described in the stepfather's preliminary statement only as well to do and prominent in the community where he lives, with children of his own.

"I have found the book that he caused Starr to read to him," Mr. Faithfull said. He picked a copy of "Studies in the Psychology of Sex," by Havelock Ellis.

How Family Found Out.

Discovery of the relationship between the girl and the older man, followed an occasion on June, 1926, when she stayed overnight at a New York hotel, the stepfather said. She returned home the next day, in a highly nervous condition and told of having been mistreated. Afterward she confided in her family.

In return for the $20,000 payment, she continued, the man demanded and received a release from all claims. Since the payment, Mr. Faithfull said, there had been no demand on the part of Starr's family for more money.

Until Starr disappeared and her body was discovered her family had believed that no one knew her story except themselves and the few friends to whom they had confided.

A discovery that Miss Faithfull was drugged before she died resulted from an analysis made by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, New York City toxicologist. He informed Mr. Edwards that he had found sufficient veronal in the liver to have induced profound sleep, although not enough to have caused death.

Inspector Harold R. King, chief of the Nassau county detectives, it was reported, has not overlooked the possibility that Miss Faithful might have taken the drug either to overcome insomnia or with suicidal intent, only to be discovered by some one who thought her dead and made a desperate effort to revive her in the ocean. It is possible also, it was said, that the person who found her believed her dead and threw her into the sea, hoping thus to conceal the place where she died.

Clew Points to Sister.

Meanwhile, the Providence, R. I., police reported an incident which may possibly concern the whereabouts of Elizabeth Tucker Faithfull on the week-end when her sister was being sought. The sister of the dead girl has been reluctant to discuss where she was.

The police declared that last Monday, the very day when Miss Faithfull's body was found, a young woman appeared at a hotel and borrowed $5 from a clerk, signing the name Sylvia Faithfull to an I. O. U. and giving the address of the St. Luke's place apartment. Tucker sometimes uses the name Sylvia.

TOLL OF DEAD IN FRENCH WRECK MOUNTS TO 470

65 Bodies Recovered by Boats and Planes.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. NAZAIRE, France, June 15.—The death toll of 250, announced last night, as a result of the disaster to the little excursion steamer St. Philibert, which capsized off point St. Gildas during a storm, carrying all but eight of its passengers to death, was raised to 470 or more today when a checkup of the passengers began.

The authorities on Noirmoutier island, where the picnickers from Nantes had been spending a happy day on the beaches, said that fewer persons stayed behind on the island on account of seasickness and fear of heavy seas than were reported here last night.

Fear 50 Children Victims.

The exact number of victims is still uncertain, due partly to the fact that many small children went on the excursion. Those under 4 years of age did not need tickets for the trip, and were not included in the count. The number known to have embarked from Noirmoutier appears set now at 420. The authorities tonight estimated that probably fifty or more children must be added to the estimated number of victims, bringing the total dead to 470 or more.

Under a sunny sky, with the sea running placidly in contrast to last night's lowering skies and monstrous waves, tugboats and airplanes today scoured the waters which swallowed the St. Philibert and recovered 65 bodies, all but 10 of which were women. Tonight these bodies lie in sheds along the shore awaiting identification while boats of all descriptions continue their search for further victims. Airplanes this afternoon reported sighting bodies five miles to seaward of the scene of the disaster.

Families Throng Shore.

Relatives and friends of the victims, who were members of more than 300 families in Nantes and who were all members of a workers' cooperative society, thronged the shore, hopeful that their parents or brothers and sisters might be among the uncertain list of those who did not return on the ill-fated St. Philibert, but remained on the island.

Sadly and impatiently they awaited each report and scanned the bodies which the rescue boats brought in at intervals to lay in rows on the coal piled wharves opposite the Loire harbor. Sad scenes were enacted by sobbing men, frantic women, and children, dazed by the half belief that their whole families have been wiped out.

Identification Is Difficult.

Identification is proving difficult since some of the recovered bodies were stripped of clothing by the violent waves, and others were maimed by contact with floating timbers from the wrecked ship. The body of one of the directors of the excursion and those of his wife and daughter have been identified, but others will require closer scrutiny.

Flags hung at half staff throughout Nantes and St. Nazaire today as the whole region mourned. Tomorrow Nantes will receive its dead from St. Nazaire. French army trucks draped in black and silver will take the bodies. They will lie in the historic Chateau Nantes for identification by relatives. The city plans a mass funeral Wednesday.

The ill fated ship will be raised tomorrow and among other things a report that the boilers exploded will be investigated.

Capt. Francois Ollive, skipper of the St. Philibert, an old sea salt who retired years ago but was still sent out on occasional excursions, went down with his ship in traditional fashion. His wife and children are said to be numbered among the victims also.

Much criticism has arisen here of the old seaman and of the owners of the St. Philibert. The excursion boat was said to have had only one seven foot lifeboat with a capacity of four persons. Officials of the company point out that circumstances did not permit the use of lifeboats or life preservers. Many critics also insist the vessel was overloaded. The officials say the capacity of the boat was 500 persons.

Survivors Tell Stories.

The stories of the eight survivors who are recovering from exposure in a hospital here all agree that the St. Philbert sank without a warning to the passengers that disaster was imminent.

One particular hero of the tragedy was Charles Jean Pinguet, 24 year old expert swimmer, who dove and brought his wife to the surface, then carried her nearly half a mile through the tremendous seas until he became exhausted and was compelled to let her go. He was rescued.

Daniel Duvez, from his bed, said:

"We had barely left the island of Noirmoutier when the storm broke. Most of the passengers took refuge in the cabins to escape the seas which broke continuously over the deck. Few remained on deck, and they were clinging to the sheltered side.

"Suddenly, shortly after 6:30 o'clock, the vessel trembled under the shock of a great wave, which threw me into the sea. Within a few seconds the ship sank and all the passengers in the cabins must surely have drowned, because they had no time to open the doors. I clung to a lifeboat for three hours before a tug picked me up."

The keeper of the signal station at Point St. Gildas said he was watching the St. Philbert through his glass when it heeled over and went down.

"She had just rounded a difficult passage where the water is only five fathoms deep when I saw her list to the starboard," he said. "She tossed back and forth twice and then sank."

Capt. Jean Bruyere of the pilot boat St. George, which went to the rescue, said:

"Neither I nor my crew saw the St. Philbert sink. It must have gone down very swiftly We put boats at the place the St. Philbert sank and one of them picked up seven survivors who were clinging to pieces of the steamer's boats."

Reveals Cost of Star's Wardrobe

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—Details of the expenditures of a musical comedy star for silk stockings, hats, gowns, makeup and other dressing room expenses, shoes, publicity and other items were revealed today in the trial of an action brought by Isaac E. Okun, an accountant and income tax expert, against Louise Groody in the Supreme court for $3,500. This sum is allegedly due for preparing Miss Groody's income tax return for 1927. The jury before Justice Ingraham returned a verdict in favor of Miss Groody.

The jury was shown, by Miss Groody's return, that her gross income was $81,145 that year. Deductions totaled $23,289 and the federal tax paid on the rest, $57,855, was $6,346. The state tax was $1,017.

David J. Rosen, attorney for Okun, put the list of deductions claimed by Miss Groody before the jury. Stockings were listed at $607 for 1927, hats at $690, gowns at $2,730, two theater maids cost $3,780; a secretary, $1,950; makeup and dressing room expenses, $1,185, and theatrical tips totaled $1,455 in the return filed by Okun for Miss Groody.

Other items listed among the deductions were: Shoes, $571; traveling expenses, $2,790; sundry expenses, $1,375; publicity and press agents, $2,275, and gratuities and gifts, $1,312.

JUDGE ASKS FOR POLICE TO GUARD LOVE SUIT TRIAL

Prompted by reports that threats of violence had been made against principals in a case on trial before him, Superior Judge Marcus Kavanagh yesterday asked that two policemen be assigned to duty in his courtroom in the county building during the remainder of the hearing. The case is that of Miss Lillian McQuillan, 35 years old, 1922 North Central Park avenue, who is seeking damages of $50,000 for breach of promise against William H. Evans, president of the Evans Flexible Reamer company, 3513 Lincoln avenue.

Selection of a jury was completed yesterday and opening arguments will be given to the jury this morning. Through Attorney Clarence Kamerann, Miss McQuillan alleges that Evans has proposed marriage four times since 1919. She accepted each time, she says, but their marriage never became a reality. Evans is represented by Attorney Victor Frohlich.

TEACHERS TELL BOARD TO PAY UP OR GET OUT

"Fiddled Like Nero" Is Flung at Trustees.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

James A. Meade, president of the [illegible] union, told the members of the board of education to their faces yesterday either to get the money for the unpaid teachers' salaries or resign. He also told the board that the teachers did not want participation certificates in a tax anticipation warrant trust in lieu of cash as compensation.

Charles B. Stillman, representing the joint conference of teachers and principals, said that "this preliminar device would do the teaching force more harm than good." Miss B. Clohesy, representing the elementary teachers, said that the banks and merchants will not take the certificates and the teachers do not want them.

Puts It Up to Board.

"Let me tell you what the teachers are thinking," said Mr. Meade in protesting against scrip in place of cash for $3,776,000 overdue salaries to the teachers. "They believe the board has the responsibility of getting the money."

"The teachers could see this situation coming a year ago, and if the board in that time has offered a constructive plan to meet the situation I haven't heard of it.

"You know the story of Nero fiddling while Rome burned. The legislature met nearly six months ago, but the board has presented no program to it. The teachers do not understand why the board has not sat day and night to provide the salaries earned.

"The crisis is almost as pressing as pestilence or war, yet the board has not made any substantial progress towards a solution of its financial difficulties.

Either Pay or Get Out.

"It has been two months since we had any pay, and it now looks like it may be six months more before we are given checks. We want no paper in place of money, unless it is a check on a bank which has money to meet the check. The teachers feel that if this board cannot solve the situation that some one else should be given an opportunity to solve it."

Miss Clohesy said that the teachers have made a canvass of the downtown and outlying banks relative to the certificate payment plan.

"The banks tell us they cannot take the tax anticipation warrants which is to form the trust against which the certificates will be issued," said Miss Clohesy. "They will take neither the warrants nor the certificates. Our canvass of the merchants shows that few or none will refuse the certificates.

"Acceptance of them by us is just postponing the evil day and driving the teachers to the loan sharks as their only market."

Won't Touch Certificates.

Mr. Stillman said that not one banker or merchant his organization has approached is willing to "touch the certificates." He went on:

"They will not cash them; they will not take them as collateral, and they are unacceptable to the teachers. The whole situation is impossible. The most encouraging comment on the certificates we were able to get was from an Englewood banker. He said that if it accepted them he would discount them from 5 to 50 per cent."

On the other side of the fence spoke James J. Stein for the engineers and janitors. He said:

"The teachers have missed one pay day, but we haven't been paid since April 17. The janitors and janitresses have been standing off the butcher, grocer, and landlord for some time. They cannot knock on the bank door.

"Some of the janitors are unable to get car fare to ride to work. To be sure we do not want certificates, but we will take them. We can take them to the grocer and landlord and convince him that we have pay coming.

"I'll take any kind of a certificate the board offers, because many of us are at the end of the string. President Myers has shown unusual sympathy and interest in the employes."

Myers Proposes Plan.

The scrip plan, embodied in a resolution by President Myers, was presented to the board. It proposes that $5,206,000 in tax anticipation warrants be deposited in a trust and certificates, without interest, be issued against that trust to all unpaid employes who desire them.

In opposition to this proposal, Trustee Brandenburg urged the plan of Trustee Caldwell. He would issue "certificates of indebtedness" to a trustee, who in turn would hand out participation certificates to unpaid employes. Then he would have the trustee obtain a judgment against the school board for the indebtedness.

Both plans were deferred until tomorrow when the board will meet again.

Ask Help of State.

The only plan brought forward by the board, after discussing the matter for more than a week, was the adoption of a resolution asking the state to borrow money on tax anticipation warrants, and with that cash pay the Chicago schools its share of the state distributive school fund, estimated at $3,200,000.

The same representatives of the teachers who protested against the certificates, and others, called upon Mayor Cermak yesterday. They wanted him to help them get their pay.

"The city administration has no jurisdiction over the board of education and can do nothing to aid the teachers in getting their pay," replied the mayor. "If the trustees had manhood they would have resigned. Then perhaps something might be accomplished."

"Can we tell the members of our organizations that you are against cutting salaries," the mayor was asked. "Yes, I'm against salary cuts," replied the mayor.

Just then one of the teachers inquired how she would get money for her vacation.

"My dear," said Miss Clohesy, "you will have to stay at home."

BARGE IN RIVER TIES UP STREET TRAFFIC

Rigging Is Too Tall

The tug Martin G. Hausler Jr., owned by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, churned its way down the river yesterday morning towing a barge with a small derrick which was just a trifle too tall to clear the bridges. The few excess inches on the barge rig tied up bridge traffic from the south bend of the river to its mouth.

The tug emitted blasts from its whistle, demanding that the bridges be raised, as it approached the Wells, LaSalle, Clark, Dearborn, and State street spans, and the Wabash and Michigan avenue bridges, which were passed at about 11 o'clock.

Thousands of motorists and pedestrians were held up by the barge which was being taken by the tug to the ship yard of the company at the mouth of the river.

CHICAGO BOARD BOND BILLS MOVE FAILS IN HOUSE

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—An attempt to obtain consent of the house to introduce bills allowing the Chicago board of education to issue $50,000,000 in bonds for building purposes failed late today. A score of members protested at suspension of the rules for the introduction.

Sol P. Roderick [Rep., Chicago] sponsored the bills and announced that he would introduce them in the regular order tomorrow.

"They will not increase taxes," Roderick asserted in behalf of the bills. "They will start a building program if passed; they will do much to relieve the depression in Chicago. They will promote work."

School Trustee Joseph P. Savage and School Attorney Frank Righeimer of Chicago brought the bills to Springfield. They conferred with Gov. Emmerson during the afternoon, leaving copies of the bills with him. It is understood the governor did not commit himself.

James H. Rand III. Shot in Arm While Aboard Yacht

New York, June 15—[Special.]—James H. Rand III, 18 years old, son of the president of Remington Rand, Inc., was shot in the arm tonight by one of three men who boarded his father's yacht in the shipyard of the Marine Basin company at Gravesend bay. Detectives, after a watchman had telephoned, found Rand in the cabin attempting to staunch the flow of blood. He told the police he had been shot without any attempt to rob him. He insisted that he had never seen the men before.

PLAN OF COUNTY TO MEET $550,000 PAY ROLL UPSET

The plan of the county board to meeting the next bimonthly pay roll of $550,000, due June 23, out of funds which were expected to be available within a few days, was upset yesterday when County Treasurer McDonough announced that the money must be expended for other purposes.

The money consists of $404,369 to be turned over by fee officers; $200,000 in undistributed 1928 commissions, and $324,084 from the state's distributive blind pension fund. McDonough informed the board that this money must be used in paying interest due on 1929 tax anticipation warrants.

About $1,000,000 in 1929 taxes and penalties were paid at the treasurer's office yesterday, the last day before the second penalty of 1 per cent against delinquent taxes is assessed. Total collections now amount to about $159,000,000, it was said, leaving approximately $117,000,000 still unpaid.

Uses Pitcher in Quarrel; Held on Murder Charge

Anton Filus, 1086 North Paulina street, was charged with murder by the Racine avenue police yesterday after the death of John Dzudzik. Filus, who is 57 years old, confessed having struck Dzudzik with a water pitcher when the latter taunted Filus about his age.

PASS TAX BILLS OR TAKE BLAME, CERMAK WORD TO ASSEMBLY

Mayor Cermak told a radio audience last night that the state legislature must pass the legislation he has sponsored at Springfield to reorganize the county tax machinery as demanded by the bankers or assume responsibility for failure of the local governments to sell their tax anticipation warrants.

Speaking of the tax bills, he said: "I regret that the legislature has not seen fit to act favorably upon them. The situation has been made entirely clear to the members of the legislature and the responsibility for the failure to pass the bills rests upon them."

The mayor declared that he is doing every thing possible to trim expenditures at the city hall, but warned that more drastic economies may be forthcoming if the 1931 tax warrants are not sold.

Mr. Cermak spoke over the National Broadcasting company through station WENR. His speech was the first of a series on municipal affairs, which will be delivered each Monday and Wednesday at 6:15 by city officials. City Sealer Grein and Acting Fire Commissioner Maloney will speak tomorrow evening.

PAYOFF AT GRAVE OF ARTIST ENDS; FUND EXHAUSTED

Relatives Bickering Over Thiel Mourning.

There will be no more mercenary mourning at the grave of Louis A. Thiel, the eccentric fresco painter whose body lies in the Montrose cemetery.

Attorney Milton A. Brown, administrator of the painter's estate, served notice yesterday that the scores of Thiel's relatives and friends, who gathered at the grave last June 17 to pay tribute to the dead for a consideration of $20 apiece, might as well spare themselves the trouble of another trip on the anniversary of the cemetery payoff tomorrow.

"There will be no cash there," said Mr. Brown. "Although he had calculated to maintain the payments semi-annually for at least twenty years after his death, I am afraid the fund is already nearly exhausted."

Hopps Blasted Early.

The lawyer sighed a little sadly.

"Incurable sentimentalist that he was, Thiel would have been grieved to learn that his hopes were blasted so quickly," Mr. Brown observed. "I tried to show him how impracticable the scheme was, but he wouldn't listen."

But sadder still, if the fresco painter only knew it, is the fact that the fund, although amounting to a mere $2,500, has already bred dissension, according to Mr. Brown.

"It was the general idea that Thiel was just a foolish old gentleman seeking to perpetuate his own memory by the freakish stunt of bringing relatives and friends to his grave twice a year," said Mr. Brown. "I happen to know that he had a far more generous thought."

Wanted Peace in Family.

"Once in discussing the fund with me," the lawyer explained, "he mentioned the ill feeling among his relatives and expressed the hope that if they gathered twice a year for a family reunion at his grave and there reflected on eternity and the loyalty of one dead, they might gradually forget their differences.

"It was his notion that the peace of the cemetery might be communicated to them. He was shrewd enough to know some incentive would be necessary to bring them—hence the money bequests."

But now, according to the lawyer, the relatives are embroiled with the trustees of the fund and are threatening suit for an accounting on the contention that the painter's wishes have been ignored.

The fund, established in November, 1928, fifteen months before Thiel's death, was in the form of a contract between the painter and five members of his lodge of the order of Odd Fellows, Arno T. Roner, Rudolph C. Lange, Francis Swedish, Adolph Gretz and Charles Lange. Nine relatives and eleven friends were named beneficiaries, with the provision that each was to receive an amount varying from $5 to $20 for visiting his grave between 2 and 3 p. m. on June 17, his birthday anniversary, and again on Nov. 17.

Pay $20 for Visit.

"It is further provided," the stipulation read, "that each member or members of the lodge who may visit the grave on any of the days mentioned, for the purpose of carrying out the terms of the agreement, is or are to receive $20 each for each visit."

Mr. Roner, having drawn up the contract and believing he knew the painter's true intention, construed the stipulation as applying to every lodge member visiting the grave. Hence he sold the bonds for the $1,600 the market offered and was well stocked with $20 bills when June 17 came.

In paying all comers from the lodge, Mr. Roner erred, the relatives contend. The stipulation plainly applied only to lodge members who came to the grave as agents of the fund and the $20 payments were in effect a fee for their trouble, say the relatives.

"I have absolutely nothing more to do with it," said Mr. Roner, and there the matter rests.

Banker at Bedside of Girl After Air Journey

BANDAGE SLIPS, BLIND PREACHER PEEPS AT WORLD

Most Thrilling Moment, He Tells Doctor.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 15.—(AP)—"The most thrilling moment of my life," was the description given today by the Rev. Robert Fraser, 35 year old evangelist, born blind, in telling of his first view of sunlight.

Twenty days ago Mr. Fraser submitted to an operation on his left eye. Tomorrow Dr. George H. Moore of this city will remove the evangelist's right eye as a second step in restoring sight to the left.

Bandage Gives Way.

Mr. Fraser's first view of the world resulted from an accidental slipping of the bandage that has swathed his head since the operation.

"I was riding in an automobile with Dr. Moore yesterday when I felt the bandage giving way," said Mr. Fraser. "Probably I should have told the doctor, but I could not resist the impulse to take a peek at the world.

"I tilted my head and peered through a slit in the bandage. For several seconds, before I had to lower my gaze, I saw the light.

"It was more brilliant than I had imagined. It was the most thrilling moment of my life."

Must Learn Colors.

"Further than that I cannot describe it," he said, "for I have never had a similar sensation with which to compare it. My wife told me that what I saw was the sunlight and that it was yellow in color.

"That is something I will have to learn, the variations and shades of light which are called colors. I am growing impatient to see skyscrapers and railroad trains."

The Rev. Mr. Fraser, who has been engaged in preaching here, was boyishly enthusiastic when Dr. Moore expressed satisfaction with his progress. It was explained that actual sight would depend on the fitting of glass lenses to the eye which has been made sensitve to light. The natural lenses of the eye were removed in the operation.

WOMAN FACES DEATH QUIZ.

Police last night took Mrs. Mary Dausch, 55 years old, 555 Melrose street, a former midwife, into custody for questioning regarding the death of Mrs. Selma Walsh, 24 years old, 854 Waveland avenue, who died June 2.

1 POLISHING JOB BRINGS JOY AND GRIEF TO 2 COPS

The gloom of the old Des Plaines street police station has been lighted for many years by the sunny smile of Jesse Wigren, a West Madison street casual. Jesse, an industrious soul, earned a modest dollar now and then by polishing the automobiles of the captain, the sergeants, and patrolmen.

Yesterday, Jesse solicited a job of Policeman William Palmer. He offered to polish and wax Palmer's automobile for a small sum. Palmer accepted and Jesse put in three hours on the vehicle, parked with others in front of the station.

"The polishing's done," he informed Palmer in the station. "For another half, I'll take a couple of dents out of the fender."

"O. K.," said Palmer. Jesse put in another hour. His ambition stimulated, he bargained with Palmer to touch up the rust spots with paint.

"Come out and look at it," he requested Palmer, when the last job was done. Palmer came out and took one look.

"You haven't even touched it!" he yelped.

The famous Wigren smile was missed last night. He was keeping away from the wrathful Palmer. But the absence of Wigren's smile was more than balanced by the beaming face of Policeman James Fleming, who rode home in an automobile that fairly sparkled and shone.

ARKANSAS RISES OUT OF MISERIES OF LAST WINTER

Prosperity Is Returning to State.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GOV. HARVEY PARNELL. [U. P. Photo.]

If some of the big cities up north are still in a state of depression next winter, Arkansas probably will ship up some trainloads of food and chip in liberally to the Red Cross.

"We are out of the woods," said Gov. Harvey Parnell, who was forced last winter to call on the nation for help.

"The most marvelous comeback among all the states," says Dudley Dodson, secretary of the state chamber of commerce.

Figures to Prove It.

And they have figures to prove it. Bank lines in the state and are just coming in for six thousand cars in the peach orchards of the southwest. Fifty banks reorganized, and the bankers planning to have handle of the farmers' money next fall. A class A rating in the silk worm trade. A rise from rags to riches. It is a sort of Cinderella story of economic terms.

Gov. Parnell, in white linen suit, sitting in the cool heights of his office in Capitol hill, talked about his state today. He has just returned from the Finish Lick conference of governors.

"We were all agreed," he said, "that economic issues will be in the lead in 1932. Gov. Roosevelt and Gov. Emmerson seemed worried about what would happen next winter. Our problems are as nothing compared with theirs.

State Is Like a Garden.

"This is an agricultural state, more than 85 per cent. It was the drought that brought on our trouble last year, as a culmination of several bad years. But now that is gone. The state is like a garden. The prospect for good crops is the best that it has been in years.

"The lesson of last winter has been good. It has taught our farmers to diversify their crops. Everywhere you look in the country now the palings of fresh garden fences show what is going on. The people are not only raising their own food, but they are canning and putting it away for the winter. There is more corn for the stock, less cotton, perhaps. I believe the government will get back its crop loans 100 per cent. Many of the farmers have already paid out of crops of early vegetables. They are working hard and have taken the lesson home."

With industrial labor such a small factor in this state, the money that was poured into the state last winter from federal treasury and Red Cross, coupled with good rainfall this spring, explains the transformation in conditions. The Red Cross spent more than 3 million here, which went to local merchants. The state's share of the federal seed loan fund was $9,300,000. The veterans' bonus brought in 6 millions.

State Loan Not Used Up.

The state loan fund of $1,500,000 was only partly used. The landowners formed seventy local credit associations and increased their stock six times through the St. Louis federal loan bank. The small farmers got just enough to tide them over. These were crop mortgage loans, so nobody loses but Uncle Sam if the crops prove a failure.

"If the farmer planted oats and the mules ate up the oats where is the government going to get its money back there?" asked one banker.

Away from the delta, where everything is cotton plantations, Arkansas has something of a western atmosphere, a breezy resilliance, a shirt sleeve efficiency, and they are all neighbors. The cities have skyscrapers and traffic lights, but the hotel customers still sit in sidewalk chairs and tell stories. The dry goods clerk loafing in the entrance calls out to the girl in a pink dress across the street.

Merchants Clearing Stocks.

The merchants are slashing prices to get rid of their old high priced goods, but they are keeping their heads above water. Taxes are heavy and there are lots of them, with a big delinquent tax list. Tax on cigarets is five cents a package which goes to finance the building program at the University of Arkansas and the agricultural schools. The automobile and gasoline taxes are so high that many cars are in the garages and travelers wait until they cross the border into some other state before filling their tanks.

Where Mississippi has failed to build highways, Arkansas has built so many that she is burdened with a hundred million in bonds, and has taken over the county roads bonds for many millions more. Gov. Parnell has been keeping the state expenses within the revenues, but the highway expenditures have stirred up a political row which will be threshed out in the elections next year. The anti-administration Democrats have been demanding an audit of the highway funds, and the governor says he is willing to have an audit.

Question of Who'll Do It.

But the question is who shall do the work. The governor does not care to give his political enemies a chance to go on a fishing expedition in the state roads. So nothing has been done about that.

Likewise nothing has been done about the reorganization program which the governor advised and which an outside firm of experts advised after reporting on the overlapping and patchwork system of state departments. Real auditing and investigating does not seem any more popular in legislative halls than it is in Tennessee, where the cry of "Send the Yankee auditors back north," recently prevailed.

It is pleasant to travel in Arkansas now and contrast the far flung gardens of the fields with the burned desert of last season. The chemistry unlocking rain has done its work. The mesas are green with growing rice. The wheat and oats are under harvest. The hillsides are fair with laden fruit trees. The lowlands are rich in cotton and vegetables. The woods where the starved mules used to wander until they died are thick green jungles now and the herds are sleek and fat. The condition of growing crops is above the last 10 year average everywhere.

Bids to Rival Reno.

A current topic of interest is the new divorce bill under which Arkansas may rival Nevada in easy divorces. The new bill cuts residence requirements to ninety days and will become effective soon unless the church forces succeed in blocking it through court action.

The hotels and the legal profession are looking forward to quite a revenue in this way and divorce colonies in Hot Springs and Sulphur Springs are already starting. They have not been able to start raining in the state yet, but that is not impossible if such a thing as this divorce law could be gotten through the legislature. This is one of the three states which has a law against the teaching of the theory of evolution and the churches are supposed to have strong grip on things political. They may be slipping. The politicians look forward with equanimity to the selection of Gov. Roosevelt as the Democratic standard bearer, but they will demand a dry platform.

As an aftermath of the failure of Caldwell & Co. in Tennessee last fall the trial of A. B. Banks, once a leading financial figure in Arkansas, is to start this month. There were 43 banks once in the "Banks" group, which was affiliated with Caldwell. The trial is on the charge of receiving deposits in an insolvent bank. The state has had to write off a loss of a million dollars as a result of the bank failures, although no political banking hookup was shown here.

GETS DIVORCE

MRS. ALYCE TRAFTON.

The troubles of George Trafton, professional football player, and Mrs. Alyce Trafton, 1225 Mautene court, were brought to a close yesterday by Judge Rudolph Desort when Trafton agreed to the granting of a divorce to his wife.

He had sued her on grounds of cruelty, charging that she broke a ginger ale bottle over his head and otherwise mistreated him. Yesterday, following a conference in the courtroom, Mrs. Trafton filed a cross-bill, also charging cruelty, on which she produced her witnesses and received a decree. On one occasion Trafton broke her nose, she charged.

Trafton was ordered to pay her a settlement of $1,000 and $300 attorney's fees.

BOOZE WAR FLARE SEEN IN MYSTERY SHOTS FROM AUTO

Another shooting mystery which police believe to mark a flareup of a booze war between the "Spike" O'Donnell and Frank McErlane beer gangs on the south side was disclosed early this morning when detectives found an abandoned sedan with two windows blasted by gunfire in front of 3256 South Bishop street.

An hour later the owner of the car, Joseph Cainski, 25 years old, 5203 South Hermitage avenue, alleged bodyguard for O'Donnell, and George Larson, 24, of 7255 South Washtenaw avenue, an O'Donnell henchman, were arrested in the latter's machine at 31st street and Ashland avenue. In the car were found two empty shotgun shells. They added to the mystery, for two empty shells and a double barreled shotgun were found in the abandoned sedan.

Gresham police expressed their belief that the disturbance signalized a reopening of the south side feud and traced it to the machine gunning on May 26 of the home of Robert Marvis at 7754 Crandon avenue. Marvis is a brother-in-law of McErlane, and reports were that McErlane was in his home at the time and the target for the gunners. A day later the home of Walter Zwolinski, 1503 West Garfield boulevard, was machine gunned. He is a follower of O'Donnell.

Detectives asserted the windows in Cainski's machine were shot out from the inside, indicating that shots were fired at pursuers.

U. S. FUTURE IS BRIGHT, HOOVER TELLS EDITORS

gatherer in Manufacturers hall, and through them to the nation, that he was at his best, his arm chopping off each scoring hit, as he assailed those who have sought to capitalize the depression for their own political or financial gain.

He spoke of the enhancement of the country's domestic fears and apprehensions because of social disturbances abroad.

"These fears and apprehensions," he said, "are unnecessarily increased by that minority of people who would make political capital out of the depression through magnifying our unemployment and losses.

"Other small groups in the business world make their contribution to distress by raids on our markets with purpose to profit from depreciation of securities and commodities. Both groups are within the law; they are equally condemned by our public and business opinion; they are by no means helpful to the nation."

He Lights on Faddists.

"Some timid people, black with despair," he said at another point, "have lost faith in our American system. They demand abrupt and positive change. Others have seized upon the opportunities of discontent to agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands. Others have indomitable confidence that by some legerdemain we can legislate ourselves out of a world-wide depression. Such views are as accurate as the belief we can exorcise a Caribbean hurricane by statutory law."

Coming to the tariff, he tuned his message to carry overseas and reminded foreign nations that "they look upon their own agriculture as a way of life and as vital to their national security, and have long since adopted protective tariffs against the special farm products of the United States."

Sarcastic About Panaceas.

Then he discussed the "plan" that many citizens are demanding be produced for the future development of the United States.

"I presume," was his caustic comment "the plan idea is an infection from the slogan of the '5 year plan' through which Russia is struggling to redeem herself from the 10 years of starvation and misery."

Mr. Hoover had personal experience with that starvation and misery, for it was he who administered the Russian relief following the war.

But if they wanted a "plan," he had one—not a European plan, either, but an American plan—meals included, a plan, not by government, but by private enterprise, to prepare for the expected increase of 20,000,000 in population within the next 20 years.

"We not only plan to provide for all the new generation, but we shall, by scientific research and invention, lift the standard of living and security of life to the whole people," he said. "We plan to secure a greater diffusion of wealth, a decrease in poverty, and a great reduction in crime.

Help People Help Selves.

"And this plan will be carried out if we just keep on giving the American people a chance. Its impulsive force is in the character and spirit of our people. They have already done a better job for 120,000,000 people than any other nation in all history."

As for those who demanded a "plan" by which the government should assume all the leadership, all the initiative, all the burden, he said:

"Shall we abandon the philosophy and creed of our people for 150 years by turning to a creed foreign to our people? Shall we establish a dole from the federal treasury?"

Governmental agencies such as the federal reserve system, the farm board and farm loan systems, he pointed out, have assured the country from panic and "its hurricane of bankruptcy."

Says Wages Stay Up.

He had insisted that wages be maintained. Government building had been pushed. The tariff had been kept at a protective level. Economy in government had been stressed. Immigration had been curtailed.

His fist thumped the table as he shot back at those who would have him amend his policies according to their ideas:

"We propose to go forward with these major activities and policies. We will not be diverted from them."

Throughout he played on this note of confidence:

"We are economically more self-contained than any other great nation . . . surplus money does not remain idle for long. . . . The underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves."

The federal reserve system, he declared, must be amended in such a way that it will help prevent the diversion of capital from creative enterprise into wasteful speculation. The banking system must be strengthened.

At Marion Today.

Tomorrow will carry the President and his party into the second of the three midwestern states he is to visit, when he goes to Marion, O., to dedicate the tomb of former President Harding.

As today was given to feeling a careful pathway in the state where the Ku Klux Klan once flourished, so tomorrow will see the President invading the ghost haunted precincts of Harry Daugherty and the Anti-Saloon league. He has been promised, however, the help of former President Coolidge, who also will be there, and who also will speak.

On Wednesday the President will speak at Springfield, Ill., at the dedication of the remodeled Lincoln tomb.

Coolidge on Way to Share in Harding Memorial

Northampton, Mass., June 15.—[Special.]—Calvin Coolidge, accompanied by his wife and his secretary, Harry Ross, left this evening for Marion, O., where the former President will participate in the dedication of the Harding memorial. They motored to Springfield, where they boarded a special car.

TEXT OF HOOVER'S FIRST CAMPAIGN SPEECH OF 1932 PRESIDENTIAL FIGHT

Indianapolis, Ind., June 15.—(AP)—Following is the text of President Hoover's address tonight:

"The business depression is the dominant subject before the country and the world today. Its blight stretches from all quarters of the globe to every business place and every cottage door in our land. I propose to discuss it and the policies of the government in respect to it.

"Depressions are not new experiences, though none has hitherto been so widespread. We have passed through no less than fifteen major depressions in the last century. We have learned something as the result of each of these experiences. From this one we shall gain stiffening and economic discipline, a greater knowledge upon which we must build a better safeguarded system. We have come out of each previous depression into a period of prosperity greater than ever before. We shall do so this time.

Better Off Than Other Lands.

"As we look beyond the horizons of our own troubles and consider the events in other lands, we know that the main causes of the extreme violence and the long continuance of this depression came not from within but from outside the United States. Had our wild speculation; our stock promotion with its infinite losses and hardship to innocent people; our loose and extravagant business methods; and our unprecedented drought, been our only disasters we would have recovered months ago.

"A large part of the forces which have swept our shores from abroad are the malign inheritances in Europe of the great war—its huge taxes, its mounting armament, its political and social instability, its disruption of economic life by the new boundaries. Without the war we would have no such depression. Upon these war origins are superimposed the over-rapid expansion of production and collapse in price of many foreign raw materials.

"The demonetization of silver in certain countries and a score of more remote causes have all contributed to dislocation. Some particular calamity has happened to nearly every country in the world, and the difficulties of each have intensified the unemployment and financial difficulties of all the others.

"As either the cause or the effect, we have witnessed armed revolutions within the last two years in a score of nations, not to mention disturbed political life in many others. Political instability has affected three-fourths of the population of the world.

SELF-CONTAINED LAND

America Can Support Self Without Other Aid

"I do not at all minimize the economic interdependence of the world, but, despite this, the potential and redeeming strength of the United States in the face of this situation is that we are economically more self-contained than any other great nation. This degree of independence gives assurance that with the passing of the temporary dislocations and shocks we can and will make a large measure of recovery, irrespective of the rest of the world. We did so with even worse foreign conditions in 1921.

"We can roughly indicate this high degree of self-containment. Our average annual production of movable goods before the depression was about fifty billion dollars. We exported yearly about five billions, or 10 per cent. The world disruption has temporarily reduced our exports to about three and one-half billions. In other words, the shrinkage of foreign trade by one and one-half billions amounts to only 2 or 3 per cent of our total productivity. Yet as a result of all the adverse forces our production has been reduced by, roughly, ten or twelve billions.

"This sharp contrast between a national shrinkage of, say, twelve billion dollars and a loss of $1,500,000,000 from export trade is an indication of the disarrangement of our own internal production and consumption entirely apart from that resulting from decreased sales abroad.

Fear Among Business Men.

"Some of this enlarged dislocation is also due to the foreign effects upon prices of commodities and securities. Moreover, the repeated shocks from political disturbance and revolution in foreign countries stimulate fear and hesitation among our business men. These fears and apprehensions are unnecessarily increased by that minority of people who would make political capital out of the depression through magnifying our unemployment and losses.

"Other small groups in the business world make their contribution to distress by raids on our markets with purpose to profit from depreciation of securities and commodities. Both groups are within the law; they are equally condemned by our public and business opinion; they are by no means helpful to the nation.

"Fear and apprehension, whether their origins are domestic or foreign, are very real, tangible economic forces. Fear of loss of a job or uncertainty as to the future has caused millions of our people unnecessarily to reduce their purchases of goods, thereby decreasing our production and employment. These uncertainties lead our bankers and business men to extreme caution, and in consequence a mania for liquidation has reduced our stocks of goods and our credits far below any necessity. All these apprehensions and actions check enterprise and lessen our national activities.

"The Hole of the Doughnut."

"With no desire to minimize the realities of suffering or the stern task of recovery, we must appraise the other side of this picture. If we proceed with sanity we must not look only at the empty hole in the middle of the doughnut.

"We must bear in mind at all times our marvelous resources in land, mines, mills, man power, brain power, and courage. Over 95 per cent of our families have either an income or a breadwinner employed. Our people are working harder and are resolutely engaged, individually and collectively, in overhauling and improving their methods and services.

"That is the fundamental method of repair to the wreckage from our boom of two years ago; it is the remedy to the impacts from abroad. It takes time, but it is going on. Although fear has resulted in unnecessary reduction in spending, yet these very reductions are piling up savings in our savings banks until today they are the largest in our history. Surplus money does not remain idle for long.

"Ultimately it is the most insistent promoter of enterprise and of optimism. Consumption of retail goods in many lines is proceeding at a higher rate than last year. The harvest prospects indicate recovery from the drought and increased employment in handling the crop. Revolutions in many countries have spent themselves, and stability is on the ascendancy.

RECOVERY HAS BEGUN

Battle Must Be Fought, but on a Thousand Fronts

"The underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves. For the first time in history the federal government has taken an extensive and positive part in mitigating the effects of depression and expediting recovery. I have conceived that if we would preserve our democracy this leadership must take the part not of attempted dictatorship but of organizing coöperation in the constructive forces of the community and of stimulating every element of initiative and self-reliance in the country. There is no sudden stroke of either governmental or private action which can dissolve these world difficulties; patient, constructive action in a multitude of directions is the strategy of success. This battle is upon a thousand fronts.

"I shall not detain you by long exposition of these very extensive activities of our government, for they are already well known. We have assured the country from panic and its hurricane of bankruptcy by coördinated action between the treasury, the federal reserve system, the banks, the farm loan, and the farm board system. We have steadily urged the maintenance of wages and salaries, preserving American standards of living, not alone for its contribution to consumption of goods but with the far greater purpose of maintaining social good will through avoiding industrial conflict with its suffering and social disorder.

Co-operation in Business.

"We are maintaining organized cooperation with industry systematically to distribute the available work so as to give income to as many families as possible.

"We have reversed the traditional policy in depressions of reducing expenditures upon construction work. We are maintaining a steady expansion of ultimately needed construction work in coöperation with the states, municipalities, and industries.

"Over two billions of dollars is being expended, and today a million men are being given direct and indirect employment through these enlarge activities.

Help Given Twenty-One States.

"We have sustained the people in twenty-one states who faced dire disaster from the drought. We are giving aid and support to the farmers in marketing their crops, by which they have realized hundreds of millions more in prices than the farmers of any other country. Through the tariff we are saving our farmers and workmen from being overwhelmed with goods from foreign countries where, ever since our tariff was revised, wages and prices have been reduced to much lower levels than before.

"We are holding down taxation by exclusion of every possible governmental expenditure not absolutely essential or needed in increase of employment or assistance to the farmers. We are rigidly excluding immigration until our own people are employed. The departures and deportations today actually exceed arrivals.

"We are maintaining and will maintain systematic voluntary organizations. To aid employment and care for distress. There are a score of other directions in which coöperation is organized and stimulation given. We propose to go forward with these major activities and policies. We will not be diverted from them.

Courage Will Win Out.

"By these and other measures which we shall develop as the occasion shall require we shall keep this ship steady in the storm. We will prevent any unnecessary distress in the United States, and by the activities and courage of the American people we will recover from the depression.

"I would be remiss if I did not pay tribute to the business, industrial, labor, and agricultural leaders for their remarkable spirit of coöperation. Their action is magnificent proof of the fundamental progress of American institutions, of our growth in social and economic understanding, of our sense of responsibility, and of human brotherhood.

Praise Given to Labor.

"Leaders of industry have coöperated in an extraordinary degree to maintain employment and sustain our standards of living. There have been exceptions, but they represent a small per cent of the whole. Labor has cooperated in prevention of conflict in giving greater effort and consequently in reducing unit costs. We have had freedom from strikes, lockouts, and disorder unequaled even in prosperous times. We have made permanent gains in national solidarity.

"Our people can take justifiable pride that their united efforts have greatly reduced unemployment which would have otherwise been our fate; it is heavy but proportionally it is less than one-half that of other industrial countries. Great as have been our difficulties no man can contrast them with our experiences in previous great depressions or with the condition of other important industrial countries without a glow of pride in our American system and a confidence in its future.

NO LEGISLATIVE NOSTRUM

Cure-Alls Have No Place in Service of Government.

"While we are fostering the slow but positive processes of the healing of our economic wounds, our citizens are necessarily filled with anxiety, and in their anxiety there is the natural demand for more and more drastic action by the federal government. Many of their suggestions are sound and helpful. Every suggestion which comes within the proper authority and province of the executive is given most earnest consideration.

"We are, of course, confronted with scores of theoretical panaceas, which, however well intended, would inevitably delay recovery. Some timid people, black with despair, have lost faith in our American system. They demand abrupt and positive change. Others have seized upon the opportunities of discontent to agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands.

Cannot Stop a Hurricane.

"Others have indomitable confidence that by some legerdemain we can legislate ourselves out of a world-wide depression. Such views are as accurate as the belief we can exorcise a Caribbean hurricane by statutory law.

"For instance, nothing can be gained in recovery of employment by detouring capital away from industry and commerce into the treasury of the United States, either by taxes or loans, on the assumption that the government can create more employment by use of these funds than can industry and commerce itself.

"While I am a strong advocate of expansion of useful public works in hard times, and we have trebled our federal expenditure in aid of unemployment, yet there are limitations upon the application of this principle. Not only must we refrain from robbing industry and commerce of its capital, and thereby increasing unemployment, but such works require long engineering and legal interludes before they produce actual employment. Above all, schemes of public works which have no reproductive value would result in sheer waste. The remedy to economic depression is not waste, but the creation and distribution of wealth.

Opposes a Treasury Dole.

"It has been urged that the federal government should abandon its system of employment agencies and should appropriate large sums to subsidize their establishment in other hands. I have refused to accept such schemes, as they would in many places endow political organizations with the gigantic patronage of workmen's jobs. That would bring about the most vicious tyranny ever set up in the United States. We have instead expanded our federal government agencies which are on nonpolitical basis. They are of far greater service to labor.

"We have had one proposal after another which amounts to a dole from the federal treasury. The largest is that of unemployment insurance. I have long advocated such insurance as an additional measure of safety against rainy days, but only through private enterprise or through coöperation of industry and labor itself. The moment the government enters into this field it invariably degenerates into a dole.

"For nothing can withstand the political pressures which carry governments over this dangerous border. The net results of governmental doles are to lower wages toward the bare subsistence level and to endow the slacker. It imposes the injustice of huge burdens upon farmers and other callings which receive no benefits. I am proud that so representative an organization as the American Federation of Labor has refused to approve such schemes.

DEFENSE OF THE TARIFF

Objections by Other Lands Should Not Bear Weight Here

"There have been some complaints from foreign countries over the revision of our tariff and it is proposed that we can expedite recovery by another revision. Nothing would more prolong the depression than a session of congress devoted to this purpose. There are no doubt inequities and inequalities in some of our tariff rates; that is inherent in any congressional revision. But we have for the first time effective machinery in motion through a tariff commission with authority for any necessary rectification. And that machinery is functioning.

"An analysis indicates that the large majority of these foreign complaints are directed against added protection we have given to agriculture. I believe that some of these countries do not realize the profound hardship which they themselves—with no malevolent purpose—have imposed on the American farmer. Improved machinery, the development of refrigeration, and cheapening of sea transportation have created for them great resources from their virgin lands and cheaper labor.

Foodstuffs of People Abroad.

"As a result, these countries have taken profitable export markets from the American farmer. There have been complaints from older nations who import a portion of their food products and export another portion. Yet these nations look upon their own agriculture as a way of life and as vital to their national security, and have long since adopted protective tariffs against the special farm products of the United States.

"We do not reproach them, for we, too, look upon a healthy agriculture as indispensable to the nation. The growth of our industrial population will ultimately absorb the production of our farmers, but our agriculture was attuned to the export business and is of necessity passing a prolonged crisis in its shift to a domestic basis.

"Our tariff had proved so low that our farmers were being crowded even from the domestic market in many products which by use as diversification they can substitute to take up the slack in export business. From that condition we have given them protection, and we stand upon it.

Duties of the Tariff Commission.

"In this connection I noted with interest that the International Chamber of Commerce in its recent meeting in Washington in effect recommended to the world the adoption of this method of the American tariff, although it was not referred to by name. Our visitors found the American tariff act unique in the field of tariff legislation, as it defines the principle of our tariff by law. That is the difference in cost of production at home and abroad.

"They found in our new tariff commission the creation of a tribunal open to every interested party empowered and ready to deal with any variations from this principle. They found a tariff without discriminations among nations. They recommended universal adoption of similar principles. Indeed, such a course would greatly modify tariffs in general. It would promote the commerce of the world by removing discriminations, preferences and uncertainties.

DUTY TO OURSELVES

Must Work at Home to Be of Benefit to the Others

"But it is not my purpose upon this occasion to discuss the relations of our many economic problems to the problems of other nations. I am not unmindful of our responsibilities or our vital interest in their welfare.

"The very first service to them must be to place our own house in order; to restore our own domestic prosperity. It is from increases in our reservoir of economic strength that has and must come our contribution to the development and recovery of the world. From our prosperity comes our demand for their goods and raw materials. A prosperous United States is the beginning of a prosperous world.

"With industry as well as agriculture we are concerned not merely in the immediate problems of the depression. From the experience of this depression will come not only a greatly sobered and more efficient economic system than we possessed two years ago, but a greater knowledge of its weaknesses as well as a greater intelligence in correcting them. When the time comes that we can look at this depression objectively it will be our duty searchingly to examine every phase of it.

Federal Reserve System Duties.

"We can already observe some directions to which endeavor must be pointed. For instance, it is obvious that the federal reserve system was inadequate to prevent a large diversion of capital and bank deposits from commercial and industrial business into wasteful speculation and stock promotion. It is obvious our banking system must be organized to give greater protection to depositors against failures.

"It is equally obvious that we must determine whether the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions. It is obvious that our taxes upon capital gains viciously promote the booms and just as viciously intensify depressions.

"In order to avoid taxes, real estate and stocks are withheld from the market in times of rising prices, and for the same reason large quantities are dumped on the market in times of depression. The experiences of this depression indeed demand that the nation carefully and deliberately reconsider the whole national and local problem of the incidence of taxation.

"The undue proportion of taxes which falls upon farmers, home owners, and all real property holders as compared to other forms of wealth and income demands real relief. There are far wider questions of our social and economic life which this experience will illuminate. We shall know much more of the method of still further advance toward stability, security, and wider diffusion of the benefits of our economic system.

DEMAND FOR A 'PLAN'

Proposal Seems in Reply to Action of Russian Bolsheviks

"We have many citizens insisting that we produce an advance 'plan' for the future development of the United States. They demand that we produce it right now. I presume the 'plan' idea is an infection from the slogan of the '5 year plan' through which Russia is struggling to redeem herself from the 10 years of starvation and misery. I am able to propose an American plan to you.

"We plan to take care of 20,000,000 increase in population in the next 20 years. We plan to build for them 4,000,000 new and better homes, thousands of new and still more beautiful city buildings, thousands of factories; to increase the capacity of our railways; to add thousands of miles of highways and waterways; to install 25,000,000 electrical horsepower; to grow 20 per cent more farm products. We plan to provide new parks, schools, colleges, and churches for this 20,000,000 people. We plan more leisure for men and women and better opportunities for its enjoyment.

"We not only plan to provide for all the new generation, but we shall, by scientific research and invention, lift the standard of living and security of life to the whole people. We plan to secure a greater diffusion of wealth, a decrease in poverty, and a great reduction in crime. And this plan will be carried out if we just keep on giving the American people a chance. Its impulsive force is in the character and spirit of our people. They have already done a better job for 120,000,000 people than any other nation in all history.

Wide Differences on Program.

"Some groups believe this plan can only be carried out by a fundamental, a revolutionary change of method. Other groups believe that any system must be the outgrowth of the character of our race, a natural outgrowth of our traditions; that we have established certain ideals over 150 years upon which we must build rather than destroy.

"If we analyze the ideas which have been put forward for handling our great national plan, they fall into two groups. The first is whether we shall go on with our American system, which holds that the major purpose of a state is to protect the people and to give them equality of opportunity, that the basis of all happiness is in development of the individual, that the sum of progress can only be gauged by the progress of the individual, that we should steadily build up coöperation among the people themselves to these ends.

"The other idea is that we shall directly or indirectly regiment the population into a bureaucracy to serve the state, that we should use force instead of coöperation in place of, thereby direct every man as to what he may or may not do.

Cannot Forget the Past.

"These ideas present themselves in practical questions which we have to meet. Shall we abandon the principles and creed of our people for 150 years by turning to a creed foreign to our people? Shall we establish a dole from the federal treasury? Shall we undertake federal ownership and operation of public utilities instead of the rigorous regulation of them to prevent imposition? Shall we protect our people from the lower standards of living of foreign countries? Shall the government, except in temporary national emergencies, enter upon business processes in competition with its citizens? Shall we regiment our people by an extension of the arm of government into a multitude of activities?

"The future welfare of our country, so dear to you and to me for ourselves and our children, depends upon the answer given.

"Our immediate and paramount task as a people is to rout the forces of economic disruption and pessimism that have swept upon us. The enduring duty of government in these times is by use of its agencies and its influence to strengthen our economic institutions; by inspiring coöperation in the community to sustain good will and to keep our country free of disorder and conflict; by coöperation with the people to assure that no deserving shall not suffer; and by the conduct of government to strengthen the foundations of a better and stronger national life. These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with this, the greatest crisis the world has ever known. I shall adhere to them.

WORST NOW IS OVER

Confidence—the Main Need of Nation at Present Time

"If, as many believe, we have passed the worst of this storm, future months will not be difficult. If we shall be called upon to endure more of this period, we must gird ourselves to steadfast effort, to fail at no point where humanity calls or American ideals are in jeopardy.

"Our transcendent momentary need is a much larger degree of confidence among our business agencies and that they shall extend this confidence in more than words. If our people will go forth with the confidence and enterprise which our country justifies many of the mists of this depression will fade away.

"In conclusion, whatever the immediate difficulties may be, we know they are transitory in our lives and in the life of the nation. We should have full faith and confidence in this mighty resources, those intellectual and spiritual forces, which have impelled this nation to a success never before known in the history of the world. Far from being impaired, these forces were never stronger than at this moment. Under the guidance of Divine Providence they will return to us a greater and more wholesome prosperity than we have ever known."

FINDS MANNERS BOTH AN ASSET AND A LIABILITY

Henry B. Hanson, 26 years old, arrived in Oak Park some months ago, joined a church, made friends, and started passing bad checks. Nine merchants complained against him, but so charming was his manner that eight asked the judge for leniency. He was sent to the Bridewell to serve out a $200 fine.

Lieut. Harry Wilson of the Oak Park police decided that such urbanity could come only from long experience. He investigated. Yesterday, when Hanson left the Bridewell, he found the lieutenant waiting with an extradition warrant.

Pennsylvania officers will arrive today to take the prisoner back to State College, Pa., where it is charged that he capitalized the spirit of camaraderie which he had engendered among students at Penn State college to the extent of giving them worthless checks for several thousand dollars. He also had served two years in the reformatory at Pendleton, Ind., Lieut. Wilson learned.

HOOVER STRIVES TO REDUCE ARMS AS ASSET IN 1932

Willing to Cut Debts to Win Europe Over.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—The circumstances under which the Hoover administration invisages the cancellation of the war debts owed the United States in return for a reduction of armament by Europe were revealed today in a well informed quarter.

The President is deeply, one might say emotionately, interested in the subject of world disarmament, which means European disarmament, for the United States possesses no land forces to speak of and Mr. Hoover has said that nothing can propose to cut naval armaments below that we are not willing to see them lower.

Sees Political Advantages.

It is asserted in Mr. Hoover in European disarmament that he has given much thought to ways and means of putting it upon the nations across the Atlantic. This notion is said to have been developing in the mind of the President for several months, one of his associates being confident that Mr. Hoover entertains visions of playing a rôle in world disarmament that would insure his reelection next year by a grateful nation disarming arms.

Evidently since the meeting of the international chamber of commerce in Washington a few weeks ago has the idea of using a forceful hand in European disarmament been gaining currency in the thoughts of the President. It is understood that he was somewhat piqued by the cavalier treatment by the foreign delegates to the international chamber, and by European dignitaries, of his address of welcome to the body, in which he said that the diversion to peace purposes of the five billions of dollars expended annually by the powers on armaments would go far toward the economic rehabilitation of the world.

Wants to Show Europe.

The view prevailing in Europe was that the President has prescribed disarmament as a cure for world ills in order to avoid discussion of the question of scaling down the war debts which subject the European delegates proceeded to preach at length to the American government.

At last Mr. Hoover's dander began to rise. He conceived the idea of demonstrating to Europe in no unmistakable manner that his remarks to the international chamber were packed full of meaning—the meaning being that unless Europe proceeds to disarm it cannot expect the United States to reopen the war debt settlements.

It is said to have been the object of dispatching Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson upon a tour of European capitals which he is to make this summer. Mr. Stimson is to reconnoiter the possibilities of success of the disarmament conference which the league of nations has called to meet Feb. 2 next.

The Hoover administration still adheres to the pronouncement of the Harding and Coolidge administrations that the war debts are not related to German reparations.

It is not doubted, however, that if reparations should be revised downward, Great Britain and France, each of which is now receiving from Germany in reparations more than it is paying the United States, will ask for a readjustment of war debts by America.

Whether the debtors receive a hearing by Washington on that plea will depend, according to the present attitude of the Hoover administration, on whether they have agreed and proceeded to disarm. If they have not, the reply of Washington will be to inquire how they can plead incapacity to pay when they are expending huge sums on vast armaments.

The Hoover policy is to make disarmament the touchstone of the good faith of the debtors in pleading incapacity to pay. Some opponents of reduction of the debts already are criticizing this policy, contending that it is tantamount to a proposal to purchase the disarmament of Europe at the expense of American taxpayers.

Others, no less opposed to debt reduction are inclined to view the Hoover policy with a degree of toleration. They are convinced that with a militant Russia in the picture the other European nations will never consent to disarm or even to reduce disarmament appreciably.

COURT ASKED TO O. K. SALE OF POST IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., June 15.—(AP)—The trustees of the Washington Post today asked court permission to sell the newspaper to David Lawrence, president of the Consolidated Press and publisher of the United States Daily, for $3,000,000.

At the same time, Geoffrey Konta, New York attorney, announced he would submit an offer by William Randolph Hearst, the publisher.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins deferred action, continuing a hearing on the petition for directors for disposing of the paper by the trustees.

It had been reported Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean might object to the sale. The paper was willed ultimately to the three minor McLean children. Legal guardians of the children, however, reported to the court that the sale for $3,000,000 was acceptable.

HEAD OF WOMEN LAWYERS HOPES FOR JURY BILL

Miss Mary G. Kelly, president of the Women's Bar Association of Illinois, announced last night that her organization still is hopeful that the general assembly will pass the McVicker bill to legalize the service of women as jurors.

"The bill was defeated in the house by only one vote last Friday," said Miss Kelly, "and we believe there is a chance that a reconsideration, which will be called for by Representative Carl Jobst of Peoria tomorrow, will result in a victory."

Illinois had a women's juror's bill, passed at the last session of the legislature, which was thrown out by the courts on the ground that the legislators, in adding a referendum clause, were granting unconstitutional powers to voters. The referendum last fall resulted in approval of women jurors.

KEEP YOUR FINE-CAR STANDARDS . . .
REDUCE YOUR MOTORING COSTS . . .
DRIVE THE OAKLAND EIGHT

an outstanding General Motors value . . .

Before you invest in anything, you naturally want to examine it and test the value. If that's true of a house or a new coat, how much more essential it is in a motor car, which must perform to your satisfaction!

Many people who feel just that way have recently tested the new Oakland. We have asked them to judge it regardless of the moderate price—to be as critical as though price were no consideration. Their comments will interest you . . .

"I wanted a powerful, fast, quiet car," said one man. "So I called on Oakland to accelerate in traffic—climb steep grades from a slow start—prove itself on open highways. As it did those things I listened to the motor. Never knew a car to do more brilliant work with less effort.

"I also demanded easy, quiet gear-shifting. I dislike noisy transmissions. Well, say, I don't believe even a beginner could make any disturbance with this Syncro-Mesh mechanism!"

Another motorist said: "I was pretty hard-boiled on riding ease and comfort. I drove the Oakland over back roads and railroad tracks. It felt like an expensive car!" (Four hydraulic shock absorbers, and rubber cushioning at 41 points in the chassis.) "When I drive the car in the rain or on a warm day, I find it surprisingly comfortable." (Oakland's fine Fisher body is insulated against heat, cold, dampness and noise.)

A woman driver said: "I don't know much about engines and gears, but I think you can judge a car pretty well by its appearance—especially inside. So when I found the seats were upholstered in real mohair that meant a lot!" (Smart whipcord in other closed models—fine leathers in the open cars.) "Then I examined the finish just as I would in a new home—and I knew I'd be proud to have guests ride with me. I'm sure I never expected to buy such a fine-looking automobile as Oakland for any such price."

What are your standards—your tests of car value? Have you found a car that meets them at a price that fits into a moderate motoring budget? That is the point we make about Oakland—not that it surpasses expensive automobiles, but that it offers so much fine-car quality at such a moderate price.

FEDERAL DEFICIT LIKELY TO TOTAL UNDER ESTIMATE

Expenditures Less than Expected.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Treasury officials said today that the government deficit at the end of the current year probably will not be as large as was first anticipated. While officials declined to give out any definite figures, it was said that it now appeared that the estimated deficit of 950 millions was a little too high. It is now hoped, officials said, to hold the deficit for the 1931 fiscal year to below 900 millions.

Up to a few weeks ago it was generally estimated that the deficit representing the excess of government expenditures during the 1931 fiscal year over receipts would amount to a billion dollars. Only a week ago the White House estimated the deficit at approximately 950 million dollars.

The exact deficit, officials said, will be determined by the amount department heads expend during the next two weeks and by tax receipts. At the present time, according to these officials, the daily treasury statement indicates that cabinet members will hold their 1931 fiscal year expenditures somewhat below the figures which they expected to reach a few weeks ago.

Estimate Tax Receipts.

Treasury officials believe that the June income tax receipts due today will amount to about 290 millions. The first quarter income tax receipts in March were 328 millions.

For the fiscal year including June 12 expenditures were $3,970,092,500 and receipts $2,876,397,000, with a deficit of $1,093,695,400. This deficit will be reduced on June 30 by the extent to which the heavy quarterly income tax payments and other receipts exceed the government expenditures over the next fifteen days. Total expenditures for the 1931 fiscal year were estimated by President Hoover a few days ago at four billion three hundred and thirty-five million dollars.

The large transactions of the treasury today included the receipt of proceeds from the 3½ per cent bond issue, amounting to 823 million dollars, anticipated income and corporation tax receipts of 290 million dollars, and payments on the foreign debts amounting to $91,573,024 in interest and $19,962,525 in principal.

Outgoing payments included $90,000,000 in interest on the public debt and 589 millions in cash and 3½ per cent bond exchanges for retirement of that amount in maturing certificates of indebtedness.

Expenditures Under Appropriations.

Millions of dollars appropriated for expenditure in 1931 has been retained in the treasury, largely due to the lowered cost of living ushered in with the economic depression. While adverse business conditions were cutting down treasury receipts, the lowered costs of materials used by the government have helped in a small way to offset the diminished tax returns.

Savings reflected in lower living costs have helped to swell the totals saved by the President's economy program, although these savings are in no way due to White House economy efforts.

The army, for instance, will turn back several millions voted for rations and for purchasing forage at a time when costs were higher than at present. The corps of engineers has been able to let contracts at figures well below those anticipated when the river and harbor appropriation was voted. In one instance, bids were asked on two dredges which normally would have cost $1,250,000. The contract for the two dredges was let for $850,000.

Construction Costs Down.

Construction costs have run something like 10 per cent less. These savings, however, do no go back to the treasury, as they can be expended on other authorized projects.

Both the army and navy have been able to let construction contracts for new buildings at figures less than anticipated when apropriations were asked. The navy will turn back more than a million saved through lowered fuel oil costs. Virtually every department of the government has been able to cut down its cash withdrawals because of its ability to purchase needed materials at a rate less than anticipated when apropriation bills were passed.

DRINK A FOAMING LIQUID FROM PAILS; SUSPECT IT IS BEER

"Rushing the can" has been revived on the near west side, police from the Des Plaines street station discovered last night when they raided a thirst parlor at 1424 West Madison street. They found fourteen patrons blowing the suds off pails of beer. The city chemist is to analyze the beer today to see if it has alcohol in it. James Champas was arrested as the keeper.

Another speakeasy at 126 South Canal street resulted in the arrest of Herbert Green and six patrons.

The two raids were made without search warrants. Yesterday Judge Freeman L. Fairbank discharged 116 prisoners arrested in similar raids Saturday night because police had no warrants.

"I have instructed my men to keep on making arrests wherever they see violations," Capt. Richard P. Gill, commander of the district, said, "regardless of search warrants. We're going to try to make it so hot for these fellows that they will leave the district."

GRAND JURY HEAD OFFERS CLEWS IN THREE BOMBINGS

Frank O'Dowd, foreman of the June grand jury, conferred yesterday with Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury relative to the three recent bombings in Oak Park and Austin. Foreman O'Dowd said he had been given secret information concerning the bombings and he wanted Lounsbury to make a further investigation.

Sergt. Michael Ahern of the prosecutor's staff was assigned to interview persons designated by Mr. O'Dowd because Mr. Lounsbury was busy with another investigation.

California Grid Star, Only 20, in Race for Mayor

Santa Monica, Cal., June 15.—[Special.]—Marshall Duffield, 20, graduate of University of Southern California and that school's football captain and quarter back last autumn, has been advanced as a candidate for mayor of this city of 35,000 persons. Young Duffield is backed by a group of wealthy citizens who oppose reelection of Mayor Herman Michel to a third term.

"I realize it is starting with a high aim," says Duffield, who recently took the examinations for a Rhodes scholarship, "but why not?"

DEDICATE NEW PEORIA RIVER RAIL TERMINAL

Gulf to Lakes Waterway One Link Nearer.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Peoria, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—The link to gulf waterway came a little closer to completion today. In a ceremony putting Peoria dedicated its new $900,000 river and rail terminal and turned it over to the government's inland waterways corporation. As the first fleet of barges tied up at the wharf and began unloading a cargo from St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans.

The celebration, in which Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley was headliner, drew delegations from cities and villages up and down the valley and was attended by state notables. More than 1,500 went to a luncheon in the terminal warehouse. A long list of speakers spoke upon the arrival of a new era in which the waterway will place the Mississippi valley on the seacoast and let the economic load placed on it by intercontinent by the Panama canal.

Make Peoria Seaport.

Secretary Hurley said the opening of the new service links Peoria with New Orleans and Pittsburgh and the Twin Cities, Kansas City, early next year, and Chicago, early in 1933, through the completion of the Illinois waterway, he said, will be added, giving transportation between the great lakes and the Gulf of Mexico and more than 3,000 miles of trunk lines.

With the unloading of today's cargo and the whistle of the tug boats around the bend and under the bridge, leaders declared Peoria becomes a seaport in the heart of the corn belt.

At the close of the luncheon the Inland Waterways corporation took over the terminal for operation as one of the city of Peoria. For every car of freight interchanged locally the city will receive 15 cents. Peoria expects to develop into the barge distributing center for the Chicago metropolitan district.

Barges Greeted by Thousands.

The arrival of the first fleet of the government barges was right on the hour for the opening of the dedicatory ceremonies. Half the populace of Peoria seemed to be gathered at the river front, while factories set up a din with their whistles.

At the tables inside the warehouse, next guests of the state officials, members of the legislature, and the board of commissioners of the port of New Orleans, headed by W. L. Richeson, its president.

Mayor Homer L. Ahrends made an address of welcome, and Congressman William E. Hull served as toastmaster.

It was announced that as soon as barge was discharged the barges would proceed to Peru to take on a load of cement for Memphis. The terminal is at the water's edge, with railroad tracks running by its side. Nine wharfs, it was declared, have made arrangements to utilize the facilities.

Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling represented the state government in the speech making.

WIFE IS AWARDED $100,000 AND $850 MONTH ALIMONY

Alimony of $850 a month and $100,000 was awarded yesterday by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort to Mrs. Gladys E. Patterson of Hornell, N. Y., when he granted a divorce from Harry W. Patterson, road contractor. The divorce was granted on Mrs. Patterson's cross bill. Both bills charged desertion, and the husband did not contest the action yesterday. They were married Feb. 8, 1915, and separated on Jan. 1, 1929.

In addition to the alimony and cash Mrs. Patterson was awarded lawyers' fees of $1,000 and the custody of her daughters, Helen, 13 years old, and Dorothy, 10.

ASSESSORS KICK BACK AT CRITIC OF PROCEDURE

John E. Conroy, secretary of the board of assessors, yesterday denied that the board is imperiling the 1930 tax assessment by restricting hearings on tax complaints. John O. Rees, director of the joint tax commission, made this charge in a statement issued Sunday.

"Every taxpayer who files a complaint will be accorded every consideration to which he is entitled under the law," said Mr. Conroy. "Mr. Rees' criticism is unwarranted and only tends to create confusion in the minds of the tax payers.

"The office of the board of assessors is always open every business day during business hours to receive complaints or suggestions of the taxpayers. The board members and employes have been working night and day to expedite the completion of the 1930 assessment on or before the day when they are required to deliver their books to the board of review. Mr. Rees by his statement, has done nothing but hinder the board in expediting the task."

ARREST ONE OFFICIAL AS THREE ROCKFORD BANKS ARE CLOSED

Rockford, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—Sanford G. Englund, assistant cashier of the Security National bank of Rockford, which was closed today, was arrested tonight on the order of a United States bank examiner who said an audit had revealed a shortage of $23,000 in his accounts. Englund was placed in jail, no attempt having been made so far to effect his release on bond.

The Security National bank, with deposits of $2,383,000 and capitalization of $200,000, was one of three banks closed here today. It and the Manufacturers National bank were closed by federal bank examiners. The Manufacturers bank had deposits of $3,434,594 at its last report.

The Peoples Bank and Trust company, a state bank, was closed when its cash reserve was exhausted, but officials said they hoped to reopen within a fortnight.

Italian Census Puts Population at 41,145,041

HUSBAND IN RENO; WIFE'S WRIT TIES UP HIS PROPERTY

Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort, who recently issued an injunction restraining Joseph L. Sylvan, radio dealer, from getting a Reno divorce from Mrs. Edith Sylvan, 4428 North St. Louis avenue, yesterday issued a second injunction tieing up Sylvan's assets until an auditor can examine them for his wife.

Mrs. Sylvan is seeking a decree of separate maintenance before Judge Desort. Yesterday her attorney, Benjamin B. Davis, summoned James Solar, manager of Sylvan's radio concern, into court. Solar, questioned as to his employer's assets, replied that he didn't know how much Sylvan had been taking out of the business, but that since he left for Reno it has "gone to the dogs."

Mrs. Sylvan charged in her bill that her husband has an income of $50,000 a year. Out of that, she charged, he gave her only $35 a week for the support of herself and their six children. She charges desertion.

Policeman Freed by Court, but He Is Fired by Board

Patrolman Ernest C. Daliege of the Englewood station, though acquitted of the same charge in Criminal court, was dismissed from the police force yesterday by the civil service commission on the charge of attempting to extort $5,000 from Joseph Mason, a south side druggist.

STAY IN SCHOOL, DON'T HUNT FOR JOB, BOGAN TELLS PUPILS

Chicago public school children yesterday were urged to continue with their education and not stop school to go to work. Letters from William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, were sent to all principals with instructions to post them on the bulletin board.

The letter says in part: "Do not quit school to look for work. While there is so much unemployment among adults there is but little chance for boys and girls, especially beginners. The most profitable thing for boys and girls to do at the present time to stay in school and prepare themselves for the future.

"Grade school graduates should go to high school. High school graduates should take special courses. Even if a job is obtained at the present time it is one that should be given to heads of families."

Gunmen Rob Commission Merchant on Way to Bank

W. E. White, 9849 South Western avenue, a produce commission merchant with offices at 611 West 63rd street, was robbed of $325 and $1,127 in checks yesterday by two gunmen. They stopped him on his way to a neighborhood bank.

GRAND JURORS EXAMINE BOOKS OF MOVIE UNION

The grand jury yesterday started an investigation of the Moving Picture Operators' union by examining records produced by Thomas Reynolds, president of the union, under a subpoena duces tecum. Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Lounsbury has been working on the case for several weeks as a result of a complaint made by theater owners that the union has insisted on each theater using two men, regardless of the need of an additional operator.

Thomas Maloy, business agent of the union, was in the witness room, but was not called on to testify. The investigation will be resumed tomorrow and more than 100 witnesses are to be called, the prosecutor announced.

According to Prosecutor Lounsbury the union has not taken in a new member since 1918.

Irene McLaughlin Named Damage Suit Defendant

Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin and Thomas Webster, superintendent of her Orphans of the Storm dog refuge, were made defendants yesterday in the Circuit court at Waukegan in a suit for $10,000 filed by the estate of Mrs. Susan Manarcini, 2027 Canalport avenue. Mrs. Manarcini, it is charged, was killed June 19, 1930, in Chicago by an automobile belonging to the refuge and driven by Webster.

HUNGER ARMY ASKS STATE FOR $15 A WEEK DOLE

Presents Demands on Floor of House.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—Five representatives of the 250 jobless who made a "hunger march" on Springfield, demanded an immediate appropriation for the unemployed at a late session of the house this afternoon.

D. E. SHANAHAN.

The delegation had been named by their companions to appear at the twenty minute hearing granted by Speaker Shanahan and appeal for a dole for every unemployed and disabled worker.

Each of the five were prepared to speak, but Philip Frankenfield of Ziegler, Ill., a coal miner, consumed the entire period alloted and when he had concluded, the house began routing consideration of bills.

The house was in committee of the whole for Frankenfield's address and resolved into regular session again without comment.

"Wish you luck," from Speaker Shanahan, was the word given the five as they filed out.

Protests Police Action.

Frankenfield began by protesting at the treatment given the jobless by Springfield and Illinois highway police.

"Al Capone is not with us," he said, "and we represent 75,000 unemployed in our own organization, the state unemployed council, and indirectly the 500,000 out of work in Illinois. In spite of that, we have been harassed and driven from place to place by the police and denied the right of free speech."

The miner read a platform adopted by the hunger marchers, which included these planks:

Passage of the worker's insurance bill to provide every unemployed worker with $15 weekly.

Abolitio nof labor injunction laws.

Opening of all vacant buildings and apartments for shelters for the jobless.

Cancellation of farmers' debts.

The others who did not speak included another miner, a Negro woman from Chicago, and two laborers.

House Faces Huge Calendar.

When it turned its attention again to its own work, the house found a calendar of huge proportions. There are 348 bills on the house calendar—155 house and 193 from the senate. More than 1,000 others remain in committees, where they seem doomed to stay.

The senate calendar is not so unwieldly, but heavy enough, with 204 bills—70 of its own and 134 from the house.

Combined there are 553 measures on the calendars at the moment. The wholesale killing of many of these may begin tomorrow.

Other Bills Pending.

Of immediate interest during this, perhaps the last, week of the fifty-seventh session, include the woman's eight hour bill, the highway police bill and the revenue program sponsored by the Chicago real estate board for the immediate relief of overloaded tax payers.

Tomorrow the labor measure will have the field in the house on special order of business and hand to hand fighting over it is predicted. M. L. Igoe of Chicago, the minority leader, sponsors the bill in the house. It was engineered through the senate by Richard Barr, the majority leader.

Last week's battle over the congressional reapportionment plan is due to boomerang into tomorrow's fight, according to some predictions, particularly if the Republicans attempt to defeat the women's bill as punishment to Representative R. G. Soderstrom (Rep., Streator), president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who was one of the four Republicans to vote against the congressional remapping.

Igoe on Warpath.

If Mr. Igoe, who grew bitter when the reapportionment bill passed because he and the rest of the Democratic members believed it discriminated unfairly against Democratic congressmen, brings the fight on the labor bill to a party issue and aides with Mr. Soderstrom, more warm debate of the character which shook the house floor last week is expected. Whatever tactics develop, the question will probably occupy most of the morning.

The police bill also carries political dynamite. It would extend the powers of the highway maintenance patrolmen so as to allow them the same rights of arrest as are now enjoyed by city police and county sheriffs. They would not be hampered by county or city boundaries in pursuing criminal investigations.

Highly motorized, the force would have a mobility not enjoyed by any police forces save those in the larger municipalities of the state. The bill would also increase the force from 300 to 350 men.

Democrats Oppose It.

The Democrats contend the entire bill is political propaganda, designed to extend the administration's power by impressive police maneuvers in imitation of a state constabulary. Mr. Soderstrom and labor people also oppose it because they feel, in Soderstrom's words, that "it would create a rough riding, strike breaking, union busting force."

The real estate board bills carry three provisions: For the funding of the 1930 tax levy by a bond issue maturing in twenty years, the extending of the time limit on which delinquent taxes would begin to bear interest, and the semi-annual payment of taxes.

They have been referred to the house floor with a favorable recommendation from the revenue committee and will be on second reading this week. The real estate people have high hopes that they will receive favorable action. If passed they would constitute the only major revenue legislation put through this session.

EVANSTON ASKS FOR SPEEDWAY ALONG THE LAKE

Construction of a motor highway along the lake shore from the south boundary of Evanston to Wilmette, was asked in a resolution adopted last night by the city council of Evanston. The resolution, offered by Ald. Robert James, will be sent to Springfield.

Plans for such a highway over the water have been under consideration for five years. It would consist of a double lane, separated in the center by a lagoon. Six cut-in roads would link the speedway with Evanston. An expenditure of $7,000,000 would be necessary, it is estimated.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Touch your Adam's Apple with your finger. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords.

When a lawyer makes a statement before a jury he backs it up with sound evidence and facts. Here are the facts:

Certain harsh irritants, present in all raw tobaccos—which are expelled by LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—are sold by us to manufacturers of chemical compounds. In other words, the removal of these irritants in the manufacture of LUCKY STRIKE is not a mere laboratory procedure for the purpose of getting an advertising phrase—it is a definite and vitally important process in rendering LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes less irritating than other cigarettes. Remember—LUCKY STRIKE comes to you after certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos have been expelled through the exclusive "TOASTING" Process. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes.

OFFENDERS GET HEAVY FINES IN DRIVE ON SMOKE

City Renews Campaign to End Nuisance.

Smoke ordinance violators received stiff penalties in Municipal Judge John F. O'Connell's court yesterday as a result of renewed enforcement efforts by the city smoke abatement department. Two were fined $100 each and a third was fined $200 and costs.

Frank A. Chambers, head of the department, who appeared in court to help with the prosecution of the cases, expressed satisfaction with the penalties, which he said should be a warning to persistent contributors to the smoke nuisance.

Heavy Penalties Assessed.

The Boulevard Linen Supply Company, Inc., 2605-09 Armitage avenue, was fined $200 after Chambers had testified to a series of complaints against it. Nathan Kirstein, a tailor, 3915 Diversey avenue, and Sol Best, owner of the building, were fined $100 each. Mrs. Joseph Rhode, 3912 Diversey avenue, testified that smoke caused by burning refuse in the shop had caused tenants in her building to move away.

An agreement was reached in a case involving alleged violations by a building at 7136 Jeffery avenue owned by Walter F. Kinnucan. The latter and the complainants, owners of the Jeffery-Cyril building, agreed to share the cost of carrying the smoke stack above the Kinnucan building. A case against the Metropole hotel, 2300 South Michigan avenue, was dismissed after the hotel had installed anti-smoke devices.

Rail Officials to Confer.

Mr. Chambers announced that he has called a conference of officials of the Illinois Central and Michigan Central railroads to discuss the elimination of smoke at roundhouses located at 16th and 27th streets.

STORE OWNER ENDS LIFE.

Ludwig Heiberg, 57 years old, owner of a haberdashery at 2815 West North avenue, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas in the rear room of his store.

WARSHIP BEGINS TOWING WILKINS' SUB TO IRELAND

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—After wallowing helplessly for more than a day in the rough North Atlantic, nearly 1,000 miles from land, the submarine Nautilus got under way again early today in tow of the battleship Wyoming.

Navy officers calculated it would require seven and a half days for the old undersea craft, in which Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins hopes to slide under the ice cap to the north pole, to reach Cobh, Ireland.

The Wyoming and the Arkansas, both of the training squadron of the scouting force, had responded to distress signals and had been standing by since Sunday, waiting for seas to abate sufficiently to permit the crew of the Nautilus to grapple an eight inch hawser and make fast; but with its motors crippled and no headway the submarine had tossed and heaved so violently that all attempts had failed.

The feat was accomplished, however, early this morning, according to a radio message received at the navy department, Washington, from Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commanding the battleships. He notified the department that the long tow commenced almost immediately, but that a speed of only five knots was being maintained. The distance to Cobh was estimated at nearly 1,000 miles at the time that towing commenced.

END QUARREL IN COURT.

Old friends, Heyer Zimmerman, 46 years old, 30 North Central avenue, and Hymen Cutler, 30 years old, 2709 Washington boulevard, shook hands and dropped charges of disorderly conduct against each other yesterday before Judge Freeman L. Fairbank. They fought Saturday when Cutler "stole" his friend's new auto as a joke.

IRKUTSK'S WHERE BANDITS ROB YOU AFTER SUNDOWN

"Bad Town" of Siberia Still Vicious.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IRKUTSK, Siberia, May 6.—[By Mail.]—A "bad town" throughout the four centuries since it was founded, this city of 100,000 population at the eastern gateway to Siberia is a wild and woolly burg today.

Even the G. P. U. has thus far failed to clean up the city properly, and it is infested with hobos, thieves, and escaped convicts, who scrawl chalk marks on walls warning the populace: "Your overcoat belongs to us if you venture out after 9 p. m."

The Moscow government has repeatedly changed its administration heads here and recently installed a new outfit of the dread secret police to establish order, as rumors had filtered back along the 3,000 miles to the capital that the police were working hand in hand with the crooks. Proof was forthcoming when robbery victims identified their property, clothing and boots, which were being worn by police and militiamen.

Proverbially a Bad Town.

Irkutsk is proverbially a bad town, because in the old days of the czarist régime it was the headquarters of escaped felons who had been exiled to Siberia. Today Irkutsk is the headquarters of desperate men beating their way east to China to escape across the boundary, 500 miles farther east, into Manchuria. Ragged, penniless, famished, many of them do not hesitate to stick a knife into a passerby at night to steal his clothes, his wallet, and his papers.

All night long the militia and the police make their rounds, tramping up and down the principal streets, questioning every one not known to them, arresting those who cannot show good reason why they are prowling about. One hundred miles on either side of Irkutsk the railway police begin searching trains, inside, outside, and underneath the cars, to capture the undesirables.

Outside Irkutsk is a huge prison, the concentration camp constructed under the imperial régime to lodge the long convoys of exiles on their way to the gold mines, then the personal property of the czar, in the region northwest of Irkutsk. Today the soviet authorities use the place as a penitentiary. Outside the walls are barbed wire entanglements and red guards with fixed bayonets peer over the wall from lookout posts on top of tall poles. Inside the prisoners are laboring, trimming logs, preparing railway ties, fashioning huge joists and timber for construction under way along the railroad and in the city.

On Banks of Angara.

There are huge railway shops located at Irkutsk, built in 1898. The two headed imperial eagle of the czar, facing east and west typifying the Russian empire with its realms in Europe and Asia, is covered by the bolshevik insignia of the sickle and the hammer, and a lithograph of Lenin replaces the photograph of Nicholas in the station waiting room.

Irkutsk is situated on the banks of the Angara river, 35 miles west of Lake Baikal, one of the largest lakes in the world, "bottomless" in many places and frozen solid even at this time of the year. Projects are being studied to construct a huge dam at the point where the Angara leaves Baikal to so regulate the flow of its waters that the river will be kept open for navigation at least seven or eight months of the year. At present the river is impassible on account of ice nine months in the year.

The dam, besides permitting navigation, would develop enormous horsepower to serve the industry planned for this region. Furthermore, it would provide irrigation for a vast area of steppe southwest of the city.

Plan Huge Tractor Factory.

As a bulwark to trans-Baikalia, the Yakutian province, the Pacific coast district, Kamshatka and Sakhalin, the soviet government has prepared plans to strengthen the military and economic position of Irkutsk, creating industry there so that these farflung eastern provinces will not be forced to rely on maintenance and defense being hauled clear across Siberia.

A tractor factory, equipped to make tanks as well as farm machinery, cement works and an explosives factory, will be started this year.

Irkutsk is the center of the gold and fur industries. The soil is almost perpetually frozen and only permits the raising of sufficient foodstuffs to feed the local population. Very little grain is shipped west from here.

Prisoners Work on Project.

Prisoners, reinforced by exiled kulaks, or rich peasants, are now working in the big placer developments in the gold regions northeast of here, and machinery is being hauled out for mining according to modern methods. A cyanide plant will be set up near Chita.

Irkutsk is a rambling, straggling town of low, one story mud huts, except for some two story buildings on a few principal streets and the former palaces and offices of the czar's governors, and the big bulbous domed churches.

The former governor's palace is a big white and green three story building right down on the Angara, opposite the railway station. It is now used as headquarters of the local soviet. The former office buildings have become museums and workers' clubs. The Grand hotel on Litvinov street is now the best hostelry, I was told the Europa had bugs.

Bill Shotoff, one time American labor agitator, and now railway construction boss for the Reds, who superintended the building of the Turkey-Siberia line from Tashkent across Turkestan to Semiplatinisk, is now headquartered here, preparing to start construction work on a line north to tap new gold fields.

U. S. Engineers in City.

There are several American mining engineers and experts in gold extraction living here, some with their wives and families. They have a special shop for purchasing supplies and are lodged in cottages, some new, others old ones, rebuilt.

Extensive building operations are going on. Already several new factories are being erected, with big blocks of brick apartments for the workers. There are also large frame houses, three story log dwellings, composed of one room lodgings, to house the proletariat.

A bitter wind prevails continuously, blowing viciously with keen penetrating blasts from the northwest to the southeast and wafting the bitter icy ozone from the arctic over the vast plain surrounding the city. Even now in May, the sentries still wear their great bearskin heavy coats which reach to their heels and surround them like a miniature tent, to protect them from the wind.

JUDGE DAVID REMAINS IN CRIMINAL COURT TO TRY CANAL CASES

Judge Joseph B. David yesterday announced he has received notice of extension of his time in the Criminal court by the executive committee of the Superior court to enable him to try the cases of the recently reindicted officials of the sanitary district. The judge instructed his bailiff to notify state and defense attorneys the court is ready to hear preliminary motions. Defense attorneys are expected to present a motion to quash the indictments.

TWO BANDITS SENTENCED.

Roy Williamson, 24 years old, 4424 North Damen avenue, and Max Leitz, 24 years old, 4615 Wrightwood avenue, were sentenced to one year in jail and held to the grand jury in total bonds of $70,000 on seven charges of robbery by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday.

GETS 6 MONTHS IN PLOT AGAINST OSCAR DE PRIEST

Julius Link, 29 years old, an asbestos worker, former candidate for state representative, was sentenced to six months in the county jail and fined $1 by Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court for attempting to extort $10,000 from Congressman Oscar De Priest. Link wrote a series of letters demanding the money. The Negro congressman took a packet containing $300 to a rendesvous and police captured Solly Leson. Link confessed the plot and was allowed until yesterday to wind up his affairs. A third man, Joseph Goldstein, is being sought. Leson has not been tried.

END DELAYS, TRY PHYSICIAN ON MURDER CHARGE

Dr. Ney to Face Jury for Girl's Death.

Dr. Thomas Ney, 7010 Stony Island avenue, who has been in trouble in the Criminal courts since 1925 on charges of murder by abortion, has reached the end of his long string of continuances. Judge John Prystalski yesterday ordered the physician to face a jury tomorrow morning. Assistant State's Attorneys John L. Murphy and Robert L. Donigan, who will prosecute, said they are ready for trial and expect to ask the death penalty.

The state will attempt to show that Dr. Ney committed an abortion causing the death of a 20 year old girl while he was under indictment for still another abortion murder committed three years before. He was out on bond at the time he performed the last operation.

Will Try Latest Charge.

Prosecutors Murphy and Donigan announced that they would bring the physician to trial on the latest charge rather than the old case. The reason, it was explained, is because they will be able to show the jury that he was charged with the other crime, whereas if they tried the original case they would not be able to bring into evidence the latest case.

The prosecutors have hunted for several days for an important witness' name. She was traced by detectives and is now being held in judicial custody in a hotel so that her appearance will be assured. She was sent by the physician to the home of the dying girl to take care of her some days after the operation was performed.

Miss Elma Brumps, 20 years old, of Angora, Minn., was the latest alleged victim of Dr. Ney's operations. Robert Barry of Indianapolis, who made the arrangements with Dr. Ney and paid him $50 for the operation, will be the state's main witness. He will testify that he had to borrow the money from a finance company to pay for the operation.

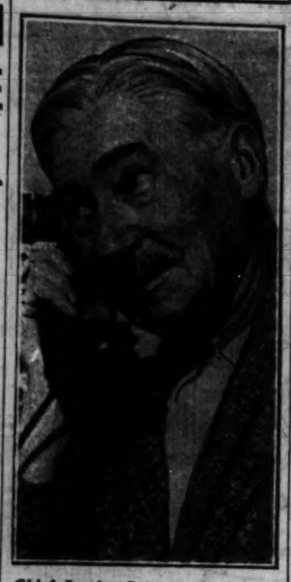
Intimation Charge Made.

Barry has told the prosecutors that he is prepared to testify that a few days after the operation was performed Dr. Ney and an associate came to the rooming house on Indiana avenue where the victim was staying and that both were intoxicated and gave him gin to drink. He will say that he insisted on another physician being called and Dr. Ney's associate finally called in a reputable physician who said that the girl would not live for 24 hours. She died at the county hospital.

The other pending murder case against Dr. Ney involves the death of Eunice McElroy, 21 years old. She died on Nov. 14, 1923, after an operation was performed for $100. This case, the court dockets show, has been continued at least 25 times since the return of the indictment.

The court records show that Dr. Ney was in trouble even before the McElroy case. He was held to the grand jury for murder on Oct. 7, 1925.

UNDER KNIFE



Chief Justice John P. McGoorty.

Chief Justic John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court underwent a minor operation yesterday in the Presbyterian hospital. He is expected to return to the bench in a week. Dr. Vernon C. David performed the operation. During Judge McGoorty's absence Judge Joseph Sabath will act as chief justice.

REAL FEMININE TRAITS SHOWN IN CHOICE OF BOOKS

Library Survey Reveals the Sex Variant.

Sex, schooling and occupation are the three important factors which determine the public's reading habits, according to a survey just completed by the graduate library school of the University of Chicago. Of these three, the strongest is sex, for any two groups of men, picked at random, will have more interests in common than the most carefully selected groups, one made up of men and the other of women, it was found.

Two general subjects were found to draw the attention of all classes, male and female, namely, international problems and personal hygiene—how to keep well. But even in the case of international problems, it was found that men were interested in economic, legislative and political phases, while women looked primarily to the personalities involved.

Men Interested in Prohibition.

Literature on prohibition was found to have an appeal for nearly all classes of men, but with the exception of housewives, women professed little interest in it.

Women appear concerned over public morals, but prisoners make up the only class of men which likes to read about that subject. Prisoners also were found to constitute the only one of more than a hundred social groups whose favorite literary theme is crime and punishment. Birth control was reported to be of interest to all women, but only to men of college education.

Men show little relish for subjects relating to artists and musicians, actors and actresses, modern styles, manners, customs, and social welfare problems, while women turned thumbs down on literature pertaining to government, big business, foreign trade, insurance, and inventions.

How the Sexes Vary.

On specific subjects, the investigators found wide variations of interest between the two sexes. Six groups of men were asked if they would like to read about "What Makes a Successful Marriage?" and only two of these classes—Milwaukee prisoners and University of Iowa medical students—expressed maximum interest.

When the same question was put to five groups of women, maximum interest was registered by four—Chicago telephone operators, home economics students at the University of Minnesota, commercial students at the University of Iowa and Chicago high school teachers.

One hundred and seven groups, each of 100 individuals, living in many different parts of the country, were canvassed in the course of the investigation which was conducted by Douglas Waples, acting dean of the Graduate Library school of the University of Chicago and Ralph W. Tyler, of the bureau of educational research of Ohio State university. The two professors have given the results of their findings in a book entitled, "What People Want To Read About."

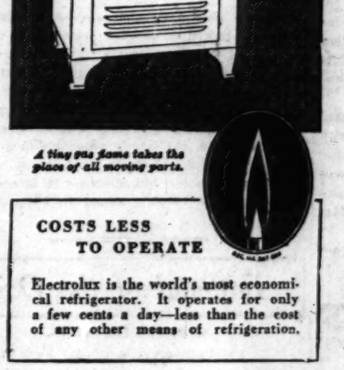
VANISHING AMERICANS: The cigar store Indian and the kind of automatic refrigerator that is full of noise and machinery.

Noisy automatic refrigerators seem antiquated beside the* noiseless, machinery-free operation of *Electrolux

PITY the vanished cigar-store Indian. Pity, too, the automatic refrigerator that depends upon machinery. For now there's a new and better kind that is automatic without using any machinery or moving parts—Electrolux.

This means a lot in the lives of home makers. For proof of that ask the prominent architects and builders who now specify Electrolux as standard equipment in fine private homes and apartments. Or call at any of the 150,000 kitchens which already have this refrigerator. They'll tell you what it means never to have noise in the kitchen, never to worry about friction, vibration or wear. They'll tell you what it means to have the kind of refrigeration that you get in Electrolux, where the chilling action doesn't alternately stop and start. They'll tell you, too, that Electrolux will save your money, as well as your food and your nerves. This refrigerator costs even less per week than most people spend for ice. Never more than a few cents a day, for both gas and water.

The secret of how this refrigerator does all these things is in the unique way it works. A tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water change common ordinary ammonia, little stronger than household ammonia, first to vapor, then back to liquid. This circulation makes the cold, without making sound. The refrigerant is hermetically sealed inside a rigid steel unit, and the tiny gas flame is completely protected by an automatic shut-off.



A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts.

COSTS LESS TO OPERATE

Electrolux is the world's most economical refrigerator. It operates for only a few cents a day—less than the cost of any other means of refrigeration.

Installation is easily made. Connections for gas and water are through concealed flexible copper tubing, and are quickly made for you by your gas company. Should your Electrolux ever need adjustment, you get the prompt, efficient kind of service for which your gas company is famous.

Make up your mind to see Electrolux today. Despite the unique advantages of this refrigerator, its prices are no higher. It is on display at showrooms of your gas company. Comes in 10 household models, ranging from 3 cu. ft. to 20 cu. ft. capacity. Look for Electrolux in the apartment you rent. For complete information by mail, write us, or phone Wabash 6000.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overcome resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. HELP FOR THE RAILROADS.

The railroads of the country are preparing to ask the interstate commerce commission for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates from which, it is expected, a 10 per cent increase in revenues will be derived.

There is no slightest doubt that the financial position of the railroads today is a matter of grave concern. Because they are not making money they have been unable to purchase any but the most essential supplies, a fact which accounts in no small measure for the depth of the depression in the steel as well as other basic industries. Equally serious is the fact that the earnings of many, even of the stronger, railroads are scarcely sufficient to meet bond interest. The laws describing the securities which insurance companies and savings banks may hold are strict in many states; if bond interest is not earned with a considerable margin to spare, the bonds must be sold. Unless the financial condition of the railroads improves, a great market for railroad bonds will disappear, and railroad financing in the future will be made far more difficult. Railroad bonds have constituted the corner stone of our financial structure for generations; the forced liquidation of these securities by banks and insurance companies, it need scarcely be said, might become a disturbing factor equal to any which brought on the depression.

In view of these facts, there is no doubt of the desirability of increasing railroad income. The question remains, however, whether the 15 per cent increase will work out as expected. Certainly any considerable increase in rates will result in the destruction of some traffic and in the loss of other business to competing forms of transportation, especially to ships and trucks. At a time when all other commodities are selling at prices which approximate those of before the war and all business is operating on a narrow margin, the effect of increasing the cost of railroad transportation is not likely to be as helpful as the railroad presidents expect. While the rate schedule is under consideration other measures for increasing railroad income should not be overlooked.

Three such proposals deserve serious study:

1. Present restrictions on the ownership by railroads of competing ship lines should be removed. The railroads would then be in a position to take advantage of the economies of water transportation; and the possibility of the loss of traffic to competing ship lines would be minimized. Incidentally, the entrance of the railroads into water transportation would stimulate the construction of ships and to that extent benefit the steel, shipbuilding, engine building and many other industries.

2. Meanwhile, the railroads should be granted the right to make special rates to compete with the Panama canal and other water routes. Under the transportation act, the interstate commerce commission is authorized to permit lower rates for the longer haul when competition justifies them, but this right has not been exercised by the commission. If the transcontinental railroads were permitted to compete with the ship lines their incomes would be materially increased.

3. When railroads provide material improvements in service they should be compensated with increased rates. This principle should be applied particularly in such matters as electrification. A railroad which offers its patrons the cleanliness and greater speed of electric service has improved the commodity which it sells and is entitled to charge more for it. At a time when all prices are dropping, the railroads are certain to meet with much resistance in selling their present service at a higher rate; the customers would have less ground for complaint if the higher rates were predicated upon better service

BEHEMOTHS ON HARD TIRES.

The streets of Chicago and the rural highways are built to carry vehicles of limited weight. No one would suspect it for a moment who had observed the considerable number of huge trucks that go crashing along on hard tires, causing more damage to pavements in one trip than a month's ordinary traffic would account for.

A bill has been passed by the house at Springfield and is pending in the senate to limit the weight and length of motor vehicles, and require them to use pneumatic tires after July 1, 1933. Under present regulations taxpayers are penalized for the construction of new pavements and motorists are penalized with rocky roads and broken springs and axles. There ought to be a regulation against the use of hard tires on streets and highways. It is not in force, perhaps, because the difference in cost between hard and pneumatic tires is sufficient to keep the law off the books. There may be another explanation, but if so it has been kept a profound secret. The state senate should pass the bill.

RADIO ADVERTISING.

Senator Dill of Washington, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, is back from Europe after an inspection of foreign radio laws and methods of control. He says that private enterprise in the United States has produced results with which no European system can compare. Government control abroad has prevented the development of the industry and has limited public use and enjoyment. Government operation has endeavored to be fair and impartial, the senator said. Except in Russia, there is no political abuse and not much political use of the air, but the American people would find the radio output altogether unsatisfactory. Consequently, Mr. Dill is opposed to government operation in the United States. Private enterprise has justified itself in the superiority of American radio both technically and in the quality of its programs.

There were, the senator found, certain admirable features in European broadcasting, but they did not compensate for the general retarding of the facilities and for the mediocrity of the matter which used the medium. The comparison revealed what may be expected to distinguish alert private management of utilities from government control. The senator's most serious complaint against American radio was related to advertising. In this respect he said there was an imposition upon the public which already had the attention of congress and would be acted upon unless the advertisers corrected their own faults.

Government controlled radio abroad is supported by taxation, by a levy on the owners of receiving sets. They pay directly for what they get, but get only what the government will give them. The American users pay for what they get only by listening to advertising, and they have a great variety of programs for their choice. The life of American radio is competition. The programs must win a public following to support themselves. The dial is turned on the moment the listener is bored. The objective of a program is an interested auditor.

Thus the simplest rule of survival is applied. A program relies upon its attractiveness. It will be killed by the mistakes of its authors or it will be made by the approval of the listeners. The public does not pay part of the cost of the producer's mistake. He is dialed out and may observe it in his returns. The very excellence which Senator Dill has observed in American radio has been reached by private enterprise seeking profit. It must be apparent that government, admittedly having failed to compete successfully with this private system, cannot interfere with the essential principle and look for a continuance of satisfactory results.

Inasmuch as the people cannot be at once imposed upon and attracted, bored and interested, it should be apparent that advertising faults must correct themselves. The radio commission checks improprieties and the question does not involve them. It is merely one of profit seeking enterprise and the rule back of it is sound. Private enterprise in competition for popular support will succeed only if it pleases. That is the explanation of American radio, and its own natural laws will work where a federal statute will not.

THE LAW IN MINNEAPOLIS.

The views of the chief justice of the United States and a majority of the Supreme court carry no weight in Minneapolis, Minn. The state press gag law may be unconstitutional, but what is the constitution among friends? There are other ways of suppressing inconvenient publicity, as for instance, the Public Press, said to be a "scandal sheet," is attacking vice conditions and their political implications. It is alleged its editor's motives are not what they seem and his methods irresponsible. The police, whose motives, of course, are noble, have been suppressing the Public Press. Two days before the May primary they confiscated thirty thousand copies. An injunction praying protection has just been denied by the local court. The underworld of Minneapolis and its political allies are the government and the constitution in that community. There seems to be no other.

A pretty exhibit of self-government as is. Do the people of Minneapolis like the advertisement? Do they like supporting a police that lawlessly confiscates property? Do they like a judiciary that refuses to enforce the laws? Do they accept control of their affairs by the underworld and the political profiteers who draw their revenues from the prostitutes and professional lawbreakers?

Chicago, New York and other American cities know the power of corrupt politics and what it costs to fight and overcome it. But there is no hope for any community which permits the suppression of publicity under any pretext. The owners of so-called "scandal sheets" are all amenable to the law if they commit libel, amenable in person, not merely amenable in property. But what corrupt interests want is not compensation or penalties, but silence. It is not falsehood they are so determined to suppress, but truth.

SUPPRESSING NEWS.

[North Tonawanda (N. Y.) News.]

One of a newspaper's troubles is the friend and often the personally unknown but "life long subscriber" who wants something "kept out of the paper." Both have the largely mistaken idea that publishing a newspaper is a personal matter with the owner or managing editor, when as a matter of fact he is more in the position of a person with a public trust.

A wise old fellow once said: "A newspaper that doesn't make you mad once in a while isn't worth the subscription price."

To make people mad isn't the chief concern of a newspaper, but if it is to be a strong factor in the community it cannot omit items of general public interest any more than it should unfairly color news that does appear.

The reading public buys a newspaper because it expects to be kept informed of vital happenings in the community. If the publisher breaks faith with a subscriber the latter soon loses confidence in the newspaper and eventually is not a reader. Without circulation a newspaper is without life blood. That is serious and no publisher with an ounce of judgment lets his paper's blood pressure become either too high or too low.

LINSEED AND ECZEMA.

MEN who work in linseed meal are subject to a form of weeping eczema which is accompanied by intolerable itching. The desire to scratch is very strong. The itching is worse at night and after taking a bath. It has some resemblance to scabies, sometimes called "seven year itch," but a little study generally rules out that disorder.

For instance, "seven year itch" affects the women and children as well as the men, whereas linseed meal itch does not affect any members of the family except those who work in the mill. The preferred locations of linseed meal dermatitis are the arms and legs. It may involve the hands and face. Scabies prefers the hands and particularly the thin skin between the fingers.

In a study of this form of eczema, made by Dr. H. H. Barnes, it was found that the poison is not in the oil, nor is it in the impurities that could be sifted out of flaxseed. It appears to be something in the flaxseed itself, a something which is carried in the meal and which the skin absorbs.

The eczema gets well when the man quits work in the mill. Cleanliness and the use of mild protective ointments are of some service in curing the eruption and also in preventing it.

There is a form of eczema more like a peculiar type of hives, which is caused by exposure to chrysanthemum leaves. Dr. M. B. Goldstein reports the case of a gardener who from time to time would swell up as if he had the nettlerash. Between spells he had an eruption that was somewhat like what people call eczema. He told the doctor that he was using insect sprays containing lead arsenate and others containing nicotine.

The physician thought the lead arsenate must be the cause of the trouble and treated him for that. The man got better, but it was later found that this was because he kept away from his plants. Later, the eruption took on the nettlerash character. Dr. Goldstein then fastened a piece of chrysanthemum leaf to a patch of normal skin. Speedily redness appeared and blisters followed. The conclusion was that this was a chrysanthemum eruption.

As the open season appears people will be increasingly exposed to plants, including flowers. Many of these are capable of causing eruptions.

REMEDY IN RELAXATION.

W. H. T. writes: I am troubled at times with a terrific pounding sensation in my arms and legs, particularly while lying down. I am unable to relax and feel an uncomfortable rigidity in my neck and jaws. Will you please tell me the probable cause? I am 50 years old and seem to have a good heart.

REPLY.

Of themselves these sensations are of no consequence. As symptoms they are of some importance. Probably you think of symptoms as indicating nothing except disease. In this instance the symptom indicates a condition—tension. The remedy is relaxation. Relaxation is a matter of practice and training.

RAYNAUD'S DISEASE.

L. K. writes: Will you write something on "white fingers"? During the warm weather I have no sign of it, but when I feel chilly or wash my hands in cold water the fingers turn white to the first joint. Sometimes one hand is affected and sometimes the other. At times three fingers are involved on one hand and one, two, or three on the other, and so on.

After the hands get warm again the whiteness disappears. This has occurred for three years now, in the fall, winter, and spring.

REPLY.

The proper name for what you have is Raynaud's disease. This is a disturbing disorder, causing great inconvenience. Sometimes it is very serious.

DAILY BIBLE READING.

J. H. writes: I noticed a letter in your column recently from R. M., who is troubled with fears and worries.

A good remedy for such fears and nervousness is the reading of the Bible for an hour daily. It quiets the nerves and helps wonderfully.

PROPERTY RIGHTS.

Chicago, June 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have a large tree in our back yard the branches of which are overhanging into the adjoining yard of our neighbor, who is complaining about the shade. He wants us to chop the tree down.

1. Is there any law which could force us to chop the tree down?

2. This neighbor has his garage built four inches on our property. Could we insist upon him removing this building. J. H. B.

1. No. His remedy is limited to cutting the roots and branches at the lot line.

2. Yes.

SEPARATE COLLECTIONS.

Chicago, June 9.—[Friend of the People.]—As owner of the property in the 8600 block on Bennett avenue, I would like to know if something can't be done to prohibit using the lot adjoining this property as a dump. Can't something be done to protect the health and safety of the tenants living on this street, as under the present conditions the near vicinity is insanitary? G. P. S.

Report is made that lot referred to is now in satisfactory condition. Notices were served on householders in vicinity to stop further dumping and to provide regulation containers for the accommodation of refuse output. Location will be kept under observation to see that this is done.

Writer is evidently unaware that the ordinance provides for the separation of garbage from ashes and other refuse and that collections are not made at the same time.

STOCKHOLDER'S RIGHTS.

Chicago, June 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am an official shareholder in a certain corporation, but have left my shares with the president of the firm. Now I desire to withdraw from the firm. 1. Can I claim anything, since I do not have the shares in my possession? 2. Can the president of the firm discharge me without my consent or knowledge? J. N.

1. A stockholder is not entitled to a refund of the purchase price of his stock merely because he decides to withdraw, if that is what you mean to ask.

2. Yes, unless you have an expressed or implied contract to the contrary.

AMERICAN TOURISTS AND CANADIAN MANUFACTURING.

There was a delightful little item in one of the afternoon newspapers yesterday to the general effect that Canada finds manufacturing its chief industry. Ah, yes, and that is the reason hundreds of thousands of the citizens of our great and glorious country are going touring in Canada this summer, Deo volente. It is because of the great and consuming interest our people have in Canadian manufactures. Our people seem to have a natural genius for machinery and are always fascinated by manufacturing. And in Canada they do manufacture things that American tourists are deeply interested in. One of the most attractive things manufacured in Canada comes in neat glasses. It is of a rich golden hue like a sunset in late autumn, where the last rays of the setting sun shine through the soft blue haze on the russet leaves blowing willy nilly o'er the lea. This rare product of Canadian manufacture has a thick, lovely lacelike foam on the top, which is blown lovingly away as the tourist raises it to his lips after repeating gently, "Prosit!" or "Here's mud in your eye."

Then there is another article manufactured by the Canadians from rye or corn and which comes in neat quart bottles and is a subject of most earnest study by the American tourists. Some of these were manufactured a long time ago—ten, fifteen, or twenty years. There are also a variety of foreign manufactures sold by the Canadians which are likewise of great interest to the eager tourists. Some of these manufactures come from France and Spain and are quite deftly made from the juice of the grape. Imports from Ireland and Scotland, which have a delightful aroma of peat smoke or heather, are also examined with delight by the enchanted tourists and purchased in great quantities. Yes, indeed, Canadian manufactures are of consuming interest to American tourists.

BROKEN PRISMS.

Once, the years swung from the lamp of life
Like glowing prisms, casting back the light
Of stars, and moon, and sunset—and soft shapes
Of violets and roses. Slim white lilies leaned
With their cupped auricles
That caught the songs of pines and freighted winds
That brought the amorous warblings
Of bright-plumed birds.

Now—they lie shattered, covered with the roil
And dust of youth that passed
Too swiftly. Hopes that could not last,
And drift of broken dreams
Cast back their radiance;
Still the light of stars
And moonlight lingers where they fell;
Still do small shapes of violet and rose
Gleam from the fragments.
And I would mold the glowing mass again
Into some shape of beauty—but upon my lips
I feel the touch of wounded finger-tips.

"PINCHOT, BORAH, NORRIS Eyed for White House Job."—Chicago Evening Post. The ayes have it; it looks as though it would take all three to straighten things out.

WE SHOULD be terribly and vitally interested in the President's speech at the Harding memorial today, but, darn it all, we are so thrilled as to the context of the speech Al Capone will make at about the same hour, "guilty" or "not guilty."

DELENDA EST CAPONE!

The President never started the periodical tossing of the medicine ball without first demanding of these officials, "Have you got Capone yet?" and he never finished a game without admonishing, "Remember, I'm waiting for some action on Capone!"—Herex.

Which reminds one of stern old Cato, who never began or ended a speech in the Roman senate without the words "Delenda est Carthago," or, if you've forgotten your Latin, "Carthage must be destroyed." History does have a way of repeating itself even though there is a slight difference between a session of the Roman senate and a game of medicine ball.

WELL, BIOGRAPHIES of Franklin Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker have been announced for early publication, and just as soon as we read where somebody will soon publish biographies of Owen Young and Gov. Ritchie we'll know it won't be long now. Presidential year is almost here.

SENATOR LEWIS wants a Democratic platform which does not contain "everything from the Ten Commandments to the Sermon on the Mount." Tut, tut, senator, what difference does it make? Nobody ever reads the darned things anyhow, and the first thing any party does when it gets into power is to collect all the copies of the platform that it can get together and burn 'em back of the White House. And anybody who speaks of the platform after that is considered a traitor, an ornery hound, and a general nuisance.

A POLITICAL platform, senator, is composed of equal parts of hooey, baloney, and apple sauce. But we Americans just love 'em and will do everything but read 'em. E. M. L.

JUNE 16, 1915.

CHICAGO.—The street car strike ended at 5 o'clock this morning when the mayor was selected as referee in the arbitration of the dispute between the surface lines and elevated employés and the companies. The board of arbitration will consist of three men, one to act as representative or attorney for each side, and the referee who is to be the deciding member. The strikers will resume work at noon and take the people home tonight. At 4 a. m. the conference over the strike settlement had agreed upon arbitration on condition that the conferees could settle upon a referee. All other points of difference had been settled after eight hours of continuous session. During the day the elevated lines ran trains between the 61st street and Wilson avenue stations under fifteen minute headway. Service at the evening rush hours was such that several thousand passengers could have been carried, but the rush failed to materialize. The service offered by the swarm of jitneys, although it cost more, was deemed to be safer. Detectives guarded the trains. The heads of the police department declared that the strike was the most peaceful in their experience.

LONDON.—An aerial raid on Karlsruhe, capital of the grand duchy of Baden, in which 23 airplanes took part, is described in messages tonight. Paris reports that heavy damage was done, but Berlin claims that no military loss could have been caused. It admits, however, that 11 citizens were killed and six injured.

CHICAGO.—The declaration of war by friends of Gov. Yates against pool selling and betting at the county race tracks is not likely to stop the running of the "American Derby" at Washington Park on June 22. Attorneys for the anti-gambling forces, including the Citizens' Association of Chicago and other organizations, admitted this after sustaining a temporary backset before Judge Tuley. Washington Park club officials declared the horses will run for Derby honors, "pool war or no pool war."

CHICAGO.—All day John D. Rockefeller watched the decennial exercises at the University of Chicago. He sat in a carriage at the laying of a corner stone at the University Press building and Charles Hitchcock hall and observed the formalities which officially stamped the growing structures as the property of the university of his creation. Throughout the day he was accompanied by President Harper.

LONDON.—A consultation of physicians in the room of former Gov. H. S. Pingree of Michigan evidenced the acuteness of his illness. Physicians declared he had held his own but were unable to say that he has in any wise improved. Frank C. Pingree of Detroit, a brother of the patient, has been summoned to come at once.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

WASHINGTON. — Mrs. Garfield, wife of the President, has so far recovered that she was able to ride out for the first time in seven weeks. Her physicians recommend that she pass the summer in Deer park. The President will also spend such time as he can spare from his official duties there.

CHICAGO.—A large party of distinguished citizens of the state of Maine arrived here to attend the banquet to be given by the Society of the Sons of Maine of Chicago at the Palmer house this evening.

CHICAGO. — It is authoritatively stated that Eli Bates, the pioneer lumberman, who died on June 13, has distributed a large portion of his wealth in a way to most effectually perpetuate his memory. He had neither wife nor children. By his will $40,000 is given for the erection of a monument for President Lincoln in Lincoln park, and George Payson, Thomas T. Withrow, the Lincoln park commissioners, and J. W. Brooks are trustees of this fund and they are also authorized to expend $15,000 for the erection of a fountain in the park. Unity church, which was organized in a parlor of the Bates home, is given $25,000 to be used for improving the building.

ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, Ark., June 8.—In two recent issues of your great paper there appeared articles written by Betty Eckersall, one of your staff correspondents, which did Arkansas a grave injustice. In an effort to be melodramatic and colorful this writer very grievously erred in portraying the real condition of Arkansas and the character of our sturdy, law-abiding, and patriotic citizenship.

Despite the liquidation of over one hundred banks since November 17, 1930, there are 317 state and national banks doing business on a sound basis in our commonwealth. Ninety-three of these closed institutions have reopened since January and recently $29,000,000 of new available assets have come into our state in the form of workable capital. Our crops were never in better condition for a bounteous harvest in the fall; our people are brave and confident; our school system is being improved each year so substantially that United States Commissioner of Education William John Cooper recently stated that "Arkansas has the best rural consolidated school system in the Union in proportion to its resources"; new industries are coming into Arkansas—paper mills, textile mills, shoe factories, furniture and planing establishments, and stave mills; we are producing 102 of the 103 minerals known to American geologists, including 43 per cent of the nation's bauxite and 24 per cent of the world's bauxite, out of which aluminum is manufactured; we have more than one hundred and seventy-five gifted writers, musicians, sculptors, and artists in our commonwealth; and there is an average well-to-doness among a people who, it is true, suffered tremendously from the 104 days' drought of last summer and the disastrous floods of 1927 and 1928.

Our people are evincing a healthy interest in education, literature, and the fine arts. The Arkansas Gazette, the oldest paper published west of the Mississippi river, its first issue being in 1819, has a daily circulation of over 40,000 and there are over thirty dailies published in Arkansas with a substantial circulation. Mr. Fred W. Allsopp, the business manager of the Gazette, has written in the past year "The Folklore of Romantic Arkansas," which represents the first attempt of an American commonwealth to preserve intact its mythology and folklore. Nell Hammit Park of Parkin, Cross county, Ark., is the winner of the Prix de Rome in landscape architecture in a nation-wide competition. Charles S. McCain, a native Arkansan, is the chairman of the board of the Chase National bank of New York City. Samuel W. Reyburn, a native of Hot Springs county, is president of Lord & Taylor. Carl Gray, formerly of Fayetteville, is president of the Union Pacific. M. L. Bell, formerly of Pine Bluff, is vice president and general counselor of the Rock Island. Homer Buford, formerly of Newport, Ark., is the general manager of the Milwaukee road. Hugh Neill of Batesville is vice president of the Southern Pacific. L. R. Putman, George Locke, T. B. Freeman, and other business leaders of Chicago are former citizens of Arkansas.

Miss Eckersall is vitally wrong in portraying Hot Springs as an oasis in a wilderness; in representing the bulk of our people as living from the leavings of the tables of the feudal overlords, who are rapidly becoming extinct, as the large plantations are being broken up into small, self-suffising farms.

CHARLES H. BROUGH,

PRECISELY.

Chicago, June 11.—THE TRIBUNE in one of its editorials on May 20 read a lecture to the homes, the churches and the schools of the land, taking for its text "The Gary Tragedy," in which Arlene Draves lost her life through attending a party where bad liquor—hootch—was served. Prohibition was blamed for this tragedy. What has THE TRIBUNE to say about the New York tragedy, in which the beautiful Starr Faithfull is the victim; and who, according to THE TRIBUNE'S own correspondent, was furnished both the silver flask and its content of pure liquor by her foster father, who is a chemist, and wished the girl to have drink that was good? It begins to look as though alcohol is alcohol, and that it is bad stuff to use, whether served up as booze or prepared by a chemist.

W. L. PERCIVAL.

NEWTON BAKER.

Chicago, June 10—The editorial concerning Mr. Newton Baker's presidential possibilities which appeared in your issue of May 21 and the comment thereon by one of your readers impel me to say that probably Mr. Baker's "chief weakness" as a candidate is to be found in the fact that in recent years Mr. Baker has become an ardent and earnest defender of the so-called open shop policy of his clients, the Lake Carriers' association. Under this policy these same union vessel owners impose a twelve hour day and eighty-four hour week upon the sailors in their employ. Mr. Baker defends these conditions. We seriously doubt that the American voter will give much consideration to Mr. Baker or any other advocate of the twelve hour work day.

CLAUDE M. GOSSMAN,
Acting Secretary, Sailors' Union of the Great Lakes.

MAC CARTY AND THE AFRO-AMERICANS.

Chicago, June 11.—After reading Mr. MacCarty's letter of June 8 regarding the George Washingtons he knows, I am convinced that Mr. MacCarty should never have returned from the old country. His ignorance of history is so profound that I think he should ask some of the Afro-Americans of his acquaintance to tell him of the part George Washington had in making a new country where the Scotch have been glad to settle.

MEDIC SOCIETY ENDS ELECTION BATTLE TODAY

Reveal Personal Friction Between Officers.

One of the hottest election campaigns in the history of the Chicago Medical society, a campaign which was revealed yesterday as having embroiled the society's two highest officers in personal friction, comes to a climax today.

At headquarters of the society's fifteen branches in the city and suburbs polls will be open from 2 to 5 p. m. to enable members who have not already mailed their ballots to cast their votes in person.

The outcome in the race between the administration slate, headed by Dr. Edward H. Ochsner, and the "anti-gag rule" ticket, led by Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, will be announced at the society's annual meeting tomorrow night.

Feeling Between Officers.

Preceding the meeting the two officers involved in the dispute, Dr. James H. Hutton, retiring president, and Dr. John R. Harger, president elect, will sit side by side as guests of honor at the association banquet. Under the society's rules the president elect always succeeds to the presidency and it is for the former office that Drs. Ochsner and Kretschmer are running.

The feeling between President Hutton and the man who will succeed him tomorrow night flared up six weeks ago at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Medical society at East St. Louis, the trouble apparently arising from the fact that Dr. Hutton is supporting the Kretschmer forces while Dr. Harger stood by the administration ticket.

As revealed in the current bulletin of the society, Dr. Harger, as chairman of the governing council, led the society's authorized delegates to the convention of the Illinois State Medical society, there to vote for delegates to the national convention.

Protest Harger Delegates.

Arriving at the convention, the Harger party was surprised to find that Dr. Hutton was there also, championing the "anti-gag" rule and pleading for denial of recognition to the instructed delegates. Both groups carried their case to Dr. William D. Chapman of Moline, president of the state society, who ruled for Dr. Hutton. The Hutton-Kreschmer delegates went to the national convention.

Returning to Chicago, the council delegates drew up a report asserting that Dr. Chapman's ruling betrayed his "ignorance" of the bylaws of the Chicago society. The report was drafted by Dr. Robert H. Hayes, one of the delegates.

Informed that Dr. Hayes had included in his report excerpts from an explanatory letter Dr. Chapman had sent him, Dr. Chapman mailed the full text of his letter to the editor of the bulletin, requesting it be printed entire. The letter appeared, with an appended note from the editor asserting that the publication committee regretted the injection of personalities into the letter and authorized publication only through a sense of fair play.

Accuses Dr. Harger.

One of the "personalities," it developed, was Dr. Chapman's charge that Dr. Harger had attempted to misrepresent himself before the state delegates as president of the society instead of president elect.

Having read the letter in the bulletin, Dr. Harger yesterday drafted a reply to Dr. Chapman, characterizing his missive as "childish" and asserting he had not misrepresented himself. On his part misrepresentation was unnecessary because he was at the convention as chairman of the council, Dr. Harger asserted. The misrepresentation, if any, was accomplished by Dr. Hutton, it is charged.

MISTAKES WINDOW FOR DOOR; DEAD.

TAX WARRANT ISSUE HOLDS UP PHONE PARLEY

City and Company Argue Over Purchase.

Settlement of the telephone franchise problem languished yesterday beneath a long and technical committee discussion of the city's proposal to sell the Illinois Bell Telephone company $1,500,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants as a sort of advance payment on more than $4,000,000 in compensation which the city claims from the company.

The company has indicated its willingness to buy the tax warrants. It wants, however, to buy them from various city funds, corporate, library, municipal tuberculosis sanitarium and others, so that it may use them in payment of taxes. It also desires that the committee on gas, oil, and electricity, which is considering the franchise draft, adopt a resolution providing that the franchise will accept tax warrants in payment of compensation.

Disagree on Buying.

Aldermen yesterday expressed opinion that the company should buy only corporate tax warrants, which would not apply on those portions of the company's taxes due the public library and other similar institutions. Attorney Francis X. Busch, representing the city, and Attorney William P. Sidley, for the company, were finally instructed to draft a resolution which will attempt to settle the difficulty.

The motion of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] to amend the ordinance to require the company to extend the zone in which all of its wires are carried underground at the rate of a mile west, north, and south from the loop each year, was defeated by a 14 to 4 vote. The underground district is now confined to the downtown area.

It was pointed out that the poles of the telephone company are used jointly by the city and the Commonwealth Edison company in many instances, and that the requirement on the telephone company to take them down would be ineffective unless provision was made for the other wires.

The vote, in which Ald. Nelson was supported only by Aldermen Leahy [27th], Terrell [29th], and Feigenbutz [45th], was stated by proponents of the franchise to indicate the final lineup on its passage. Those who opposed the amendment, and who were classified as favoring the ordinance were Aldermen Cronson [4th], Jackson [3d], Schreiber [5th], Hodes [7th], Moran [16], Northrup [19th], Cepak [22d], Toman [23d], Rostenkowski [32d], Keane [34th], Porten [35th], Loescher [44th], Hoellen [47th], and Williston [49th].

CHICAGOAN THINKS SOVIET EXCELS IN PLANNING CITIES

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Jacob L. Crane Jr., Chicago consulting engineer, said today that Russia was looking to America for inspiration in her industrial progress, but already showed evidence of outstripping this country in her urban development.

Mr. Crane arrived on the liner Drottningholm "well pleased" with treatment he received in Russia, where he spent six weeks. He assisted the state commission for planning cities in Russia. He also aided in city planning in Canton, China, where he spent nine weeks.

"While America has the advantage in experience with modern requirements," said Mr. Crane, "Russia promises far better urban development."

BOLIVIA HEARS PARAGUAY, AGAIN INVADES CHACO

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 15.—(AP)—Reports were received here today that an incursion has been made by Paraguayans into the disputed Chaco territory. No details were available and the chief of staff said he had received no official confirmation of the reports.

Advices from Montevideo, Uruguay, last Wednesday said that unrest existed in the Chaco region and that both the Bolivian and Paraguayan governments had sent notes to the five powers who settled the conflict between the two countries by arbitration in Washington in 1930. The five neutral powers consisted of the United States, Colombia, Mexico, Cuba, and Uruguay.

The dispatches from the Uruguayan capital said Paraguay evinced a desire to settle the matter in pacific fashion, while the Bolivian note was limited to clarifying its claims to the Chaco territory based on historical precedent.

2 EX-NARCOTIC AGENTS FACE 22 YEARS AS BRIBERS

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Richard Nash, a suspended federal narcotic agent, and Philip A. De Stefano, a former agent, were convicted of bribery and conspiracy in federal court tonight in attempting to bribe Arnold C. Lachenauer, a narcotic agent. The two convicted men face possible sentences of 22 years.

Lachenauer, while posing as a buyer of drugs, rounded up 20 narcotic dealers last November by inviting them to what he told them was to be a birthday party. Nash and De Stefano were accused of paying Lachenauer $1,000 to refuse to identify Peter Ellinois, under indictment for a narcotic law violation.

BRUENING HANDS ULTIMATUM TO GERMAN LEADERS

ays He'll Quit Today if Reichstag Is Called.

BERLIN, June 15.—(AP)—Chancellor Bruening told leaders of German labor unions and political parties today that his cabinet will resign if the council of elders of the reichstag votes tomorrow for an extra session.

Bruening's day was spent in a series of conferences with labor and political leaders in an effort to block the calling of the extra session of the reichstag, which, he said, would be "recklessly risking chaos."

"Must Swallow Medicine."

The bitter medicine of the emergency decrees, boosting taxes and cutting wages and doles, must be swallowed, the chancellor said, before Germany can expect relief from its reparations burden. Further steps in the direction of a revision of the Young plan, he said, would be impossible unless the nation "shows courage enough" to balance its budget, "no matter how much it hurts."

What was, perhaps, the chancellor's most important conference of the day was that with the leaders of the various parties which up to now have been supporters of the Bruening government. At this conference the whole cabinet was present and also Premier Braun of Prussia, Prussian Minister of Interior Severing, who is head of Prussia's police, and President Luther of the German Reichsbank.

Warns Against Loss of Credit.

President Luther explained to the party leaders that their attitudes at present are vital not only politically but also economically. It should be clear, he said, from the financial reactions of the last week what a blow would fall upon German credit if foreign countries were to lose their faith in the stability of the government.

The council of elders meets at noon tomorrow. Further party caucuses are scheduled for earlier in the day.

The conviction tonight in political circles was that Chancellor Bruening once more had surmounted a crisis and that tomorrow would see him further justified in retaining his sobriquet of Germany's "iron man."

Jack McGurn Evanston Prisoner for 5 Minutes

Jack McGurn, Al Capone's boss machine gunner, was held by the Evanston police yesterday for five minutes. McGurn was taken to the station by Motorcycle Policeman Gene Sanford on a charge of speeding. Because McGurn had slowed down before the patrolman could "clock" him, Desk Sergt. Ben Kennedy ruled there was no case against the gangster. McGurn, his "blond alibi" wife, formerly Louise Rolfe, and another man were on their way to play golf, they said.

Hawks left Rome at 6:35 a. m. and arrived at Croydon at 12:08 p. m., giving him a round trip flying time of 10 hours and 53 minutes for 1,700 miles, flying on separate days. He made his recent London to Rome hop in 5 hours and 20 minutes.

Tomorrow Hawks will attempt a round trip dawn to dusk flight between the two capitals. He planned to take off early in the morning. He said his flight today was without incident.

FIND OLD DOBBIN COMING BACK, IN SPITE OF MOTORS

With 12,803,000 horses in the United States "old Dobbin" is holding his own in a machine age. The census was announced yesterday at the forty-third annual convention of the Wholesale Saddlery association at the Stevens hotel.

"Although there has been a decrease of 7,000,000 in the transfer of horses since 1920, there is evidence that the use of horses as motive power is now on the increase," said Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the association. "There has been a greater demand for horses in the last year than in the preceding five years.

"Farmers with grain at the present low prices prefer to use animal motive power. There are also 5,131,000 mules being used on farms. In 1930 $3,500,000 in leather was tanned and sold as harness for these animals and $2,500,000 spent on harness accessories."

HUSBAND SHOOTS WIFE AND SELF DURING QUARREL

While his ten year old son looked on, John Packo shot his wife, Theresa, through the jaw yesterday morning in the kitchen of their home at 1454 South Kenneth avenue. Then he ran from the house and shortly afterward shot himself in the head, police finding him lying near the corner of 16th street and Kilbourn avenue. Packo was taken to the Bridewell hospital unconscious and in a critical condition, while his wife was taken to the County hospital, where she is expected to recover.

Mrs. Packo told Fillmore police that her husband had accused her of friendship with other men and had shot her in the course of a quarrel over this matter. Besides Joe, who witnessed the shooting, the Packos have three younger children.

Wins Alimony from Son of Head of Varnish Firm

Mrs. Ethel Josephine Shilvock, 21 years old, 2244 North Kenneth avenue, was granted temporary alimony of $17.50 a week yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude from John G. Shilvock Jr., son of the president of the Great Lakes Varnish company. She is suing for separate maintenance, charging that Shilvock was frequently intoxicated and kept bad company, and that he struck her on two occasions.

Then, convinced that physical force would be applied if he resisted further, he emerged at 5 o'clock, looking weary under a two day's beard. The mob yelled its hatred. He stood unflinchingly and then raised his hand in blessing. The cardinal refused to reveal how he got into Spain.

ITALY GETS NOTE

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 15.—Premier Mussolini's foreign office today was in possession of a note from the Vatican replying to the recent Italian note concerning the dispute between the two states over alleged political activities of Catholic organizations. The note was delivered late last night informally and without the usual diplomatic blurb.

The Vatican's note consists of six typewritten pages and is described as calm in tone and marking progress toward a settlement of the recent diplomatic incidents, although its contents are kept secret. It was said in government circles tonight that this note, which is the fourth sent by the Vatican to the Italian government, will be followed by exchanges of notes which may extend over a lengthy period of time before all controversial points are settled, if, in fact, they are ever settled.

Both Sides Want Peace.

Today's note is believed to indicate clearly that both sides want peace and that the Fascists have been embarrassed by the repercussions which resulted from the closing of the Catholic Action society, which the Vatican has exploited as far as possible to gather world sympathy. The expressions of sympathy sent to the pope, however, are not worth more than the cost of the cable tolls, declared the Fascist paper Tribuna today.

There were further signs of a practical modus vivendi being reached today and conversations leading to a settlement are taking place on the side between representatives of the Vatican and the Fascist government. These negotiations include Sig. Federzoni, president of the Italian senate.

Salesian Clubs Reopened.

Don Rinaldi, director of the Salesian order, today requested an audience by the pope. The purpose of his visit was to announce that the Salesian oratory circles of Turin, in Piedmont, which have 6,000 members, have been reopened. These circles are not connected directly with the Catholic Action society, but they were among the Catholic clubs closed by the Italian government.

There seemed to be some ground tonight to believe that a feature of the Italo-Vatican settlement will be the resignation of Count de Vecchi, Fascist ambassador to the Vatican, and his replacement by Sig. Scilosa.

The pontiff today conferred with Papal Nuncio Borgopcini Duca for three hours, and tonight he received Cardinal Gasparri, former Vatican secretary of state.

Six Arrested by U. S. Dry Agents in Three Raids

Federal dry agents arrested six persons yesterday and last night in prohibition raids. They visited the Capitol cafe at 5426 North Clark street and the Justice Park gardens, in Justice Park, last night, seizing two men and a quantity of beer and whisky in each place. Earlier the operatives found two stills at 557 East 43d street.

WHAT TEN-WORD SENTENCE CAN YOU MAKE USING ONLY THE WORDS IN TODAY'S ADS?

$1000 A WEEK IN CASH PRIZES

"GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

What Is a Good Time Charliegram?

A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice:

"Every time you buy something you help bring back prosperity."
"The time to stock up is when prices are low."
"Large savings can be made on nearly everything bought today."
"When business starts humming prices are bound to rise again."

Do you think you can make up a better Good Time Charliegram than any of these?—using only the words appearing in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Try your hand at it! Read the simple rules and start looking for your words now!

WHAT sentence of exactly ten words can you make up, using only the words which appear in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune?

Too little words—that's all you need to make up a Good Time Charliegram. Just pick the words out of any ads in today's Tribune except the Want Ads. Put them all together and they may spell one of the big cash prizes which the Tribune is paying!

Try it. It's loads of fun—just like a treasure hunt. Read the simple rules and start looking through the ads for the words now.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. The Chicago Tribune will pay 1,000.00 a week in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best and neatest complete sets of seven (7) original Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

2. A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice. The sentence must be made up of words taken from advertisements EXCEPT Classified or Want Ads, published in a single day's issue of the Chicago Tribune. To indicate where you get each word, simply write down the name of the advertiser following the word. Words are NOT to be taken from the Want Ads.

3. Not more than one word shall be taken from the advertising of any one store, company, or individual. If an advertiser has more than one advertisement in the same issue of the Tribune, only one word from such advertisements may be used in the same Good Time Charliegram. The same word may be used more than once, provided that it is taken from a different advertiser every time it is used.

4. The prizes for each week are as follows:

2nd Prize			100.00
Next 2 Prizes	$50.00	each	100.00
Next 4 Prizes	$25.00	each	100.00
Next 25 Prizes	$10.00	each	250.00
Next 40 Prizes	$ 5.00	each	200.00
73 weekly prizes totaling $1,000.00

5. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

6. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's entry separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. All entries in the Fourth Series must be received in the Tribune office before 5 P. M. on Wednesday, June 24, 1931.

7. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

8. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the handy blank supplied each day in the Tribune or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made to each tying contestant.

STORE OFFICIAL SAYS END SLUMP BY ADVERTISING

Tells of Sales Increases by Using Newspapers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—Advertising men of America thrashed out the economic problems confronting the nation here today and talked plainly and publicly of ways and means to better times. The consensus of economists, business men, and political leaders who spoke at the opening session of the Advertising Federation of America was that the way to restored prosperity lay in the joint cooperation of capital and labor and the awakening of the public by frank, straight from the shoulder advertising on a scale never before attempted.

KENNETH COLLINS

A message from President Hoover read at the luncheon in the ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania praised advertising as an economic force. Kenneth Collins, vice president of R. H. Macy & Co. and a widely sought lecturer on advertising, spoke frankly of "where advertising has failed."

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, told of the vital need for business and political leadership.

Roosevelt Among Speakers.

The political world was represented by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mayor James J. Walker. Business men spoke, and in the audience were such foreign advertising leaders as Sir Charles Higham of London, Andre Kaminker of Paris, and Dr. Ulrich E. Meisel of Germany.

The keynote to the advertising convention may be found in Mr. Collins' address: "The problem is not to talk constantly, but to do something."

Mr. Collins, who has been a teacher and lecturer as well as the executive of a great department store, caught the interest of the 1,000 or more delegates from the moment he began talking.

"Advertising," declared Mr. Collins, "in the last twenty months has had its greatest challenge—and advertising has failed. We have had almost two years of a most severe depression exceptionally aggravated by the panic of having vast stocks of raw materials, food, and money. The country is burdened with its own productivity. Every one sees this wealth of goods on the one hand, and the wealth of money on the other. Neither can be put lower.

An Abundance of Goods.

"On the one hand we have an overabundance of goods and overproduction of productive capacity in industry. On the other hand, we have a massive reservoir of inactive consumer purchasing ability in our banks. Between the two lies a frame of mind.

"That frame of mind is, without qualification, advertising's responsibility. Make no mistake about it, we have fallen down on the job. We have failed both to understand that frame of mind as it exists and we have failed to direct it into a buying mood.

"Of course, advertising men are not the only ones who have failed. When we decide that our problem is not to talk constantly, but to do something, then we will be able to devise some way of getting out of this present depression. And to get out of the depression simply means to get dollars into circulation.

Commodities Too Low.

"I personally believe that the prices of raw commodities are much too low. I feel that they cannot go substantially lower. We cannot continue indefinitely to sell at less than the cost of production. For the protection of those who produce raw materials prices must go up—and prices can rise rapidly the moment any sort of a buying campaign can be made effective.

"It needs more money to advertise in larger space, to tell seriously, dramatically, intelligently, what has happened to prices of raw commodities and finished goods, then spend the money. But the message must be told everywhere if we are to recover from the present economic dilemma.

"Visualize a massive store and picture millions of men and women passing that store, each clutching a five dollar bill—a bill which does not need to be saved, but which at the moment is passing that massive store on its way to the bank, where it will lie in sweet repose. Every one of those millions of people constitute the pointing finger of indictment of present day advertising.

Set Economic System.

"What have business men done about this situation? They have talked interminably, held conference after conference, discussed the soviet government, the capitalistic system, and everything in the world except the real fact—that they must go home from all these conferences to face the workaday world which is operating under a set economic system. The American laborer has taken it squarely on the chin in this period of depression, has stood up manfully, and apparently has more faith in the sound structure of this country than a lot of the gloomy leaders.

"These are the 'good old times.' You can buy your pork chops for 15 cents and your butter and eggs for 25 cents; you can buy a good straw hat for $1 and your wife can get a very presentable dress for under $10. It is our business to point out that this depression has made the pleasant things in life cheaper. The average price of all commodities is back to 1914 levels.

Insist Prices Are Too Low.

"The thing I am talking about can be done. It is being done. The affiliation of stores with which I am associated have all embarked dramatically on a series of merchandise presentations in which the plain facts have been told. We have printed the word "depression" in 72 point type. We have stated prices are too low and the public is catching on. The Macy affiliation of stores—widely separated geographically—has registered a large dollar increase in sales and an almost incredible increase in the number of transactions.

"At Macy's here last week the number of transactions was 42 per cent ahead of the same week last year. While the great leaders have wrangled and talked the housewives have spent their money. If this movement keeps up it is inevitable we shortly will find ourselves on the up grade."

Urge State to Advertise.

Gov. Roosevelt declared the government needs advertising. He advocated national, state, and city governments advertising their problems in the newspapers in the same manner that a manufacturer advertises his goods.

"The time," said Gov. Roosevelt in conclusion, "has come for the government to take a little leadership in the social and economic problems of our nation."

Dr. Frank spoke at length on the need for leadership in the business and political world.

Charles E. Murphy, president of the Advertising club of New York, welcomed the visiting delegates to the city. Gilbert I. Hodges, head of the Advertising federation, warned against further price cutting.

The convention will continue through Wednesday with another general luncheon on the final day.

NEW WABASH AVE. BRIDGE IS AWARDED PRIZE FOR BEAUTY

Selection of the new Wabash avenue bridge across the Chicago river as the most beautiful span costing more than $1,000,000 constructed in the United States and Canada during 1930 was announced yesterday by the American Institute of Steel Construction.

Bridge awards are made annually in behalf of the institute by a jury of engineers and architects. The 1930 jury held the Wabash avenue structure to be "a most pleasing solution of a most difficult bridge design problem."

City Bridge Engineer Thomas G. Pihfeldt, who has drawn plans for many of the city's bridges, designed the Wabash avenue span, which cost $1,750,000. It was fabricated by the American Bridge company.

In designing the bridge, Mr. Pihfeldt and his assistants overcame a particularly difficult problem when the government refused to permit the bridge pits to protrude beyond the dock lines to the extent that has been permitted at other locations because the bridge is adjacent to a bend in the river. As a result the bridge was placed diagonally to Wabash avenue.

The new Mid-Hudson bridge at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and the Montreal Harbor bridge at Montreal received honorable mention in the competition of designs for bridges costing more than $1,000,000.

Germany Sends Sharp Reply to Polish Protest

BERLIN, June 15.—(AP)—The government today sent a sharp reply to a Polish protest, filed last week against a demonstration by the Steelhelmets at Breslau on May 31. The note asserted that the Steelhelmets are an unofficial organization of private citizens and the government could not be held responsible for its acts.

$100,000 YACHT, WITH $300,000 RUM CARGO, IS SEIZED

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Coast guard forces seized the steam yacht Surf off Montauk Point, Long Island, early today, declaring it had a cargo of rum worth more than $300,000.

The yacht, with a prize crew on board, was brought to New York and anchored off the Statue of Liberty, where officials questioned the crew of thirty. Coast guard men said the seizure was one of the largest in recent years. The yacht is valued at $100,000.

Seize Another Worth $12,500.

New London, Conn., June 15.—(AP)—A coast guard patrol boat today seized the speed boat K-32845 of New York, carrying 250 sacks of liquor, in Block Island sound, after she had been halted by warning shots. She had a crew of two men. Officials valued her cargo at $12,500.

REPORTS FRANCE WATCHING NEW RULE IN CHICAGO

Mayor Cermak's election and his efforts to solve Chicago financial difficulties are attracting attention throughout France, Judge Frank M. Padden, who went to represent the mayor at the French colonial exposition, informed the latter yesterday in a letter.

"When I arrived I found the chief interest in Chicago centered around the change of mayors, with Al Capone next," he reported. "The name Cermak is known everywhere and it is surprising how the beauty of Chicago is becoming known.

"New York does not seem to interest people here as much as Chicago does. There will be many visitors, no doubt, from France to the Century of Progress exposition. The change of administration in Chicago has assured that. People everywhere are watching your efforts to bring Chicago back to solvency."

WE LIKE nothing better than to induce hard-to-convince smokers to switch to Camels for just one day.

For we know that after they have made a real test, it will be mighty hard to lure them away from this famous brand.

It's not easy to smoke parched-dry cigarettes once you have known the delights of perfectly conditioned Camels.

After inhaling the cool, soft fragrance of the Camel Blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos protected by the Humidor Pack, your throat protests against the bite and sting and harsh hotness that comes from crumbly, dry tobacco.

No matter where you pick them up, in any land, in any climate, Camels are the same fresh, factory-prime cigarettes.

For the Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane air-seals all the flavor in and keeps out weather, dust and germs.

This is no mere advertising story. It is a recitation of fact that has made the whole country conscious of a new superiority in Camels.

If you are hard to convince, won't you switch to Camels for just one day? Then leave them—if you can.

GIRL MART TRIAL OF PANTAGES IS IN FINAL STAGE

Three Other Los Angeles Defendants.

San Diego, Cal., June 15.—(AP)—The trial of Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, and three others on charges of conspiracy and contributing to the delinquency of a minor entered its final phase, arguments by counsel to the jury, late today.

The vaudeville millionaire's cross examination was completed in ten minutes. Jesse H. Shreve, prominent San Diego business man, called three witnesses before resting his defense.

Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl mart," rested their cases without calling a witness. No rebuttal testimony was presented by the prosecution.

Pantages was the principal defense witness. He told of his trip to San Diego last Oct. 30, declaring it was for business alone, and denied the charges against him.

The state rested its case on the testimony of three principal witnesses and a dozen others called to offer circumstantial evidence. Lydia Nitto, the star witness for the prosecution, related the occurances at a party at the El Cortez hotel and said she was paid $15 by Mrs. Day to be a partner for Pantages.

Miss Nitto testified she was 17 years old, but admitted on cross examination that she had signed an affidavit in which she gave her age as 22.

John P. Mills, wealthy real estate dealer and originally a defendant, testified for the state.

JUDGE ORDERS RETRACTION FROM GARAGE OWNERS

Superior Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday gave officials of a garage and of a garage owners' association forty-eight hours to retract a statement that he had issued an injunction against the collection of the city license tax on garages. He indicated that they would be cited for contempt of court if they failed to do so.

The concerns involved are the La Salle-Randolph Garage corporation and the United Bonded Garages, Inc. The latter association, the judge was informed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin H. Foss, sent out a letter soliciting members and stating that through its efforts, Judge Lindsay had issued the injunction against the license tax.

No injunction was issued, the city having agreed to suspend arrests of garages which have failed to pay the tax until a full hearing is had before Judge Lindsay.

Mrs. Helen Hulok, 1659 West 55th street, came to the aid of her husband, Frank, a real estate agent, in his suit for divorce, and admitted yesterday before Judge Robert F. Hulok was ordered to contribute to the support of their three children and to divide his six room apartment to provide his ex-wife with living quarters.

WOMAN IN PLOT TO HELP GIRLS ESCAPE KILLS DIXON GUARD

Dixon, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—Ell Davis, deputy and guard at Dixon state hospital, was shot through the heart near the gate of the hospital grounds last night when he attempted to stop Archie Blackwell, Nathan Boten, and Elizabeth Dunn all of St. Louis, who had kidnapped Cleo Long, 21, Negro, committed from Chicago, a cousin of Blackwell, and were trying to escape about midnight.

A posse of two hundred state police and city and county officers took up the search of the killers and this morning at 6:30 o'clock captured Moten, 23, and Elizabeth Dunn, 32, south of Sublette, Ill., where they had abandoned their car. New Way to Drive Out Body Poisons Without Laxatives!

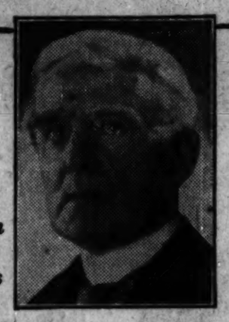
Physicians Praise Amazing New Relief for Tired, Run-down People

Remarkable Results Reported by Victims of Diabetes... Rheumatism ... High Blood Pressure Neuritis and Other Serious Ailments



TIRED, run-down people who catch cold easily, who lack pep and vitality are amazed at a wonderful health discovery. Instead of constant dosing with cathartics and laxatives, they have discovered a new way to eliminate the dangerous poisons that break down health and lower vitality.

Millions know that acid body poisons and wastes keep them from enjoying real health and good looks. But now doctors say that most people combat these poisons the wrong way. For these acid wastes—the same poisons that often cause and aggravate such serious common diseases as diabetes, high blood pressure, and arthritis—are in the blood. They cannot be reached by cathartics. They must be eliminated through the kidneys.

And now a wonderful new water—a mineral discovery—which physicians prescribe, is bringing back health and sparkle to victims of these poison wastes. It is called Sleepy Water, and many physicians describe it as a "kidney laxative." Two springs near Hot Springs, Arkansas, are the sole source of this water, which has a mineral content different from any other. Certain natural processes, which are not fully understood, cause Sleepy Water to contain certain proportions of chemicals and chemical combinations. Consequently its natural alkaline contents, which are different from any other spring water, act to neutralize and absorb the acid poisons. Meantime, by soothing and gently activating the kidneys, it speeds up elimination of body poisons.

Sufferers from such serious and supposedly incurable diseases as diabetes, high blood pressure, neuritis, and even Bright's disease and arthritis report amazing relief in an astoundingly short time. So quickly and gently does Sleepy Water bring results, that now you can make a wonderful test of it. You, yourself, can make this demonstration, showing in thirty minutes how Sleepy Water carries off poisons and purifies the blood. Just tear out and mail the coupon and find out how you can make this thirty-minute test, or phone Kedzie 1228, Chewaukla Mineral Springs Company, 3330 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

EDNA FERBER begins her great new novel "American Beauty" in July

"I've learned not to fret about my score . . ."

"WHEN we first moved here, I was sure my social life was going to be a failure. Everyone in the place was mad about golf. Even the grandmothers played. And I had always been such a dub at the game.

"Then I read Alex Morrison's article in the Ladies' Home Journal—and for the first time found out what was the matter with me. Tension! Every word in that article seemed to be aimed directly at me. I had let my score fret and worry me until my nerves and my disposition were a wreck. Of course I had been told to 'relax,' but this article showed me how. From the moment I began to do that, my game improved.

"My husband (who is very critical, and a splendid player) says the Journal's golf articles are great stuff. He was very much interested in Glenna Collett's article in May . . ."

In the July Ladies' Home Journal—a remarkable 3-part sport article—Diving by Aileen Riggin; Swimming by Martha Norelius; Tennis by John H. Doeg.

"and we're to be married in June!"

"...I'm the happiest girl in the world. And we're to be married in June!

"It seems natural to be asking you for advice about my trousseau, because I've really been brought up on the Ladies' Home Journal. When I was a baby, mother used to write to you and ask you how to feed me.

"Could you give me a complete list of what a moderate-sized trousseau should include? I expect to keep house in a city apartment, and to entertain a good deal. How many evening gowns should I have to start with? And how much house linen will I need? And will you tell me if colored sheets are considered in good taste?

"Also, I shall be so grateful if you will suggest a menu for the wedding reception . . . I want every detail of my wedding to be perfect."

We like to know that the babies of twenty years ago—the same ones whose diet and teething problems we helped to solve—are now writing to us about their marriage trousseaux.

In countless American families, the Journal today is forming, training the girls who will build the homes, rear the children, make the life of the future.

"He is shutting me out of his life . . ."

"NIGHT after night my husband shuts himself up with his work until long past midnight. It disturbs him to have me even sit in the room with him quietly reading or sewing. I can feel how intensely he wants to be alone.

"He used to talk over all his plans with me, was always frank and open about his affairs. What has changed him? Is it worry? Is it ambition? Is it some secret antagonism?

"I have read your answers to other women, and you show so much sympathy and common sense, I feel you can surely help me."

By his wise, constructive counsel, Dr. Karl Menninger is helping women everywhere to straighten out problems of family maladjustment.

MRS. A. M. CUDAHY, PACKER'S WIDOW, IS DEAD AT 79

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Madden Cudahy, 79, widow of Patrick Cudahy, founder of the village bearing his name and known internationally in the meat packing industry, died tonight in the family residence, 1857 North Prospect avenue.

She was preparing to leave for her summer home at Pine Lake two weeks ago when stricken with the fatal illness.

Mrs. Cudahy was born at Menomonee, Wis., where her family was prominent in affairs. Following her marriage she came to Milwaukee with her husbands and assisted him in his efforts which resulted in the establishment of Cudahy Brothers company, a meat packing concern, and, later, the founding of the city of Cudahy.

Move from Milwaukee.

Patrick Cudahy and his brother, John, were partners in the packing business. In the early '90's the city of Milwaukee, in which the business had grown to great proportions during many years, seemed on the brink of enacting an ordinance compelling removal of packing plants to locations outside its borders.

During the controversy the Cudahys made arrangements to transfer their packing operations to a location on the shores of Lake Michigan eight miles south of Milwaukee. Before the deal was consummated Milwaukee had withdrawn its objections to the packing plants. But the Cudahys had announced the project at the new site and carried it through.

Seven hundred acres of land were purchased. The packing plant occupied part of it and other manufacturing plants located in the neighborhood. Employés changed their residences and a city grew around the plant.

Family Carries On.

Patrick Cudahy died in 1919. The affairs he left have been carried on by the Patrick Cudahy Family company, which maintains an office at 925 East Wells street.

Surviving Mrs. Cudahy are six children, four daughters and two sons. Mrs. Josephine C. Hoyt, one of the daughters, lives at Shanghai, China. The other children, all of whom reside in Milwaukee, are Mrs. Elsie C. Beck, Mrs. Mary C. Dahlman, Mrs. Catherine C. Fernading, Michael F. Cudahy, and John Cudahy.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 10 a. m. at the Holy Rosary church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

M'KELVIE QUITS U. S. FARM BOARD; THIRD TO RETIRE

No Successor Chosen by Hoover.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Samuel R. McKelvie, wheat member of the federal farm board, retired from active service with that organization today and will return to his large live stock ranch in Nebraska.

Mr. McKelvie's resignation went forward to the White House some days ago, but has not yet been made public. According to Mr. McKelvie, presidential acceptance of the resignation is not necessary as his term ended today.

McKelvie's resignation marks the third time that the membership of the federal farm board has been disrupted during the last few months. Alexander Legge, former chairman, was the first to go. A few weeks ago Charles C. Teague, vice chairman of the board, retired. No successor has been selected as yet for Mr. McKelvie.

Leaves Body to Science.

Before his death Capron wrote a brief note, which was found in his coat pocket. It read:

"I dedicate my body to the service of medical research. Please insert a descriptive notice in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. There is enough money in my clothes to pay for same—R. J. Capron."

And he added a postscript, which seemed to reveal his feelings after reading the letter from his son. He wrote:

Body Found By Girls.

The body was found at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by two girls, Edith Wessender and Grace Strasburg, both of 427 Garfield avenue. Playing tennis on the turf courts of the park, near Grant's monument, one of the girls knocked a ball into the shrubbery. Retrieving it, she came upon the figure of Capron on a bench, the gun lying at the feet, with a bullet wound in his right temple. He had been dead only a short time according to officials from the coroner's office.

The body was taken to Scanlan's undertaking rooms, 2335 North Clark street. In addition to the letters and money found in the clothing were only a penknife, pocket comb, an ignition key, and tire key for an automobile.

The weapon, an old type .32 caliber revolver, had been carried by Capron in an old fashioned leather holster. His clothing was new and expensive and had been purchased in Louisville, Ky., New York and Chicago. He had been in life a straight, sturdy type of man of military bearing.

Movements Are Traced.

Delving into his actions during the last few days, investigators found that he registered at Moore's hotel, Chicago Heights, about two weeks ago, not giving an address. He attended the races at Washington Park each day and confided once that he was pinning his last hopes on making a "killing."

Residents at the hotel said he had been a silent guest, speaking to few and keeping to himself. Last Friday he checked out of the hotel and came to Chicago, registering at the Fort Dearborn hotel. He had no luggage.

The father had followed faithfully his son's suggestion that "medicine" might be a good method of destroying himself. In his clothing was found a bottle of poison, the seal broken. At the last moment he apparently decided upon shooting himself instead.

BRITISH CABINET BEATEN BY TORY COUP ON LAND TAX

Bolses to Quit and Wins on Second Vote.

LONDON, June 15.—(AP)—The Labor government was defeated today in a surprise vote on a minor Conservative amendment to the land tax bill, but quickly recovered and reestablished its control of the house of commons by a slim majority of 14.

The defeat, administered by a vote of 232 to 208, came when many Labor and Liberal benches were empty. The government, refusing to look upon the for resignation, its forces and, while announced the victory to throngs of Conservative landowners, the counter-blow was delivered. By a vote of 241 to 225, the government forced through closure on debate.

Face Final Vote Today.

The temporary defeat was looked on as embarrassing, if not politically serious, coming as it did on the eve of a vital vote tomorrow on a Liberal amendment to the finance bill.

It was brought about by the fact that many Liberals were absent from the house at an important meeting looking toward the solution of the major crisis which has featured British politics for a week and which tomorrow night may threaten the very existence of the MacDonald régime.

Compromise negotiations, aimed at either securing the Liberal support of the Labor government, have been under way during the week-end. They continued tonight. While the general belief was that the crisis would not come to a head, there was no authoritative word to this effect from Downingster.

Government Caught in Hole.

It was while Liberals and Laborites were busy trying to work out a compromise on the proposed Liberal amendment to Chancellor Philip Snowden's land tax bill that the Conservatives moved for their unexpected vote as another phase of the issue and caught the government with insufficient supporters.

Cries of "resign" rang out from Conservative ranks when the government was revealed in a minority of 24, but when Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, took the customary course and asked Prime Minister MacDonald what his plans were, the prime minister declared he would accept the Conservative amendment provisionally, inasmuch as the commons would have an opportunity to accept it again during later stages of the bill. Mr. MacDonald added that the amendment apparently did not change the substance of the government measure.

The Conservative amendment that brought about the defeat provides that the cultivation value of any unit of land should be exempt from the proposed land tax, and not merely the cultivation value of agricultural land. The proposed tax is a penny a pound on capital value.

BRAZIL TO CLAIM 2 NEW ISLANDS IN SOUTH ATLANTIC

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, June 15.—(AP)—The Brazilian government today ordered a cruiser northward to place the country's flag on two new islands in the middle of the south Atlantic ocean far from St. Paul's Rocks. The islands were reported Saturday by the captain of the British steamer Lobelia. He gave their position as 29.30 west latitude, 0.50 north longitude, off the Brazilian coast.

There is a British cruiser at Georgetown, slightly farther from the islands than Rio de Janeiro. It was thought possible that the French also might be interested in claiming the new land from Cayenne in view of the French mail service from Europe to Brazil.

ALCOCK BLAMES OWN ERROR FOR O. K. ON TAG DAY

Says He Believed Flower Sale Legal.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock explained yesterday to Ald. Sheldon W. Govier [9th] that he, Alcock, had been mistaken as to the law in issuing an order to his department not to interfere with the Zionist tag day on Sunday.

Ald. Govier, chairman of the subcommittee on tag days, sought an explanation from the chief as to why the tag day was allowed, in the face of the ordinance which, to protect the public from frequent tag selling campaigns, confines them to four days a year.

"Judge Harry M. Fisher, who is the head of the organizations which sold carnations on the street yesterday, called me up and told me that he understood the police were planning to stop the sales," the chief said.

"I told him that flower selling did not constitute a tag day, and that the police had no right to interfere. Then I sent out the order prohibiting interference."

"But the ordinance specifically states that flower selling is a tag day," protested the alderman.

After Govier had pointed out the section of the city code, which bore him out, the acting commissioner said that any such affairs will be forbidden in the future unless the promoters obtain the necessary special permission of the city council.

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, June 15.—When the Red Star Liner Westernland stopped off Plymouth today to take on a pilot, a forty-five-foot whale dropped off the bow. Exactly when the whale was impaled is unknown, but Capt. J. H. Doughty said that last Thursday the Westernland passed through a school of whales. Two plunged near the boat, and one suddenly dived directly in the ship's course. No shock of impact was felt and it was not until the ship arrived in England that the impaled whale was discovered a few feet below the water line.

SILESIAN REVOLT FETE REVEALS A UNITED POLAND

German Rule Failed to Dim Nationalism.

BY M. M. NOWINSKI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, June 15.—The huge celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Upper Silesian insurrection, which brought that district into Poland, makes it clear that despite 600 years of German rule, during which everything was done to make Upper Silesia German, the entire country remained Polish.

Just as the Silesians ten years ago under the patriot Wojciech Korfanty rose against the Germans to start the third Upper Silesian insurrection, in the celebration of their union with Poland they turned out by the thousands to commemorate the event.

Cause of Revolution.

The immediate cause of the revolt, it is said here, was the obtaining of confidential information that in spite of the favorable turn of the plebiscite for Poland, the allied powers decided to divide Upper Silesia in a manner regarded as unfavorable to the Polish cause.

The recent talk of German statesmen in favor of the reopening of the corridor question and the revision of the Polish frontiers has met with a strong response in Poland, and on the question of maintenance of the status quo all Polish political parties are united.

Their stand has been indorsed by the celebration, which surpassed even the expectations of the most optimistic Polish patriot. From the most remote corners of Poland delegations arrived for the event, and Katowice in one day doubled its population. Thousands upon thousands crowded into the narrow streets of the mining capital, and the bulk of these came from Upper Silesia.

The people of Upper Silesia, where conditions are far from favorable, due to the concentration of laboring classes in a small area and the keen foreign competition with their industry, have demonstrated that despite conditions they are strongly nationalist. But their leaders have said that they have a large measure of compensation in the present security of their Polish language and nationality. It is also maintained that they lived too long under German rule not to realize what a change of frontier would mean.

In the ten years since the insurrection a great change has taken place. Where a few years ago only German was heard, only Polish is now spoken. Six hundred years of German colonization have vanished. It is true that the cities have a German aspect and that the shops and restaurants but the people are all Poles.

In the schools, for instance, a remarkable change has taken place since the days of German domination. Up to 1922 there was not a single school where the Polish language was official. It was necessary to create everything anew. By 1926 great progress had been made. In 1926-'27 the total number of children entering the schools of Upper Silesia was 195,409. Of these, 159,254 entered Polish schools and 36,115 the German minority schools set up according to the Geneva convention of 1922. In 1929-'30 172,825 entered Polish schools and 20,555 still went to the German schools, and just a few days ago figures for 1930-'31 gave 183,063 in the Polish schools and 19,698 in the German.

884,105 Germans in Poland.

According to Polish statistics, the number of Germans in Upper Silesia is 257,885 out of a total population of 1,265,671. In all Poland the number of Germans is 884,105. The number of Poles in Germany is 985,283. The German minority in Poland has at its disposal 813 schools, and granting that the number of children of school age is normally 15.03 per cent of the population, there are 105,361 children in 813 schools for Germans in Poland. Against this there are only 81 schools for Poles in Germany, serving the needs of 116,000 Polish children. Thus 71.8 per cent of the German children in Poland are educated in their mother tongue, while only 1.8 per cent of the it would mean to them if the frontier should be changed again.

ANNA PAVLOWA'S $300,000 ESTATE GOES TO HUSBAND

New York, June 15.—Special.—Mme. Anna Pavlowa, dancer, left an estate estimated at between $300,000 and $350,000. Her husband's attorney obtained ancillary letters of administration today from Surrogate James A. Foley.

The lawyer was appointed administrator of the dancer's New York assets, which he said consisted of not more than $200,000 in cash, stocks, and bonds of domestic and foreign corporations now deposited in various banks here.

The husband, Victor Dandré, who was Mme. Pavlowa's accompanist and who lives at Hampstead, Middlesex, England, is the sole heir to the estate, the dancer having left no will.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

ANNA A. GORDON, W. C. T. U. LEADER, DEAD AT AGE OF 78

Frances Willard's Aid in Temperance Work.

Miss Anna Adams Gordon, 78 years old, widely known temperance worker and close friend of the late Frances E. Willard, died yesterday in a sanitarium in Castile, N. Y., where she went from her Evanston home two months ago to rest. Funeral services will be in Castile tomorrow afternoon. Although the place of burial was not decided upon, officials of the Women's Christian Temperance union in Evanston said it was unlikely that the body would be brought here.

Miss Gordon, former president of the national W. C. T. U. and until a week before her death president of the world's W. C. T. U., which she helped Miss Willard to organize, was described by associates as a "quiet little woman, retiring rather than militant."

Meets Frances Willard.

She began her temperance work in the late seventies. From her home in Auburndale, Mass., Miss Gordon went over to Boston to attend a series of meetings conducted by Miss Willard. One night there was no organist to accompany the singing and when volunteers were called for Miss Gordon stepped up and shyly offered her services. Miss Willard liked the young woman so well that she hired her as her private secretary, which post she retained until Miss Willard's death in 1898.

Miss Gordon came to Evanston with Miss Willard and lived in the famous W. C. T. U. headquarters, "Rest Cottage," 1728 Chicago avenue, until she went east for her health recently. At the time of her death more than 100 members of the executive committee of the National W. C. T. U., who met last week at Niagara Falls, were in Castile, where they went to visit their stricken leader.

A Real Rest Cottage.

"Rest Cottage" was, in reality, just that to the two women who spent a great part of their time traveling in every state in the union, organizing chapters of W. C. T. U. Miss Gordon meanwhile played the organ in her leisure time and composed the "Marching Songs" and many others sung by Sunday school pupils of a past generation.

After Frances Willard's death Miss Gordon became vice president of the national W. C. T. U., succeeding to the presidency in 1914, which post she held until 1925, when she retired. She was then elected president of the world's W. C. T. U., and last week sent the delegates meeting in Toronto a message announcing her retirement.

During the war she organized a petition for national prohibition, which was presented to the senate with signatures of 10,000,000 American women attached. While president she also organized a fiftieth anniversary campaign, raising a million dollars and a million members in one year.

She is survived by a sister, Elizabeth, of the Evanston address.

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—Petition for a stay of execution and a writ of error in the case of John Preston, Chicago slayer who is under sentence to die Friday, was filed today with the Supreme court. Preston was sentenced to death in December, 1929, for the murder of Agnes Johnston, Chicago stenographer, who was found strangled on a Du Page county road in October of that year.

Sturdy Novel Takes Cape Cod for Its Start

This Carries Painter to the Coast of France.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Mary E. Waller, the author of "The Cod Curve" of "Lympus" which reached its third hundred thousand in 1929, has not written a book for several years. "The Windmill on the Dune" [Little, Brown & Co.] will, therefore, be of special interest to her wide audience.

Miss Waller was born in Boston and began writing in 1903. For a while she managed and owned a school for girls in Chicago, but sold it after five years. She has spent a great deal of her life in Europe and this novel reflects a rich harvest of impressions and observations garnered with the years.

"The Windmill on the Dune" is a fine, outstanding sort of book of the old school. It glories it verges on sentimentality, escaping only because of the real interest the reader feels for all its characters. The first part of the story, describing the boyhood of Michel Calvarin is, I think, by far the most appealing and beautifully written portion of the novel. Every one, too, who has Cape Cod will adore these chapters for the salty tang of the air, the smell of the flats, the color of the sky and sea are in them and through the warp and woof of the pattern of the life of this boy whose father was a sea captain and whose friends were all natives of the cape.

The low built, sturdy houses, the cranberry bogs, the sun on the sand, the running of the tides . . . everything that makes that section of the New England coast beloved is here, and Michel is such an appealing little chap. Deserted by his French mother, who runs away with a foreigner, he is brought up by Susan, his father's cousin, and in turn helps to bring up his only brother, Pennryn. He has two passions: painting pictures and sailing his dory, the Seth. K. Calvarin. And he almost wrecks himself over each.

"The Windmill on the Dune" is the picture of Michel's life, a study in character. At first, engrossed only in his painting, he marries, but gives himself over to his art than to his wife. Then, through a terrific shock, he is cut off from everything he had known and lives for years in France, along the coast, painting as he used to do on the Cape and gradually assuming a new set of values. What the shock is and what the strange complications toward the end of the story I'll leave to the reader.

But to Michel, himself, the character of Susan stands beautifully limned against the rugged background of sea and sky. A daughter of the New England scene, she is the spirit of many a woman most readers will recall. We all know those fine, quiet, self-controlled souls who go through life serving others first, themselves last, giving their physical strength and their mental companionship to their family and to all the people near who need help and sympathy.

Women like Susan are as much a part of the rockbound coast and of the mountains as are the outcropping granite and the sandy dunes. There is something elemental and eternal about them. They have in some dry wit, complete understanding of the frailties of mankind and penetrative imagination at sixty-one that they had at sixteen. They are old, but they don't age. If you've never met a Susan, read "The Windmill on the Dune."

Then there is Pennaryn Chelworth who was born on the sea and whose life it made others say it had "suited" him. He was charming, clever like his mother. His same joie de vivre found expression in his smile, his eyes, his every movement." And with it went his mother's decidedly vacillating sense of honor.

The stern, dynamic figure of Capt. Seth looms large among the characters in the book. A man capable of dying for his principles, he was never demonstrative and was more feared than loved by his children.

How shadowy and romantic are the children Giroden and her little son, whom Michel meets in France during the middle years of his life and who help him not to be "so purblind." Michel adopts the child when the mother dies and takes him back to the Cape.

The story is put together in short chapters, the entries in a journal which is written in the first person. The device gives it a strong feeling of intimacy. It is the sort of human document book that will win thousands of readers, but more than that it is the extremely sensitive and artistic piece of work that will achieve a permanent appreciation.

I enjoy "A Windmill on the Dune."

Good Morning!

Individual performances are the saving grace of this production; and one must accord sincere admiration to Miss Marion Davies for the generous manner in which she permits her leading man, Mr. Leslie Howard, and a youth named Kent Douglas, to capture and wear the acting honors. It is as if she said to them:

"I know that this sort of part isn't the thing I do best, but you boys have a chance to make touchdowns. So, good luck to you, and I'll give you all the help I can!"

I have liked Miss Davies far better as an actress in other pictures, but never so much as a person. She could easily have "hogged" lines and situations, but never once does she do so. May we see her soon in a story that provides play for her sparkling comedy sense and gift of mimicry!

"Five and Ten" is adapted from Fannie Hurst's tale of the small town family who attain wealth through the "five and dime" chain store route and go to New York. Here father breaks into big business, and his wife, daughter and son try to crash the gates of society. Dad, immersed in his affairs, gets along all right. But Mother, Jennifer and Avery have different, and heart-breaking experiences. Mother is consistently snubbed. The young folks manage, through generous contributions to enterprises in which the youthful élite are interested, to be seen here and there, but they are always outsiders—never "one of the gang."

Loneliness makes Mother the prey of a male gold-digger. Jennifer falls desperately in love with a brilliant young architect (Leslie Howard) engaged to a girl of the creme de la creme. Avery, a sensitive, home-loving, mother-worshipping boy, becomes pitifully bewildered and unhappy. An untoward occurrence turns his confusion into horror—and terror of life. The tragedy of his escape brings them all to their senses.

Leslie Howard's superb performance constantly eggs the production on, and, again and again, keeps it from falling by the wayside. He is poised, polished, alert, intuitive and always interesting. Kent Douglas as Avery gives a searchingly appealing portrayal.

As for Irene Rich and Richard Bennett, they, like Miss Davies, are not too happily cast. Mr. Bennett plays other rôles far better than that of the absorbed business man, and Miss Rich is not as believable a Mrs. Rarick as, say, Dorothy Peterson, Emma Dunn or Louise Dresser would have been. Minor impersonations are adequately enough handled.

Some of the lines are splendid. Photography, sound, sets and costumes are satisfactory. Direction is spotty.

The picture just isn't convincing. But its title and its star will make it "good box office."

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 15.—[Special.]—There's an old and rigid Hollywood formula about one syllable box office names for cowboy actors, and even a performer with a following and an experienced name found himself up against it this week. George Duryea was cast for westerns by Pathe, but got the contract on condition he submit to an operation on his perfectly good name. George agreed and from now on will be known in films as Tom Keene.

"It's a much better name for a cowboy," the studio explained. "Imagine some fellow out on a ranch trying to pronounce Duryea."

George Duryea is the young fellow whom Cecil DeMille brought to the screen to play the male lead in "Godless Girl." He originally was on the stage in New York and Los Angeles in "White Cargo" and "Abie's Irish Rose."

Rex Bell, Clara Bow's fellah, Dick Talmadge and Broncho Billy Anderson, are other examples of actors who had to shift gears from their christened names to new ones, in order to please the cowboy film customers. Broncho Billy, by the way, was really named Aaronson and although this film pioneer has long been out of the Hollywood focus, he never quit his first and greatest love, the horse, which originally drew his into pictures.

Two hundred persons, including Helen Twelvetrees, Ricardo Cortez, John Garry, Director Tay Garnett, fifty extras, boat crews, and mechanical crews, went from Hollywood to the Isthmus at the north neck of Catalina Island yesterday. They will make location shots for "Mad Marriage" all week, many of the scenes aboard the schooner yacht Gloria Dalton.

Robert Williams who came to Hollywood to play his old stage rôle opposite Ina Claire in "Rebound" in the talkie version of the same, with Ina, now is cast with Ann Harding for "Devotion," on which Pathé is lavishing much money.

N. U. Football Hero and Co-ed Reveal Marriage

Wade Woodworth, guard of Northwestern university's football team, and Miss Lucille McCutchan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome R. McCutchan of 544 Michigan avenue, Evanston, were married last Nov. 28. This was revealed yesterday on the graduation of Miss McCutchan from the university. The marriage was performed at Troy, Mo., as the couple were en route to St. Louis for a visit during the Thanksgiving holiday. Woodworth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Woodworth of 602 Lake street, Evanston. He has several hours of work to complete before he receives a degree.

Camp Opening for Children at Algonquin

First Group to Arrive There Late Today.

From now on it's the "good old summertime" at Camp Algonquin. There'll be a hot time this afternoon in the Northwestern station as the first consignment of underprivileged youngsters from the city's byways set forth on the great adventure, for the green hills and the shade trees, the open hearth and the tempting fare at the vacation haven forty miles northwest, on the Fox river.

Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, will be waiting at the station at Algonquin about sunset, when the original batch of her 1931 guests troop down from the passenger coaches many of them will have ridden for the first time. Cars will be waiting for the brief ride to the camp, a mile and a half away. Moreover, the welcome mat has been spread, and a heartening lunch will be awaiting them on their arrival there.

Transportation for the children is provided this year, as in previous seasons, by the Chicago and North Western railway. Every two weeks hereafter during the summer, another group of mothers and children from the poorer quarters of Chicago will depart for the camp, and those who have completed their alloted time will be returned to their homes, stronger and healthier and far better able to withstand the summer's onslaught.

This year more than ever, Camp Algonquin will be called upon to do its best to coax roses back into pale cheeks and red blood into the veins of the mothers and children from homes most affected by the past winter's depression. Where daily bread is so perpetually a matter for struggle and frequent failure, the unusually hard winter has inevitably left dire traces in the physical condition of these needy ones.

You can help to send more mothers and more children for the precious two weeks allowed them at the camp. Your check will be most welcome, and if addressed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, will be acknowledged in these columns, and better still, in the hearts of those who go to camp.

FRIEND'S PAPER TELLS SCENES, WORDS AS GEO. WASHINGTON DIED

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 15.—(AP)—The original manuscript by Tobias Lear, steward of Mount Vernon, describing the last illness and death of George Washington, is in the William L. Clements library of American history at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Randolph G. Adams, custodian of the library, says another copy, also by Lear, may exist, but if so its location is unknown.

Tobias Lear was Washington's faithful friend and employé. He stayed beside the general's deathbed and noted his last words. His account is one of the rare items of Washington housed in the library, and facsimiles of it may be printed for distribution in connection with the Washington bicentennial next year.

The manuscript states that on Thursday, Dec. 12, 1799, "the general" rode out on his farms. During the afternoon rain, snow and hail fell. Washington complained to Lear of a sore throat that evening. The following day was stormy, but Washington went out to mark trees between the house and the river which were to be cut down "for improvement of that spot." "The general" became seriously ill "about 2 or 3 o'clock Saturday morning" and died about 10 p. m.

Three physicians were called to care for the dying statesman. He was unable to swallow a mixture of molasses, vinegar, and butter. Bleeding was resorted to without giving relief from a sense of choking. A cantharides "blister" was applied to Washington's throat, and a sage tea and vinegar gargle was tried.

Lear quotes Washington as saying, "I die hard . . . die hard, but I am not afraid to go. I believed, from my first attack, that I should not survive it. My breath cannot last long."

Alone with the statesman, Lear was thanked for his devotion to a dying man. To his protests that it was nothing, Washington said, "Well, it is a debt we must pay each other, and I hope, when you want aid of this kind, you will find it."

Just before he died Washington struggled to speak.

"I am just going," he said. "Have me decently buried, and do not let my body be put in the vault in less than two days after I am dead . . .

"Do you understand me? . . .

"'Tis well."

Largest Class in Its History Gets Diplomas.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A faulty system of distribution, which was not adjusted to a scientific system of production was responsible for unemployment and other present industrial maladies, At least so a graduating class of 1,530 was told yesterday morning at Northwestern university. Rufus C. Dawes, president of the 1933 World's Fair, delivered the address at the seventy-third annual commencement in Patten gymnasium.

"Our system of credit is a part of this system of distribution," Mr. Dawes said, "and hunger prevailed only in those places where the credit system broke down."

"Whatever policies may be adopted, I feel certain that they will not be based upon the mistaken idea that modern systems of production produce unemployment," Mr. Dawes added, "nor favor placing upon the present system restrictions designed to check its growth or change its course."

Mr. Dawes deplored the "injudicious laws" which, as much as natural conditions, have brought distress to the oil industry.

"It is not reasonable," he declared, "to retain unaltered those laws designed to prevent the creation of trusts when the enforcement of them seems actually to stimulate the formation of great mergers."

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Mr. Dawes as "an efficient leader who has contributed largely to the life of the community, of the state and of the nation."

President Walter Dill Scott conferred degrees upon the largest graduating class the university has had since the doors of old college were opened in the fall of 1855 to admit the first 10 students.

Others upon whom honorary degrees were conferred were:

Doctor of science upon Dr. Isaac Arthur Abt, member of the medical faculty of Northwestern university since 1897, with the exception of six years at Rush Medical college.

Doctor of literature on Carl Sandburg, Chicago poet, and author of "Abraham Lincoln, the Prairie Years."

Doctor of divinity on Claudius B. Spencer, Kansas City, editor of the Central Christian Advocate.

Doctor of laws on Charles Edgar Woodward, a judge of the United states District court here.

Those from the Chicago area who graduated with highest distinction and their degrees are:

Thirteen seniors, members of the Northwestern naval unit of the R. O. T. C., received reserve commissions in the United States navy. Twenty-nine received reserve commissions in the army.

Eight hundred and sixty-seven degrees will be awarded today at the 164th convocation of the University of Chicago in University chapel. Higher degrees will be conferred on 340 at 11 o'clock this morning and a record number of bachelor's degrees, 527, will be awarded at 3 o'clock this afternoon. President Robert M. JANE ADDAMS, BACK AT ROCKFORD, TALKS AS GRAD TO STUDENTS

Rockford, Ill., June 15.—Jane Addams, founder of Hull house, Chicago, who fifty years ago took her diploma from Rockford college, this afternoon addressed the sixty-four graduates of the class of 1931.

Commencement exercises were held in Emmanuel Episcopal church, which was crowded to the last bit of available standing space.

Miss Addams compared the responsibilities facing the graduates of '31 with those that faced the seventeen young women of her class of '81, "which must sound positively prehistoric to you."

Commenting on social reform in the last half century, Miss Addams spoke with gentle irony.

"It's easy to say that you can make people good by law," she declared. "It's easy for people in the south to take liquor away from the Negro for his good, and for the people in the north to take liquor away from the immigrant laborer for his good; and the curious result is this—a law being passed by people who are quite conscientious in looking after other people, and are quite sure that they themselves don't need looking after."

Baptist Editor Tells Plight of Jobless Pastors

While Sect Also Has Some Vacant Churches.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Unemployment is now a critical problem among clergymen in a number of Protestant denominations. Baptist pastors of Chicago yesterday faced this situation in their regular ministers' meeting at Immanuel Baptist church. They heard an address by Dr. D. U. McGuire, an editor of The Baptist, an official publication of the northern Baptist convention.

Dr. McGuire declared that approximately 14,000 out of the 32,000 Baptist ministers of the country are out of work. In addition to that number, 1,000 more are seeking new fields, due to reduced salaries resulting from economic depression. The Baptist editor asserted the current conditions have resulted in uneasiness among local church leaders as to their ability to maintain normal budgets.

While nearly half of the ministers of the Baptist denomination are without churches, yet Dr. McGuire pointed out that there still are more churches than ministers. The total number of churches in the denomination, Dr. McGuire said, is 32,176. This means that nearly half of all the Baptist churches of the country are without pastors.

Much of the difficulty, Dr. McGuire declared, is due to the lack of machinery for connecting unemployed pastors with pastorless churches. While he said no figures on ministerial unemployment from other communions are available, yet the same problem has struck other denominations. He mentioned the Presbyterian church, which recently discussed the situation at its general assembly at Pittsburgh.

At the Pittsburgh meeting definite steps were taken to curtail ordinations by raising educational standards. The Baptist pastors yesterday hinted that the traditional method of ordaining Baptist ministers is defective. In that church any congregation may ordain ministers as frequently as it desires.

The Rev. Dr. M. P. Boynton, pastor of the Woodlawn Baptist church, declared that it would be possible to leave undisturbed the present freedom enjoyed by individual churches and at the same time limit the number of ordinations. This, he said, could be accomplished by changing provisions of the pension system to exclude poorly prepared ministers.

Schumann-Heink, at 70, Finds Life Is Good, Would Be 80

Los Angeles, June 15.—(AP)—Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink reached 70 today, but she will go on singing.

"A long life, yes," she said, "but I hope I will be 80, and even more than that.

"Retire? Never. Not Schumann-Heink. I pray the good God that I may sing as long as I have life, and that my singing may help make other people happy like I am."

She still earns, with her vocal instruction and radio broadcasts, from $4,000 to $6,000 a month.

"But money is only for making my dear ones happy. My granddaughter Zelda wants to be an actress. So she goes to New York tonight and I will put her in a fine school. There must be one more Schumann artiste, hein?"

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, 18 year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel, a man of great charm but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical aunt, the Comtesse de Castelmauren.

Iris planned to divorce Marcel and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood and his friend, Tommy Rostetter, conduct a private search for Clare.

Iris moves to her aunt's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have reformed. Alan meets Marcel and recalls having seen him at Le Touquet, hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. That night Alan sees Marcel with Susanne Marly, an actress.

A letter is sent to Iris, stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay the sum asked if Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled. Marcel calls on Alan. That night an attempt is made to asphyxiate Alan. He moves to Tommy's apartment.

Marcel sent flowers to Iris the night Clare vanished. From Iris's description of the man who delivered them Alan recognizes him as de Bertincourt's companion in Le Touquet. Marcel, who is known to be heavily in debt, is suspected as the instigator of the kidnaping, with the couple, known as Yetta and Pietro, his partners in crime, the motive being the ransom. Alan and Tommy make an unsuccessful search for the couple, but learn that they have a half-witted son. Tommy sees Marcel leaving Susanne Marly's home at the hour scheduled for him to deliver the ransom. Alan calls on Iris and learns Marcel has not returned home. Marcel arrives shortly after, badly beaten up, and declares he was robbed by the kidnapers.

INSTALLMENT I.

A HORRID DREAD.

When the group had dispersed Charnwood joined Iris at the foot of the stairs. Her eyes were narrowed, preoccupied.

"Wait in the study," she said quietly. "I have something I must attend to."

"May I use the telephone?"

"Certainly—it is in the long gallery there."

She went resolutely up the steps, leaving him to get through as quickly as possible to Tommy and acquaint him with the new event.

An astonished whistle greeted his announcement.

"It's a lie, of course. But what is this shamming intended to cover up?"

"I don't know. "He's been roughly handled, shaken to bits. Almost I could believe that we are a mile out in our calculations, that we've misjudged him—that is, if we didn't know about last night. Still, I want you to go with me to the commissariat in a quarter of an hour's time. Can you be ready?"

"You'll find me at the nearest corner. I've made one small discovery since you left—not much, but it may help us. No, better not discuss it now."

A little later Iris stole down the servants' stairway to the octagonal room and found Charnwood tensely expectant.

"I hid in my aunt's dressing room and listened," she informed him dispassionately. "Unfortunately there wasn't much to learn. Marcel has broken down and is weeping hysterically, always protesting he is not to blame for what happened. He says it was the kidnapers who held him up, that they swore horribly, declaring we'd betrayed them by having the woods watched. I don't understand—and worse, I don't know whether to believe him or not."

A sickening qualm seized Charnwood as he thought of his own ill starred venture. Was it really he who had precipitated this debacle?

"At all events they have got the money."

"But they have not sent Clare home. Don't you see what that probably means?"

She swayed slightly and put her hand over her eyes. In that moment he resolved, whatever shame it cost him, to tell her the whole truth, hoping by desperate measures to lift some portion of the horrid dread from her spirit.

"I am going to give you a nasty shock," he said firmly. "But anything is better than what you are enduring. The fact is, your husband's story has one vital flaw in it. He could not have been attacked at the time he states, for the simple reason that he was seen an hour later, quite unharmed, less than half a mile from this house."

"You might have been killed!" "But how could any one know you were there."

She started, the pupils of her eyes contracting. "What do you mean?" she whispered.

"At a quarter past one Tommy Rostetter ran into him coming out of his former flat, now let to Suzanne Marly."

She sat perfectly still. All her wavering confidence had collapsed beneath the blow. He hurried on, anxious to get it over.

"As to the rest, it is partly true. Obviously he has been hurt; the money may have been stolen. There was some one watching in the woods, for I was there myself, from 10 o'clock on."

"You?" She drew in her breath.

"Yes, I. It may have been wrong; I can only say I acted from the best motives. Tommy and I have had reason to believe that your husband was playing an underhand part in this, and we took the opportunity of making sure. Tommy waited at the Porte d'Orleans, and can swear de Bertincourt never turned up. Meanwhile some one—I am not prepared to say who—fired on me. Look, this will show you——" and he displayed the bullet hole in his hat.

"You might have been killed! But how could any one know you were there?"

"It has been known all along that I was a dangerous element. Listen, there is another thing I must tell you——"

He related everything—the circumstances of the false telegram, the attempt to murder him by gas. She sat frozen with horror, only half comprehending what he said.

"I can't take this in. You are sure? But of course—please don't think me stupid! You mean they have really schemed to get rid of you?"

"Without any doubt. Moreover, there is one question you can answer which will clear the whole thing up. Think carefully. Who in this household had access to the telegram I sent you by pneumatique? Only by means of that could the information be obtained which made the fabrication of the other message possible."

"But no one saw it! I have it still. That is—O!" She stopped, evidently recalling something which threw a hideous light on the situation. "Marcel," she whispered with stiff lips. "The morning the anonymous letter arrived—he came into my room, your note lay on the table. I remember now, how he became suddenly faint and I left him there alone to recover."

He nodded. "I thought so. There, don't distress yourself. I merely mention this to prove to you that Clare cannot be in any real danger, since your husband must be at the bottom of the plot. If she is not here now, it is because her actual captors are for some reason afraid to let her go, but they can't hold on to her much longer—they daren't risk discovery. I think, however, we ought to call on the police, only we must make a complete statement. I have your full permission to act?"

She was incapable of attending. "If Marcel has done this," she said in a low voice, "I mean to kill him."

"Iris, listen to me!" he exclaimed, gripped by an awful fear. "No, no, look me in the eyes! Promise absolutely not to reveal one word of what I have told you, and not to let your husband suspect that you know. Don't you see that if he guesses he will do anything in his power to protect himself from exposure?"

She gazed dumbly at him, still obsessed by her paroxysm of hatred.

"It is Clare's safety I am thinking of. The creatures who are doing this will certainly resort to violence rather than be caught. You simply must grasp that. Now do you promise?"

His warning seemed to have sunk home. She acquiesced with a convulsive shudder.

"Good—I trust you. Now, find out whether or not he intends leaving the house. Don't see him, send a message."

She obeyed, returning to say that de Bertincourt was in bed, being looked after by the doctor. Charnwood felt relieved. For the time being, at least, the man was safely anchored. He bade Iris a hasty good-by and hurried forth to find Tommy.

"By Jove, it looks rum!" exclaimed the latter a moment later as he steered his small car through the narrow street. "If I hadn't actually seen the fellow—but there, I did see him, so there's no argument. You think he's ready to funk the entire affair?"

"Perhaps they've double-crossed him. The question is, how?"

Charnwood shook his head. "Something has caused a complete moral slump. He's thoroughly cowed and hard at it to get sympathy. Frankly, I am afraid there has been a bad mishap. I've done my best to bolster up Iris's courage, but the fact that Clare is still missing looks black. What was the clew you spoke of just now?"

"It's only a meager one. I drove round to the Rue St. Jacques and inquired where this half-witted son of Lepin's had been kept. It turned out to be a home run by nuns in Montrouge. Then I hunted the place up and interviewed the sister in charge."

"Could she tell you where he'd gone?" Charnwood asked quickly.

"No, but I found out something interesting. It seems that Pietro, who has been a very indifferent parent, had trouble persuading the boy to come away—had to cajole him with attractive promises. The chief bait held out was that the house they were going to live in boasted a tower, and was situated close to a pond with ducks on it. I propose we continue our search just as soon as we have got this police business over. I've telephoned your friend Maigret to expect us."

Shortly afterwards they were pouring the full history of the last few days into the inspector's irate ears.

Only the Slender and Graceful Should Wear Pajamas in Public

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One awaits with awe or, more truthfully, fear, what this summer's seaside is going to be like. From what's been seen already pajama draped, one wonders if the beach will be safe for a half drowned fisherman washed up during the night.

The corsetiers just will have to get busy and promote a ban on corsetless figures over a certain weight. Or, the girls will simply have to take a roof in their avoirdupois where it wobbles most. I'm for the latter, of course, because it can be done easily enough and because, being done, it's more likely to get a girl into line for the bathing beach beauty winning favors.

The vulgarity of form I refer to, of course, doesn't have to be confined to beach pajama costume. But, somehow, it does look worse in it, unless a long coolie coat is pressed into service. In order to appear well in a coatless pajama costume you've just got to look young and svelt of figure. Otherwise, it's best for beauty reputation's sake to confine the wearing to a safely locked boudoir.

Still, if you must be in the mode, do a bit of reducing where it is most needed in these costumes—around the hips, the abdomen and the buttocks. Here's an exercise that, if you'll do often enough morning and night, will melt you down considerably around these parts. Lie on the floor and bring your legs up and over your head, touching the floor with toetips just back of the head. Bring the legs back to position and let them remain on the floor while you bring your hands (now extended over the head) forward to touch the toes. It's sort of a back and forward barrel motion but it is guaranteed to roll the flabby fat off hips and the other parts mentioned.

You'll have to watch your back and correct a sway-backed tendency, too, for where there is a swayback you have that rear protuberance that we are talking about as most objectionable in the new type of beach and lounging robe, or flimsy chiffon.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL J. POTTER

FIRES FROM CAMPING.

Light snowfalls last winter and no preponderance of rains this spring might seem to have little bearing on forest fires in the opinion of campers this summer. Yet F. B. Trenk, extension forester for the University of Wisconsin, asks the coöperation of tourists in that and other states to prevent fires.

Last year a study was completed which showed that forest fires started by campers and tourists were responsible for 33 per cent of the blazes in 2,200 fires in which causes were determined. Only one other source of fires, that of land clearing, exceeded this percentage and that was by only one per cent.

Trout fishing and bass fishing is now in season in Wisconsin. The tourists have begun to enter the state and residents also have begun seasonal treks to their favorite parts of the state. The prevention of fires is said to be only successful through crusades, as laws that punish offenders serve mostly to point out the results of damage rather than the results of care in building and extinguishing campfires, according to Forester Trenk.

Fire started against a backlog to make easier the preparation of an outdoor meal is one important source of forest fires, he finds. The backlog smolders for hours and even for days, without a flame, yet capable of igniting other timber if a wind blows the sparks. He recommends water and plenty of it, the digging of a small trench around the dead embers, and—at the start—the building of the fire in comparatively open ground where no logs or dead roots can ignite.

Create Favorable Conditions for the Children's Sleep

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON EVANS

"Make Patience Your Handmaiden," one of a new series of booklets for parents, will be sent by Mrs. Evans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

While you must not expect a perfection of uniformity in a child's sleeping habits after babyhood, as was suggested in yesterday's article, still you must continuously safeguard your children's rest at all ages. This is done by observing a routine dictated by intelligence—a knowledge of what are relaxing activities—or by the exercise of that somewhat rare commodity called by the humble name of common sense.

If we know what some of the things are which interfere with a child's going to sleep readily, then we can discover what to avoid. Some of these precautions determine the quality of the night's rest also—whether it is restless, restful, or broken. Here are some points.

When children are distinctly overtired they are apt to have trouble getting to sleep. Often they do not sleep well and waken early when overfatigued.

Lack of vigorous exercise and fresh air often interfere with sleep.

Hunger also interferes with children's sleep. The investigations made at Colgate university showed this to be true of adults, too.

Excitement is not conducive to sleep. You may think "How stupid to say that—who doesn't know it?" Yet many things may excite a child which their parents might not think of as exciting. Certain radio entertainments, emotional disturbances as the result of scoldings or severe discipline, and intense mental activity such as with older children, too great application to home work prevent the relaxation which induces sleep.

Often physical activity just before bedtime makes a child fall asleep more easily. Many advisors on child training disapprove of bedtime frolics. My opinion is that if they're not carried too far and the children don't get wild, the fun and laughter leave the children relaxed—especially if fathers or mothers participate in the games or romping and know when to call a halt.

When a child is worried over school or some misdemeanor he often has trouble sleeping, or getting to sleep. Fear, as for instance of the dark, or fear caused by some story or moving picture, will often hold sleep at bay.

Here, then, are several factors to take into account in building up good sleeping habits or in correcting poor ones.

Beach Suit in Varied Roles for Week-Ends

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Beach sports have been affected by the much talked of modern restlessness, if we're to judge by the costumes prepared for them by Paris couturiers.

Feminine beach sports don't hang their clothes on a hickory limb today, and while they may obey their mammas and "don't go near the water," there's no way of being sure that their morning stroll on the beach won't end up as a week-end in Greece on a yacht, or an African flight in a seaplane.

Bruyère may have had these wandering proclivities in the back of her mind when she created the beach suit sketched today, which has a dash of the sailor and a flavor of the aviator's mechanic about its makeup. The three-quarter trouser frock on the large figure is in one piece and buttons up the front like a mechanic's overalls. It's in fine white spongy wool and its buttons are navy blue. Its collar turns completely seagoing in the back.

It is worn with a navy blue wool collarless jacket that has three godet plaits set in the sleeves over the elbows to match the three godet plaits that give extra room to its patch pockets. This jacket's fastened on by a navy wool belt with a big bone buckle. A white wool flower is worn on the right side where the lapel would be if it had one.

Bruyère makes the beret of fine white paper straw.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Youthful Smoker's Expose.

When I was a lad about 15 years old I thought it smart to smoke if my family were not around.

One day I was nonchalantly [?] walking down the street smoking a cigaret and saw by father coming toward me. Immediately I put my cigaret in my pocket, holding on to it with my fingers. Of course, dad stopped to talk and the longer he talked the more nervous I became because my fingers were being burned. Finally it was so unbearable that my big secret had to be disclosed—and it surely was painful embarrassment for me. C. A. C.

Patient Lacks Clothing.

Having the proper wearing apparel will make this patient's stay in the sanitarium a more comfortable one. Perhaps you have discarded the articles which would be of so much use to him.

Crowds of 1931 See Prehistoric Family, Home

James O'Donnell Bennett's article in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, detailing the attractions and exhibits at the Field museum, was credited by museum officials yesterday with having boosted the Sunday attendance by 3,000, per... haps more. Among the throng Mayor Cermak was observed inspecting the exhibits described.

-o-

"There were 15,665 visitors received at the institution during the day," read a report made yesterday to the director. "Of that number the museum attendants were able to trace at least 3,000 directly to the influence of Mr. Bennett's article, while it seems probable that many others of the remaining 12,655 came as a result of the article, although it was not pos... sible to learn definitely about these.

"Mr. Bennett's story featured espe... cially the life size restoration of the Neanderthal family and their cave. During the peak of the attendance, from 2 until 4:30, guards kept a strict count of the number of persons view... ing the exhibit. In that time 2,245 men, women and children crowded up to inspect this particular case. During the rest of the museum's open hours a conservative estimate places the number at 1,000 more."

-o-

"There can be no question," said Stephen C. Simms, director, as to the civic benefit which will be derived from the series of interesting and illuminating articles by Mr. Bennett on the cultural agencies of Chicago, prominently placed on the front page of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Needless to say, this extension of cooperation by a great newspaper to aid in the edu... cational work of this institution is indeed gratifying to the trustees and administrative officers of the Field museum."

ices, ice creams, gelatine dishes, tim... ice, ice creams, gelatine dishes, tim... bales, etc., from their molds? It would help me a lot," writes one of our readers.

Ices are unmolded in the same man... ner as are ice creams. Before such desserts can be unmolded perfectly it is necessary that they be frozen solid. Remove the mold from the salt-ice mixture, wash it quickly with cold water to remove the salty brine, then wipe quickly but until perfectly dry. Take off the cover and the paper that covers the top of the dessert and in... vert the mold on a thoroughly chilled serving dish. Be sure to put the mold in the center of the dish, so that when the ice cream comes out it is just where you want it.

If the room is warm, the metal mold will quickly separate from the ice cream and may be lifted up in a few seconds. If the room is cold it will take longer to remove the mold. In this case a warm cloth wrung out of warm—not hot—water may be wrapped around the mold and left there for a few moments. Then try lifting the mold away from the des... sert. If it doesn't separate easily, re... peat the warm cloth treatment.

I have seen some cooks dip the mold into hot water before inverting it on to the serving plate, but this always melts the ice cream and the result is an unsightly appearance. As soon as the dessert is unmolded it should be served at once. The coldest icebox is not sufficiently cold to pre... vent ice cream from melting unless the quantity is small enough to be slipped into the freezing tray.

A gelatine dessert is unmolded like a frozen one, except that the mold may be immersed into a pan of warm water to the depth of the contents. Wipe mold dry and then draw a pointed knife around the edge to loosen the gelatine from the mold. Turn the mold from side to side mean... while to make sure that the jelly is separated from the sides of the mold. Invert on a chilled serving dish and cautiously lift the mold up from the jelly.

As with ice cream, a gelatine des... sert cannot be easily moved after it has once dropped from the mold. If the jelly is unmolded on a lace or paper doily it may be moved on the doily. If one finds it necessary to change the position of the dessert, it is best to replace the mold, then in... vert both the dessert and the plate and separate the jelly from the dish with a spatula. Proceed to unmold again as was done in the first place.

Timbales are unmolded in a similar way. Since they are egg mixtures much like custards, it is necessary to butter the timbale molds well. To unmold, run a pointed knife around the edge, turning the timbale from side to side to hasten the loosening. When the timbale seems to be sepa... rated from the sides of the mold, in... vert on a serving plate. The timbale should immediately separate from the bottom if the cooking has been thor... oughly done and the mold has been perfectly oiled.

Remarry One's Old Mate? Doris Leaves Answer to Individual

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It's considerable of a responsibility to be asked to decide whether a di... vorcée should remarry her former mate, or accept the marriage offer of another man. I like to dodge these marriage problems of the divorced. None but the individual directly in... volved can know the exact state of her feelings toward the man she di... vorced. The truth is, she often does not know them herself. That's prob... ably why she got the divorce.

I have known enough women who divorced recklessly, married again; several of them more than once again. Yet, looking back over the wreckage they have asked what ever made them so intolerant with Number One. They have had to go through pretty much the same course of adjustment to moods, habits and idiosyncrasies of the other sex with each new experi... ment.

And then is the actual matter of love for the one you set out on the first journey with. Some women, men, too, never recover from that first infatuation; never quite lose the memory of the first home-planning. They may feel perfectly justified in having taken the divorce step they did —but—

So, when one asks if she should re... marry her old mate or take on a new one, she might try to do a little "long-distance" thinking, as I call it. Look ahead ten, fifteen, twenty years! Won... der what the state of mind and heart may be when the twilight shadows of life begin to spread their kindlier phi... osophy. It may be too old fashioned philosophy in an era of quick and easy divorce getting, to be popular, but there is something fine and soul satisfying in knowing that you did the thing you thought was right to do rather than indulging in a temporary personal gratification.

Where there are children, and in this particular instance under dis... cussion, there are twin boys of 5, whom their father still adores, the mother's matrimonial whims are not so important in the scheme of life as that the boys are given their chance.

But as I say, the decision is not up to an outsider. However, one line in the letter sent me I might recall to my divorcée correspondent, because I got a cue from it and she may, too. It reads: "I haven't been able to get over my 'ex' completely."

Handkerchief menace removed by KLEENEX

Disposable tissues are used and destroyed—economical, no laundering

"AN ACTUAL boon to man... kind," many are saying about Kleenex, the new handkerchief tissue that is replacing the ordinary, unsanitary handkerchief.

Kleenex costs so little that it is used and de... stroyed. Thus countless germs are destroyed, too.

The old-time handker... chief carried these germs back to your face again and again! Causing self-infection during colds. It infected clothing, purses, laundry bags—because germs live in handkerchiefs for days.

Softer than handkerchiefs

Kleenex is not only safer. It is gentler, softer, more absorbent. Kleenex is wonderfully soothing during colds and hay fever. Chil... dren like it. Office workers find these disposable tissues convenient and clean.

Kleenex costs less than having handkerchiefs laundered—let alone the cost of buying them.

You'll find Kleenex at drug, dry goods and department stores, in packages at 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. It has many other uses: for re... moving cold cream; for manicuring; for the nur... sery; for polishing spec... tacles or crystal.

Bacteriological Tests Show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.

2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor ap... preciably inhibited from growing.

These reports are based on tests performed on handkerchiefs in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Feuer, Chicago bacteriologist.

The SECRET of HER SILENCE

"Tell me why you will not marry me," he begged. But she was silent. Unwilling to name his fault. Unable to overlook it.

Was ever a girl in a more heart-breaking position? To refuse his love—and not give the reason! To see him so distressed, so bewildered—and say nothing! Yet how could she accept him? How speak of so intimate, so personal a mat... ter as "B.O."—body odor? No, silence was best.

Something he never suspected. Something she could not explain. Yet who can say "Yes" to a man who is careless about "B.O."?

The unseen enemy

If we wait for someone to tell us when we're guilty of body odor, we may wait a long, long time. If we wait for our sense of smell to warn us, we may never know! For we quickly become used to an ever-present odor and don't realize it's there. Yet all the time, unsuspected by us, "B.O." may be working against us—spoiling our chances for popu... larity, success . . . love.

Why take chances when it's so easy to be safe? Make Lifebuoy your toilet soap—end "B.O." dangers. For Lifebuoy does far more than merely surface cleanse. Its creamy, abun... dant, gently antiseptic lather purifies pores, removes all odor. Leaves you glowing with freshness and new vigor—gloriously, satisfyingly CLEAN. Its pleasant hygienic scent, which vanishes as you rinse, tells you better than words how Lifebuoy safeguards.

Great for the complexion

Thousands of delighted men and women ac... claim Lifebuoy as the finest of all complexion soaps. See for yourself. Massage its pure, bland, penetrating lather well into the face at night. Then rinse away. These simple Lifebuoy "facials" will gently free clogged pores of beauty-robbing impurities—freshen dull, cloudy skins till they glow with healthy radiance.

Ton for ton . . . . mile for mile

Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks cost less to operate

CHEVROLET To place your hauling on a minimum-cost basis—and keep it there—put Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks to work. Leading American business firms everywhere are practicing this sound economy. They are finding, by actual experience, that Chevrolet trucks give a lower transportation cost than any other trucks of equal capacity on the market.

Take fuel consumption. By actual figures, Chevrolet has definitely disproved the old theory that a six uses more gasoline than a four. Because of modern, efficient engine design, Chevrolet sedan deliveries are frequently giving 20 miles to the gallon or better; and Chevrolet 1½-ton trucks are making records that are relatively just as high. The same thing applies to oil. Even on units that have gone tens of thousands of miles, and are used on high-speed, long-distance runs, oil consumption is exceptionally low.

Then there is the important matter of upkeep and repairs. On account of the ruggedness of Chevrolet bodies and chassis, service expense is held to the absolute minimum. "20,000 miles without opening the engine for service," "Always on the job," "It just goes and goes and goes," are typical remarks of Chevrolet six-cylinder truck operators. And from the standpoint of long life, many a Chevrolet speedometer reads 50,000 miles or more, yet the truck is still giving reliable service at low cost.

When you check over the many features of the Chevrolet truck chassis, the reason for this performance will be perfectly plain. Chevrolet's long, fully-supported frame is seven inches deep, fortified with five massive cross-members, and is made extra-strong where the load strain is greatest. Chevrolet's dual wheels are built of pressed steel, and equipped with six-ply truck-type tires. The extra-large 4-wheel brakes are of the two-shoe type. The heavy-duty clutch, with its 10-inch disc, never requires any lubrication or adjustment. And years of dependable service have been built into the rugged banjo-type rear axle, the sturdy front axle and the 4-speed transmission.

In the six-cylinder 50-horsepower engine are found the solid construction, the fine materials, and the advanced design that distinguish every other chassis feature. Chevrolet has engineered this motor to deliver high road speeds at low engine speeds—an important economy factor. The rigid cylinder block is made of high quality grey iron and is reinforced with strong ribbing. Finally, six cylinders minimize the wearing vibration that can raise such havoc with every part of a truck, and that can lead to so many bills for adjustment and repair.

As a result of this inbuilt economy and dependability—six-cylinder Chevrolets are becoming more and more the majority choice in every truck-using field. Great public utilities, large oil corporations, prominent packers—the recognized leaders of American industry—are using large fleets of Chevrolet six-cylinder units. In addition to many thousands of individuals and local concerns, over 400 of the nation's outstanding business firms have adopted Chevrolet equipment—because Chevrolet has proved itself the most economical truck in all their experience!

Be guided by the judgment and experience of large fleet operators—rely on Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks. A wide variety of Chevrolet-built bodies is now available to meet the special needs of many different kinds of hauling work. And bear in mind that delivered prices of Chevrolet trucks, complete and ready for work, are based on low chassis-cost and low body-cost, plus only reasonable charges for handling and financing.

1,000 GERMAN TURNERS ENTER CONGRESS DRILL

Men, Women Plan Special Feats.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

One thousand Germans from nine turnverein in the Illinois district will take part in the Chicagoland Sports Congress next Sunday at Soldiers' field.

HERMAN KLAPS.

The Germans, with the Poles, Czecho - Slovaks, Norwegians, Hungarians, Slovaks, Ukrainians, National Guardsmen and high school students will march in the grand parade at 1:45 which opens the Congress sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. Three bands and two drum corps will be in the line of march of the 5,000 participants.

Each of these organizations has a special number. All will unite in the finale of the three hour program in a mass drill when the participants will cover the floor of the stadium from the cinder track on the south horse show to the slope at the far north end of the field. It will be the largest number of gymnasts, men, women and children, ever assembled in Chicago.

Admission 25 Cents.

Thousands will watch the gigantic pageant of exercises. Admission will be 25 cents. No seats are reserved and all tickets will be sold from twenty booths on the west, south, and east sides of the stadium. Tickets will be on sale at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

The German Turners will present a twenty minute panorama of fencing, calisthenics, and games with 1,000 on the field at the same time.

Herman Klaps, leader of the Illinois district of the American Turnerbund, is in charge of this vast program. He will have representatives from each of the turnverein assisting him. This group includes:

Alfred Will, Hohe Turnverein.
Carl Hoffer, Sedalier Turnverein.
Alfred Dietz, Chicago Turngemeinde.
Alfred Theodore, Chicago Turn Gemeinde.
Arthur Reckow, Turnvaerin Turnverein.
Ralf G. Reiter, Lincoln Turnverein.
Edward Strobel, Lincoln Turnverein.
Alfred Friedrich, Lincoln Turnverein.
Robert Brockmann, Friesch Auf Turnverein.
Robert Hermes, Hohe Turnverein.
Carl Meckel, Central Turnverein.

Fifty dancers from the Illinois Turnbezirk and Western conference universities will lead the 1,000 Germans on the field for their special number. Under the direction of Henry Kraft, who for 21 years has held the Turner championship of the United States and many national titles, the fencers will demonstrate their ability with foil and broadsword.

Forty will perform on high spring boards and vaulting tables. A specially constructed vaulting table will be used by another group of 20 champions.

Emil Schertzinger, A. A. U. and A. A. F. all-around apparatus champion, and Ruth Jaques, who holds three world honors in the women's division of the A. A. U. and A. A. F., will lead a squad of 21 gymnasts. Lulu Strauch and Regina Horacke are members of this group.

Ladies to Dance.

One hundred and twenty will perform on eight side horses. Two pyramid actions will have 120 more contestants at work during the German demonstration. Thirty ladies from the Chicago Turngemeinde will present a dance number; shot putters, high jumpers and 50 tumblers from the Lincoln Turnverein, with two volley ball games at the ends of the field, complete the spectacle.

The Illinois district drum corps of 50 will lead the Germans on the field. Capt. Frank Houlebek is the leader. The drum corps has been organized for 35 years and is the oldest Turner drum corps in the United States.

Carnera Wins Over Redmond in One Round

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera, Italian ring giant, knocked out Pat Redmond, huge Irish boxer, in a single round of their scheduled ten round bout tonight in Ebbets field, Brooklyn, providing appropriate celebration for his return to New York boxing after an absence of more than a year.

Under a looping left hook which curled about his chin Redmond sank and was counted out by Referee Billy Kid McPartland 2 minutes and 24 seconds after the opening bell sent them on a journey which seemed destined from the start to be short. Redmond rolled over on his back to take the count. He remained in a reclining position until he was assisted to his corner, where he revived quickly.

Redmond Pacific.

Before the knockout Redmond bounded off the floor from an awkward, pushing right to the chin in the first half minute of the fight. He took an eight count, arising unhurt but with no manifestation of fighting ability, although the desire may have been latent.

A crowd of 25,000 witnessed the meeting of two of the biggest men ever matched. Carnera was reckless on the attack—such as it was—and Redmond pacific to an extreme.

Weighing 271¼ pounds and standing 6 feet 6½ inches, Carnera towered over the crouched Redmond, himself 6 feet 4 inches and scaling around 246 pounds. Redmond circled cautiously at the start and Carnera poked ponderously with his left. They clinched, and as they broke Carnera pushed his right against Redmond's jaw. Redmond went over backward in a near somersault and took a count of eight resting on his knees.

Attach Carnera's Purse.

Carnera's purse was attached just before the fight. The details of the attachment were not divulged by Promoter James J. Johnston, upon whom it was served.

Ernie Schaaf, Elizabeth, N. J., heavyweight, knocked out Jack Gagnon, Boston veteran, in 46 seconds of the first round. Harold Mays, Bayonne heavyweight, won a decision over Jack Renault, Canadian veteran. Ted Sandwina, Sioux City, Ia., heavyweight, won from Tom Kirby, Boston, Mass.

CARDS TRADE DOUTHIT TO REDS FOR ROETTGER

Cincinnati, O., June 15.—(AP)—Wally Roettger, outfielder, obtained last winter by the Cincinnati Reds from the New York Giants, today was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Taylor Douthit, also an outfielder. The deal was announced by Sidney Weil, Reds' president, who said the Cardinals also were given some cash but did not disclose the amount.

Leahy, Notre Dame Tackle, to Aid Georgetown Coach

BOARDING HOUSE BOYS ROW WITH HIGHHATS TODAY

College Regatta's Just a Test of Diet.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 15.—There are about 200 college athletes, most of them young and most of them of the long, rangy pattern, quartered in the boarding houses of Poughkeepsie this evening or in private crew camps of their own on the yonder shore of the Hudson river, waiting for the big boat race tomorrow afternoon which will decide the American college rowing championship. Possibly it decides the world championship, too. The American crews do not row against the English crews, but then, neither do the American major league baseball teams meet the champions of Chislehurst or Upper Tooting, England, and yet their show down games in the fall always are referred to as the world series.

The Columbia and Navy crews have their own camps, isolated places along the bank in the lee of the Palisades, where they remain holed up for two or three weeks before race day, very close to nature and eating only such calories, carbohydrates, vitamins and what not as their camp dietitians prepare for them. The other crews each take over a boarding house in the town and do the best they can on boarding house food.

Calory Counting No Help.

Up to the present time the calories and the dietary what nots have achieved no apparent advantage over the traditional liver and onions and corned beef and cabbage of the boarding houses. Cornell, a boarding house fed team, won the race last year, and Syracuse and Massachusetts Tech were second and third, respectively. The boarding house boys have the run of the town during their leisure hours and therefore are subject to the sinister temptations of the banana flip and the cherry nut royal surprise with whipped cream offered for sale in the ice cream soda dives.

Years ago it was customary to give the oarsmen English ale with their meals, but the banana flip and the cherry nut royal surprise have always been regarded as deadly dissipations for athletes in training. It is one reason why some of the crews have training quarters.

Bald Pete Loses Title.

The majority of the athletes are from 17 to 22 years old, but this season bald Pete McManus, the Poughkeepsie farmer, who rows for Cornell, appears to have lost his title of the oldest man to a Russian aristocrat rowing in the Washington freshman shell. Pete McManus is rowing his last race at the age of 31, but Vsevolod Postnikoff of the Washington frosh is supposed to be 32 right now, with three years remaining in which to represent his alma mater.

Mr. Postnikoff is said to have been a cadet in a Russian naval academy, preparing to be an officer, when the revolution broke out. Most of his class were killed in the fighting and Cadet Postnikoff is said to have escaped with a few other survivors by stealing a warship, which would have been only petty larceny. The details of this personal history may not be exactly correct, but at any rate his name is Vsevolod Postnikoff.

Time Secret, but What of It?

The coaches of the crews always make a profound mystery of the time their athletes make in their trials on the water, which probably is just as well because the figures would only confuse the situation, anyway. Up to now, on past performances, the Cornell crew is supposed to be the best and Navy second best, but it seems unnecessary to try to make predictions because the answer will be available in 24 hours.

The nine crews in the varsity race will represent Cornell, Navy, Syracuse, Penn, Columbia, Massachusetts Tech, Washington, California and Wisconsin. Up to now, Wisconsin is regarded as the dark horse, but only because the boys haven't yet had a race. Washington has beaten California and also a crew from Marietta college in a practice race rowed on the Ohio river a few days ago. Washington probably wasn't trying very

Press Agents for Title Fight Punch Typewriters in Vain

BY ARCH WARD.

Everything seems to be wrong these days. Take the prize fight business. Here it is only a little more than two weeks before the heavyweight championship match in Cleveland and it requires studious search to find any mention of the bout in the papers.

MAX SCHMELING.

A few years back the daily activities of title rivals commanded a column of type a day six weeks in advance of their battle. It seems that sports editors have decided their readers can go about their work these days whether or not they are informed that Max Schmeling boxed with three sparring partners or spent the day skipping rope.

The press agents and photographers, however, are displaying no lack of interest and zeal. They are doing their stuff with the same stencilled, fixed and unvarying procedure. For instance, read the following excerpt from a dispatch from Schmeling's camp:

"Schmeling today boxed six rounds in steaming hot weather without showing the slightest signs of fatigue. After two rounds with Pallat he boxed two more with George Panka, a sturdy and willing partner from Pittsburgh, and two with Tiny De Bolt of Cleveland. Max went through four rounds with that pair and landed damaging blows to chin and body, but George and Tiny weathered the storm in much better shape than did Pallat. Following the boxing the champion had two strenuous rounds of calisthenics, deep breathing and shadow boxing."

Much the same routine as champions have been following for the last 30 years.

This recalls a story Jack Dempsey tells about a certain photographer who covered his camp at Great Falls before the bout with Tommy Gibbons at Shelby. The Knight of the Lens thoughtlessly packed up and left camp without getting a single picture of Dempsey shaking hands with a former champion. Camp was broken up before he had a chance to return. Nothing has ever been heard of the camera man since that day. A straw hat and a tripod, believed to have been the property of the missing photographer, were found a week later on the mountain slopes nearby. It was the opinion of his associates that he felt the shame of his disgrace so keenly that he surrendered to the wolves, barracuda or whatever kind of wild life they have in that vicinity.

ANOTHER LEADER PASSES.

Intercollegiate football, still groggy from the shock of Knute Rockne's death, suffered another loss of consequence Sunday with the passing of Dr. Henry L. Williams, whose Minnesota teams once were the terror of the gridiron.

Even in sport, where fame is extravagantly bestowed, the achievements of Dr. Williams will endure. He took football in its infancy and helped to convert it into a highly dramatic spectacle. He took the shift and made it shiftier. He was in football when mass plays were eliminated and pass plays innovated.

Few men are able to change the nature of things in any sphere. Not many succeed in substituting new systems for old, in blazing pioneer paths through established routine.

Dr. Williams belonged to that small group.

SPECTACLE WORTH SEEING.

The Chicagoland Sports congress, to be presented at Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon, is a pageant worth three hours of any one's time. Never before have 5,000 persons, ranging from six years to 60, taken part in a sporting event in Chicago. The territory might include America.

The purpose of the congress is to encourage mass athletics. For years the Turners, Falcons, and Sokols have been carrying on their work with little or no recognition from the public. Sunday more than 100,000 have the opportunity to pass judgment on their efforts.

Instructors have been working for months preparing their pupils for the Sports Congress.

Unless we miss our guess, the event will be something to talk about.

Joey Bibb Serves Notice He'll Be Running in American Derby

BY FRENCH LANE.

If the western candidates for the American Derby watched the Joe Cook purse run at Washington Park yesterday they probably didn't enjoy their dinner last night. Some of them might have slept rather restlessly. Even the dashing Mate might have dreamed he heard a great race crowd shouting, "Here comes Joey Bibb."

Joey Bibb isn't a boogy man peering out of the dark at these fashionable, well trained young Derby candidates. Joey is just a candidate himself and from the way he lost his field in the stretch yesterday at the end of a mile gallop I'm sure he's going to have something to say about where the $50,000 Derby prize will go next Saturday afternoon.

Joey beat only a couple of other Derby candidates in the mile gallop, but when he started charging down the stretch he lost such fleet horses as Thistle Fyrn, Overlay, Martha Jones, Rocket Glare and Who Win.

A woman on the clubhouse lawn with a book of tickets on Martha Jones clasped in her hand was thrilled when she watched Martha wheel for home two lengths in front. She turned to her escort a few seconds later and asked, "My Gawd! When did Twenty Grand get in this race?"

That's the way Joey Bibb ran. He was last going down the back stretch and didn't begin to move up until the field hit the first turn. Overlay, Illium and Thistle Fyrn were fighting for the lead. Then Joey started to run and it was all over. Overlay saved second money and Illium was third. Joey paid 5 to 1 in the betting.

Before the race C. C. Van Meter of Lexington who owns Joey Bibb wasn't thinking much about the American Derby. Last night he was wondering where he's going to spend the $50,000 Derby prize.

Nine Derby candidates will go to bat in the trial at a mile and an eighth this afternoon. The field includes all the leading westerners, Ladder and Sunny Lassie from the east, and Boys Howdy owned by H. C. Hatch of Canada. Spanish Play, Sweep All, Pittsburgher, Knights Call, Oswego, Morpheus, are the westerners in the field.

It should be a stirring battle and the winner may be the one that will fight it out with Mate and Sun Meadow for the Derby prize.

These westerners are so evenly matched it is just possible they will come down the home stretch this afternoon noses apart. Their other fights this spring indicate as much. If this should happen the position of the westerners will remain just as mysterious as it has been all spring.

Mate looked mighty good when A. C. [Pete] Boswick led him off the cars at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. He has taken on some 40 or 50 pounds since the Kentucky Derby and seems to be a stronger and fresher horse than on the day he finished back of Twenty Grand and Sweep All at Churchill Downs.

Bostwick expects to saddle his own colt and could probably ride him as well as most any boy he puts up. He is the best steeplechase rider in the country and good judges say he is as good as any of our jockeys on the flat even though he has never left the amateur ranks.

Jockey Earl Pool was on the carpet for quite some time after he was beaten on the 1 to 2 shot Adobe Post in the Dave Chasen purse. Adobe Post finished far back and out of the money, Byronia, a 25 to 1 shot from Mrs. Payne Whitney's stable, winning. Balyhoo, another long shot, was second.

SOX GO OUT FOR AN 'ERRING'; LOSE TO BOSTON, 3-2

Fumble Way to Defeat in Eleventh Inning.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 15.—The White Sox today devised a new way in which to achieve defeat. Usually they accomplish it through a scarcity of hits. But they did enough hitting today to get the decision on two different occasions. Toward the finish, however, they began to kick the ball around and the upshot was a 3 to 2, eleven inning triumph for their Boston hosts. Thus their own misdeeds kept the Chicagoans from moving into fifth place.

Not a little of the blame can be charged to Vic Frasier, the silent Texan. So far as pitching was concerned, the big right hander proved a past master, giving up only three hits for one run in eight innings. But after his mates had given him a one run advantage by nicking a twenty year old 227 pound Columbus, O., high school boy, Bob Kline, for two hits in the ninth, Frasier blew up in his fielding and let Boston tie the score, 2 to 2. Then some other Chicagoans blew up in the eleventh.

First Jeffries, Then Cissell.

Fraiser started tearing down his house of cards in the eleventh when he walked Pickering after one out. Eichrodt, who had been placed in the outfield for his defensive skill, immediately dashed to the fence to catch Rothrock's long fly. Then came the bad news. Jeffries fumbled Van Camp's grounder, which took a strange hop.

Miller filled the bases with a scratch hit back of third. The Sox claimed it was foul, but the umpires played deaf. Next, Sweeney smashed a bounder to short. Cissell fumbled momentarily, and when he threw to first, it was too late. Pickering scored and the game was lost.

The hitting by which the White Sox promoted their first run came in the third. Tate hit a single to left and went to second on Frasier's infield out. Blue lined a single over short and Tate raced home.

The second hit off Frasier, which paved the way to a 1 to 1 tie in the eighth, was a short fly to right by Miller. Fothergill was just about a foot shy of getting to it and it dropped for a double. Sweeney beat out a bunt to Blue. Miller went to third on the play and scored on Rhyne's fly to Fothergill.

Specialist Fixes Lyons.

After two were out in the Sox ninth, Fonseca doubled against the sign board in left field. Watwood walked and Kerr singled into right center, scoring Fonseca.

The combinations of bad fielding which let Boston tie the score again in the home ninth, opened with Winsett, who batted for Warstler, drawing a pass. Russell then ran for him. Rothrock bunted to Frasier, Vic wheeled and let fly a wild pitch toward second. Russell got to third on the play. Miller then bounded to Frasier and there should have been a double play, but his peg to second was so wide Cissell was lucky to get Rothrock. Meanwhile Russell scored.

Manager Bush received a wire today from Ted Lyons at Rochester, N. Y., where he is taking treatment for his ailing arm. The specialist, Dr. Harry Knight, found a deltoid fold in the right shoulder muscle, Ted said. Lyons will be able to pitch again after a short rest, the doctor believes.

The series finale will be played tomorrow, with Hal McKain opposing Milt Gaston.

Hornsby Has No Sympathy for Hornsby

Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Chicago Cubs, ever an alert man in managerial matters and baseball problems in general, took the wind out of the sails of those raucous mariners who have been tooting their foghorns at him because at one time or another this season he has benched Riggs Stephenson, Charley Grimm, Hack Wilson and Gabby Hartnett.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

Yesterday these four stalwarts all were back in the game. But Rogers, on his own orders, was reposing on the bench—Hornsby set down by Hornsby because Hornsby hasn't been hitting. Truly one for the books when you consider that the latest athlete to be benched by Hornsby has led the National league seven seasons in hitting and holds the all time high batting average for a full season.

The story would be more dramatic if his understudy had stepped in for a great day. But the strain was too much for Clarence Blair. He didn't get a hit and he let in two runs with an error on the silliest little grounder imaginable.

Hornsby won't stay on the bench long, one reason being that he hasn't a sub who can supply the punch he himself recently has been unable to furnish the team. But in benching himself, Rogers established himself as a consistent worker for the team's interest and placed himself in a position to avoid criticism when he feels called upon to bench any other athlete who isn't doing his bit.

"I haven't been helping the team and any one who isn't helping the team can't stay in the lineup," Rogers said in announcing his benching before yesterday's game. "I was willing to stay in and wait till I started to hit again so long as the team was winning without any hitting from me, but when we lost Sunday, and I failed twice with two men on base in each instance, I decided to take a rest."

The reason for Rogers' impotency with the bat is as mysterious to him as it is to his admirers. He feels fine, thinks he sees the pitching, but the ball just hasn't been falling out of the fielders' reach.

Before he banished himself the Cub manager had played in seven full games with a record of only one hit, a rather scratchy single over second in Saturday's game against the Phillies. In 13 games against eastern clubs he made only five hits, for the exceedingly skimpy average of .106.

In the official averages in finding the game of June 4, Hornsby was seventh in the league with an average of .345. A week later he had dropped to twenty-fifth, with an average of .314. After the official averages were announced last Thursday night, he continued to tumble and when he flopped Sunday he dropped below the .300 mark—to .298.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those romping Boston Braves yesterday had no sympathy for Robert Smith's ambition to win his sixth straight and his seventh of the season. They lacerated Robert's hide and his feelings in the fourth and fifth inning for six runs, or two-thirds of the total by which they made it two straight over the Cubs. Score: Boston, 9; Chicago, 3.

The game, though disheartening to the 10,000 customers, had several interesting features besides the long distance socking that marked the activity of the afternoon. For one thing it saw Rogers Hornsby establish himself as a consistent gent by benching himself for failure to hit baseballs, and it produced the further unusual spectacle of the home crowd giving a heavy raze to Umpire Clark for an unbelievably sour pro-Cub decision at first base, Freddy Maguire being the victim in the eighth.

Cuyler, Berger Hit Homers.

There were two home runs in the game, one by Kiki Cuyler with one on in the fifth, Ki's No. 4, and the other by Wally Berger with one on, also in the fifth, Wally's No. 7. Ki also got two doubles and Berger got a double, too.

The Cubs will close their stand against eastern clubs with the Braves final this afternoon and will beat it for Brooklyn immediately thereafter. Bush is slated to go against Seibold.

The trimming yesterday gave the Cubs a record of eight wins to six defeats against the eastern visitors. The reversal plunged them 4½ games back of the leading Cardinals and a game and a half back of the Giants.

The outcome increased the evidence that the second division clubs have proved an especial boon to the Cubs thus far this season. Yesterday's contest was the fiftieth of the year. The Cubs have won 29 and lost 21. Against first division clubs they have won 4 out of 15, as contrasted with 25 out of 35 against the second flight clubs.

How It All Happened.

Here is the detail of the Braves' brutal conduct towards Smith, for eight years their buddy, in the fourth and fifth innings.

To start the fourth Maranville wheedled Smith out of his first base on balls and moved to second on Berger's out. Worthington walked. Then Neun cracked a triple to right center, Maranville and Worthington scoring, of course. Randy Moore followed with a double to right, scoring Neun. English threw out Cronin, Moore taking third, after which Maguire doubled to left, scoring Moore.

Smith was hungry for more punishment, however, and got it in the fifth. Dreesen opened with a single and went to second on Maranville's out, whence he walked home ahead of Berger on the latter's homer. At this point it was decided Smith wasn't effective and he was relieved by Blake, who got the side out.

Cuyler Gives Cubs Two.

In their half of the fifth the Cubs got two runs on Cuyler's homer, Ki's third successive extra base hit. Blake singled with two down and came in ahead of Ki when the latter knocked the ball over the left field wall.

The Cubs made their third run in the sixth. Wilson doubled and Hartnett walked. Then Hack scored on Jurges' single.

Boston's two runs in the seventh were the gift of Blair as a part of a rather drab understudy rôle at second base. Blake walked Dreesen and Maranville sacrificed. Berger grounded to Blake, who made a futile effort to trap Dreesen off second. Worthington fanned for the second out. Then Neun sent an easy little bounder straight at Blair, but Clarence let it pop between his heels, Dreesen scoring and Berger pulling up at second. Moore singled to right, scoring Berger.

Berger scored his third and the Braves' ninth run in the ninth when he doubled off Teachout with one out, went to third on Worthington's out and scored on Neun's single.

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney scored a double as the Aqeduct summer meeting got underway today, his Halcyon finishing first in the Queens County handicap, while Beacon Hill led from start to finish of the Colonial steeplechase.

Halcyon earned $7,500 when he withstood a long drive to win by a head from the Greentree stable's St. Brideaux. St. Brideaux was running over everything in the last hundred yards, and one that he overtook was Joseph E. Widener's Mr. Sponge, which was beaten a length for second. Mr. Sponge and Curate ran coupled as the Widener entry and were favored at 3 to 5.

Surf Boat far Back.

From the top of the stretch to the sixteenth pole there was a head and head battle between Halcyon and Mr. Sponge and it seemed that the favorite would get the place until St. Brideaux put on his great closing rush. The Greentree stable had another colt bearer in Surf Board, but he finished back of Caruso, while Curate, Sandy Ford, and Black Forest followed across the line in the order named.

Halcyon's time was 1:38 3-5 for the mile. He was 6 to 1 in the betting.

Beacon Hill's race was his third over the jumps and was so good that it caused Frank J. Bryan, secretary of the Hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt association, to say that the gelding looks like one of the best additions to the steeplechasers in several years.

Banner Ran Second.

Beacon Hill is a former winner of the Travers, and was so much the best that he won by fifteen lengths. The price against him was 1 to 2. Second went to E. R. Bradley's Banner Day, which beat H. S. Jobes' Crenalan by twenty lengths.

OLD TIMERS TO SEE GAMES AT MILLS STADIUM

Members of the Old Timers' Baseball association, will be the guests of William G. Harley at Mills stadium, Lake and Kilpatrick, when the Mills and Firemen play a double header next Sunday afternoon. The Mills team has lost only three of 22 games this season.

According to Frank T. Scanlan, president of the Old Timers, men who played ball on Chicago's diamonds long before the glove, mask, and other present day equipment were used, will attend.

hard at Marietta, because the coach of Marietta is an old Washington alumnus who is trying to develop a first class crew there and naturally the Washington crew wished to see an old Washington fellow do pretty well, though not too well.

A Lot of People to Be There.

The seats on the observation train which sell for $5 apiece are reported to be nearly all gone, but that is a vague way of measuring the probable attendance, because it is always easy to hitch on a few more flat cars. However, the Poughkeepsie crowd never can be estimated by any more accurate term than a lot of people or a great big crowd of people, as thousands of them watch the rowing from the Palisades or the river bank and thousands more sit in wicker furniture under the awnings on the decks of yachts sipping refreshments. It is impossible to canvass the yachts for the attendance figures and, anyway, taking a large view of the situation, will posterity really care if the figures are a few thousand more or less than accurate.

The rowing will consist of three races, the freshman event at 2 miles, the junior varsity at three and the varsity event at four miles and the program will run on most of tomorrow afternoon, what with the long intermissions between races and the difficulty of getting the boats up to the line and getting them away. The varsity race is expected to start about 6 o'clock Chicago daylight saving time.

Not So Lively as 1895.

The evening is very quiet in Poughkeepsie and if these were the old days that the athletic G. A. R.'s love to tell about, the quiet might be regarded as portentous of some disquiet to follow on Tuesday evening. But there is very little real rousing disquiet either before or after the boat races nowadays and even if there were it probably would be no more than a faint whispering echo of the historic disquiet of 1895.

In 1895 Columbia won the race the first time it was rowed in these waters and that evening in the bar of the Nelson house some of the Columbia undergrads or old grads, or both, celebrated by shooting off sky rockets horizontally. Probably they were old grads who did this as undergraduates, even as far back as 1895, were not as hilarious over athletic victories as old grads. At any rate, the sky rockets fizzed and boomed along the bar and ricocheted off the walls and between the legs of the patrons and the fire department was requested to come and extinguish not only the fireworks but the enthusiasm of the Columbia party.

So always after that until prohibition came, when the Nelson house closed its bar forever in favor of the bars of the new speakeasies, the Nelson house bar always was closed on boat race night.

Another Quaint Amusement.

Old accounts of the celebration also relate that one young scion of a wealthy and aristocratic eastern house proceeded down one of Poughkeepsie's main streets in a quiet and methodical way, dropping into the stores, one by one and saying to the proprietors, "My name is so and so and I wish to hurl a brick through your show window to celebrate Columbia's glorious triumph on the water today. My father will pay for damage."

The young man would then step back to the curb, take a regular varsity windup with his brick and sail it through the window whereupon he would reënter the store, recover his brick and proceed to the next show window.

There is practically no life left in the boat race celebrations now. For all the talk and alarm about disrespect for the law, there is the greatest respect for the blue uniforms of the police officers and for the public peace. If the young man who politely threw the brick through the windows could come back and repeat his celebration tonight he would be sure to be accused of rowdyism and possibly arrested.

But the young man will not be back, as the old folk tales of the 1895 celebration have it that he died with the Rough Riders in Cuba.

TURF CHATTER.

WHEN some of us, after the Kentucky Derby, ventured the opinion that Twenty Grand was a right smart race hoss and probable 3-year champion, we met scoffers who said "Wait until he meets Jamestown." Well, he met the 2-year-old champion in the Belmont stakes Saturday and ran the latter off his feet so that the Widener colt was not even second. With ten lengths' margin, Twenty Grand's supremacy over the distance can hardly be disputed.

Whatever may have been its intermediate history, it is taking good colts these years to annex the Blue Grass classic. For three of the last four years the Louisville winner has ended as 3-year-old champion. That list includes Reigh Count in 1928, Gallant Fox last year and now Twenty Grand. In 1929 Clyde Van Dusen beat Blue Larkspur on a track not to the latter's liking.

Whatever disappointment may be felt at Twenty Grand's absence from the American Derby next Saturday will be assuaged by the fact that his withdrawal leaves an open race. Twenty Grand would have been regarded as almost a certainty if he came west. The Greentree stable colt is expected to start in the Arlington Park Classic July 18, however, so Chicagoans will have an opportunity to see him in action. Probably Jamestown will take another shot at his conquerer in this event, which is a quarter mile shorter than the Belmont stakes.

Announcement comes from California that Agua Caliente will race 100 days instead of 70 next winter, beginning on Thanksgiving day. The purpose is to attract more stables from Maryland and the middle west which did not take kindly to the period of idleness involved in the former coast schedule.

Maizie Gets the Chair.

They told me to come down to court, as witness in a case.
They said "You won't have much to say, just keep a poker face."
I found the courtroom crowded, and the jurors bored and lazy—
Then some one looked at me and said, "Please take the chair, Miss Maizie!"

They made me take a mumbled oath—my feet felt cold and weak,
My voice, once praised by Mr. X., became a feeble squeak.
I tried to amble toward the judge with graceful, careless air,
But trembling kneecaps bumped the gate that led me to the chair.
My poise, of which I'd been so proud, dissolved into a pulp.
They said, "Your name?—speak louder, please." But all I did was gulp!

And when at last I bravely tried my senses to collect,
And really started in to talk, their lawyer cried, "Object!"
"Sustained," the judge's voice rang out—I could but sit and stare,
So all they got was just a gulp when Maizie had the chair.

Meyer, Triplett and Ross Meet Again.

Lou Meyer, Ernie Triplett and Sam Ross, the first three men to score points in the 1931 A. A. A. dirt track championship competition, will compete Sunday at the Roby-Chicago speedway in a 100 mile event. The three beat Lou Schneider, the Indianapolis 500 mile champion, Sunday at Detroit in a 100 mile race.

Fans were not surprised to see Schneider defeated at Detroit, particularly by Lou Mayer. Meyer has a good record, with a first, a second, and two fourth places in the Indianapolis event in the last four year. Meyer was a favorite in the Roby race, which was postponed two weeks ago.

The addition of Sam Ross to the entry list is a serious threat to the contenders. Ross raced at Roby in the last A. A. A. race, which was won by George Souders, Indianapolis champion in 1927, who has since retired.

OWNERSHIP OF WILD GAME IS OLD PROBLEM

Attorney Rules State Is Regulator.

BY BOB BECKER.

If a farmer has quail, pheasants, rabbits and other game birds and animals on his property, who owns this wild game? This is the puzzling question which has been raised many times by the 7,000,000 hunters in the United States. And down through the ages comes the answer—everybody owns the wild game and at the same time nobody owns it.

This is the status of American game, as outlined in a complete history of the subject, compiled by the Du Pont de Nemours company of Delaware. This organization has gone back thousands of years to find the legal status of wild game and has traced it from the antiquity of the Roman, through the crowns of Europe and the inherited common law of the American colonies, to the present stewardship of the individual states.

In Massachusetts Report.

The opinions in the book and the material used came from a report made to the Massachusetts Fish and Game association by its attorney, the dean of an eastern law school.

This is wild game is held by the public but vested in the state, which has regulatory rights over it. According to the mass of legal evidence in the book, including court decisions from dozens of states, no individual owns wild game. One can raise wild game and "own" it while it is held captive, but as soon as it is freed loses its legal status is declared "wild game" and it becomes the property of the public, legal decisions show.

One of the interesting sidelights on the question as brought out in the book [which is not for sale because the Du Pont company is giving it away to sportsmen] shows that in England the ownership of game was first vested in the king as an individual.

King Loses Rights.

Later it was wrested from him and placed in the crown as a sovereignty "to hold such property [wild game] as the representative of and in sacred trust for the people." This status was enacted from King John by the barons at Runnymede, in the Magna Carta in 1215.

Although the public owns the game, it doesn't mean that the people can run wild in pursuit of wild game. The state, which has the power to regulate the taking of birds and animals, has stepped in with protection for the property owner by setting up no trespass laws, which keep people off his land.

SENATORS BEAT BROWNS, 4 TO 3, FOR 10 IN ROW

Washington, D. C., June 15.—(AP)—Magnificent relief pitching by Fred Marberry enabled Washington to beat St. Louis, 4 to 3, today for its tenth successive victory. Marberry relieved Brown in the seventh inning after the Browns had made three runs to tie the score. Two men were on base with only one out when Marberry went in and he not only retired the side without a run, but held St. Louis hitless for the remainder of the game.

Rainville Downs Madden as Western Tennis Meet Opens

Marcel Rainville, diminutive member of the Canadian Davis cup team, scored an easy victory over James Madden of Chicago yesterday as the Western tennis tournament opened at the River Forest Tennis club.

Rainville, seeded No. 1 in the tourney, placed his slow, deliberate shots with precision, while Madden, youthful South Shore Country club star, was unable to cope with the Canadian's game. The scores were 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Scott Rexinger, Frank and George O'Connell, and Charles and Leo Lejeck, seeded players, won their matches with little difficulty.

Stagg Sees Son Win.

Alonzo Stagg, football coach at the University of Chicago, saw his son, Paul, defeat Paul Martin of Gary, in the closest battle of the day. The scores were 7-5, 5-7, 9-7.

Harris Coggeshall, defending western champion, did not arrive from Des Moines in time to participate yesterday. As a result he will be required to meet three opponents today in order to catch up with the remainder of the field.

George Jennings of Chicago and Herbert Bowman of New York will play today. Bowman won the metropolitan clay courts championship last week. Jennings is the national public parks' titlist.

Women Play Today.

Plans also call for the women's singles to get under way today, with Miss Catherine Wolf of Indianapolis leading the field. Clara Louise Zinke of Cincinnati is expected to furnish close competition. Last week Miss Zinke won the Tri-State tournament in Cincinnati. Summaries:

Amateur golfers of Chicago will have two opportunities to qualify for the tenth annual national public links championship tournament in St. Paul, Aug. 5 to 8, inclusive.

Contestants may have their choice of two 36 hole, medal play, qualifying rounds. One will be played at the Evergreen Golf club, on South Western avenue near the Beverly Country club, July 2, and the other at the Mid-City Golf club, Grace street and North Western avenue July 10. If players wish to do so, they may compete in both events and their best scores will govern their eligibility for the national.

Arrangements in Chicago are in charge of W. B. Langford, 2405 Grace street, a member of the public links sectional committee of the United States Golf association. There will be prizes for each qualifying round, donated by Chicago merchants, for the first, tenth, twentieth and thirtieth scores.

Mr. Langford will select six players from the twenty lowest in the qualifying round as a team to represent Chicago at St. Paul.

MULLEN OFFERS SEVEN BOUTS ON CARD THURSDAY

Jim Mullen, who is offering Earl Mastro and Midget Mike O'Dowd as the attraction of his second outdoor show of the season at Mills Stadium Thursday night, has gathered local boys who are ascending the pugilistic ladder for the six bouts which will support the feature bout.

The semi-windup, an eight rounder between Pep Justo and Joe Sharkey, brings together two punchers who will be battling for the so-called middleweight championship of Chicago. Justo will be seeking his sixteenth straight win. Sharkey recently defeated Haakon Hansen.

Les Finnucane, who scored a one round knockout on Mullen's show last Thursday, is down for a six rounder with Al Engle of Muskegon, Mich. The latter, managed by Lena Levy, mentor of King Levinsky, is a newcomer. Another six round affair pits Kid Irish against Le Roy Dugan, Memphis, Tenn.

A third six rounder finds Cuban Harold Brown of the west side trading wallops with Patsy Flanagan, also of the west side. Bud Taylor's latest find, Pat Murphy, will make his local debut in a four round bout against Oscar Leiberman, west side Hebrew. The opening four rounder is between Small Change, colored bantamweight, and Sammy Goldman of Grand Rapids.

SAWYER LOW IN MINNEAPOLIS GOLF WITH 73

Minneapolis, Minn., June 15.—(AP)—Dick Sawyer, Minneapolis Golf club, shot par golf to lead the more experienced and seasoned golfers in the first round of qualifying play today in the Trans-Mississippi tournament. Sawyer, in his early twenties, shot 73, two strokes under Johnny Goodman, Omaha, one of the favorites to win the title, and Ralph Harmon, Waterloo, Ia.

Sawyer, whose brother, Pat, holds the state amateur and other championships in Minnesota, was over par on only three holes. He picked up two strokes with an eagle 3 on the 13th when a chip found the cup.

The defending champion, Bob McCrary, Des Moines, was four strokes behind Sawyer with a 77.

MRS. BOLEY OF MILWAUKEE A. A. CLUB IS DEAD

Milwaukee, Wis., June 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Florence Killilea Boley, former president of the Milwaukee baseball club of the American association, died here today at the Milwaukee General hospital after a two weeks illness. Mrs. Boley, who was 29 years of age, died following a blood infection which was complicated by pneumonia and heart disease.

Mrs. Boley came into control of the Milwaukee baseball team in February 1929 after the death of her father, Henry F. Killilea. While not owning the entire club, she controlled its policy.

Heads Club For 2 Seasons.

She was made president of the Brewers immediately after her father's death and adopted a policy of directing the team personally. She made the spring training trips and the road trips. Throughout 1929 and 1930 she was the head of the Brewers organization.

Last year was disastrous financially. Milwaukee finished in seventh place and showed a $60,000 loss. However, the players and fellow directors had high regard for her ability and she might have continued as president had she not determined to quit baseball for marriage.

Wed Last November.

After the baseball season had closed last fall she announced her engagement to Dr. Michael J. Boley, a young Milwaukee physician. They were married Nov. 25, 1930.

Mrs. Boley resigned the presidency in January, 1931, at the annual meeting of directors. Louis Nahin, vice president, became president, but Mrs. Boley continued on the board of directors. The club passed to the control of Phil Ball of the St. Louis Browns.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday morning. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

"GET RID OF THE BLUES," AYRES SAYS IN REVIEW

Asserts Pessimism Is Overdone.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—The current attack of the "business blues" is unwarranted and replacement demand is becoming an effective factor in turning several important branches of industry up, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, said today in his weekly review.

"Business sentiment has made a triple bottom in this depression," he said. "Three times, so far, the spirit of pessimism has been allowed briefly to dominate the judgment of the business community, and on each occasion it has been promptly displaced by saner counsels and more wholesome thinking. The first wave of unreasoning gloom came in November of 1929, when the illusions of the new era were swept down in wreckage by the collapse of stock prices. A return of the defeatist spirit came last December, when the difficulties of banks and brokerage houses culminated. May marked the third plunge into melancholy.

Tells of Last Attack.

"Three times ought to be enough, even in a major depression. There was no very good reason for this latest attack of the business blues. It is true that the slow advance in business activity, that had been under way since last January, came to a halt, but that is not a sufficient excuse for discouragement, since the bottoms of all depressions are marked by periods of brief advances and recessions. No important failures occurred, and no new unsound spots in banking or industry were disclosed. Nevertheless security prices melted readily away.

"It was not until the opening days of June that the long awaited rally arrived and restored more nearly normal attitudes. Present prospects are clearly more hopeful than business sentiment was willing to admit a short time ago. The agricultural outlook is exceptionally good in nearly all parts of the country, the danger of a continuation of the drought has definitely disappeared.

"A good many corporations are so fully convinced that the security markets had over-discounted hard times that they are using some of their funds to purchase their own bonds. Some industries are increasing their output because demand has overrun supply, and shortages are developing."

FOREIGN TRADE OUTLOOK

Foreign trade of the United States has continued to decline precipitately so far in the current year. This recession in the first quarter, roughly approximated, and perhaps slightly exceeded, the decline experienced by the import, industrial foreign countries, says the Standard Statistics company of New York in a current survey of the situation which continues in part:

"As compared with the peak corresponding period [the first three months of 1929] total exports from this country declined 50 per cent in value. Measured by wholesale commodity prices, the equivalent decline in quantities appears to have been about 35 per cent. Rapid expansion in the manufactured goods division has been mainly responsible for the maintenance of a favorable trade balance, but this group lately has shown the most drastic decline. We estimate a total 1931 favorable trade balance of slightly above $400,000,000.

Industrial Exports Small.

"While industrial exports represent but a small proportion of the aggregate domestic volume, the amount varies widely according to product. An analysis of this group indicates that the greatest two year declines have occurred in those products the prices of which either have failed to share in the general downward trend or have met unusually intense competition. We see the necessity for further reduction in quotations of many of these items. Considered by main industrial divisions, we believe that the longer term export outlook is especially bright for electrical equipment and moderately promising for agricultural machinery.

"The tendency toward circumvention of the effects of the 'most favored nation' clauses of the post-war treaties portends the probable removal of a significant widely aided in the post-war export boom. Reduced purchasing power, coincident with current foreign depression and heavy financial additions to this country, makes the prospect of an immediate revival of our general export trade exceedingly remote. Payment to us in goods [imports], the principal means of satisfying the obligations to a creditor country, is impeded by our unduly high tariff system. With little prospect of early resumption of foreign lending [the only alternative for temporarily stimulating purchasing], we expect a low level of exports throughout the remainder of 1931."

Buyers' Information Bureau Moves Offices

Removal of the buyers' information bureau, formerly the Chicago Market association, from 311 W. Jackson boulevard, to larger quarters in suite 1721-23 Railroad building, 176 W. Adams street, is announced by the Chicago association of Commerce, of which the buyers' information bureau is a subsidiary organization. The change of name and location is part of an extension program outlined by the association of Commerce in its efforts to increase the service rendered out of town buyers in the local wholesale market by providing free information concerning where and at what prices all types of merchandise can be obtained.

Chrysler Puts 10 Millions Into New $500 Automobile

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—In contrast to the timidity of many industries during the current business lull, Walter P. Chrysler, head of the automobile corporation bearing his name, is plunging $10,000,000 into the low price car market which Chevrolet and Ford have been dominating. This much, and a little more, were learned today, but details of the merchandising effort were suppressed pending an official announcement which is due within a few weeks.

W. P. CHRYSLER.

"We're betting our money on a mechanical improvement that will be as revolutionary as was the self starter," said Mr. Chrysler, who came here from his New York headquarters a few days ago to complete arrangements for the production and distribution of the new model. "It's not gambling, because the innovation represents four years of developments, refinements and tests.

Fight Against Depression.

"The Chrysler corporation is able to take this bold step forward, while others are singing the depression blues, because there are associated with me some men who have met the economic problems of the last year with raised fists, fighting rather than moaning."

Speculation in well informed automobile circles here is to the effect that the new car will be a vastly changed Plymouth, in the $500 price class.

Plymouth's factories here have stepped up production from but a couple of thousand units in May to 11,000 for June, and the July schedule calls for 15,000 cars off the assembly line. Employment has jumped from 4,500 in May to 7,500 and it is expected that 2,000 more men will be added before the first of next month.

These employment figures include the factory force only and do not take into consideration the men who are being put to work producing material, the miners supplying ore and fuel, the spinners and tanners preparing upholstery, and so on. Furthermore, there are 10,000 dealers who will need additional man power if the new car lives up to expectation.

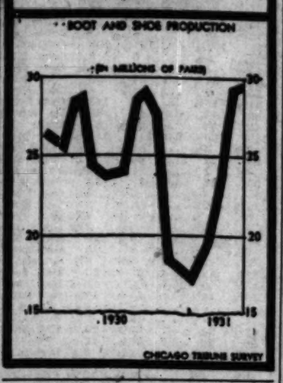
Keep Changes Secret.

Merely to supply these dealers with display and demonstration cars represents an investment of $7,500,000. To produce the new model, factory tools and machinery had to be changed, representing an investment of $2,000,000. The experimental work and the testing of the innovations cost another half million. This makes a total of $10,000,000 being ventured on the judgment of the Chrysler corporation that, notwithstanding the pessimism of many industries, there is a market for an improved product aggressively merchandised.

Regarding the improvements, there is much secrecy, but it is reliably reported that the Chrysler research engineers have perfected a device that absorbs the vibration that characterizes many four cylinder motors. The Plymouth has a four cylinder engine.

Also it is known that Chrysler looks favorably upon "free wheeling," although this transmission has not heretofore been used on a car in the $500 class.

BOOT AND SHOE PRODUCTION IN SLIGHT FURTHER INCREASE



U. S. NOW CONTROLS NEARLY A HALF OF WORLD'S GOLD SUPPLY

New York, June 15.—(AP)—The United States horde of monetary gold rose further to record levels today. The New York federal reserve bank reported the release of $41,680,000 in the yellow metal which had been held for foreign account, which means that this country's gold stock was increased by that much.

The latest federal reserve statement on total gold stocks in the United States showed $4,803,000,000, as of June 10. Late last week $23,434,000 worth of the yellow metal which had been "earmarked" for foreign account was released, and $3,069,000 was imported from Canada, in addition to other minor gold movements.

Therefore, more than $60,000,000 has been added to Uncle Sam's gold horde, bringing the total close to $4,900,000,000. This is close to half of the world's supply of monetary gold, which is estimated at around $10,000,000,000.

No official explanations of the large releases of metal earmarked for foreign account have been available, but foreign exchange traders believe a substantial portion of it reflected the use of metal held here by Germany to support the German bank, which has recently had a sharp decline. Foreign exchange circles also suggest that some of it may have represented use of Canadian gold to support Canadian exchange, since the Canadian dollar has recently been under pressure.

An important factor, also, was presumably the fact that nearly $112,000,000 was paid the United States today by foreign nations as their semi-annual installments on war debts.

Eastern Railroad Objects to U. S. Control of Trucks

BY SCRUTATOR.

That the railroads are not by any means unanimous in advocating regulation of motor truck transportation as a cure for railroad troubles has been manifest in the hearings on motor transport coördination which are being held by the interstate commerce commission.

The Delaware and Hudson, for example, takes a stand similar to that advocated in this column some months ago.

"Regulation," says the D. & H. "however far reaching or drastic, cannot bring back the railroad traffic that has been lost to automotive vehicles when that traffic can be more economically handled in motor transportation.

"The public would be better served if railroad managements could facilitate the elimination of unnecessary facilities and service which are a burden to the adequate maintenance of necessary facilities and service in the sphere of transportation that the railroads can best serve the public."

Favors More Freedom.

Instead of advocating regulation for motor traffic the D. & H. favors more freedom for the railroads. It suggests modification of existing laws and policies interfering with essentially managerial functions of the railroads.

The Pennsylvania likewise doubts the wisdom of attempting to extend regulation to motor transportation in order to help the railroads.

"It is believed," says this road's brief, "that a more liberal and generous attitude with regard to the efforts of railroads in revising or modifying rail service to meet the changed conditions of modern times would be in the public interest."

In 1910 there were 10,000 motor trucks registered in the United States. In 1920 there were 1,006,022. Last year the total was 3,480,939.

The effect of this growth on railroad tonnage has been apparent. The rails have lost short haul traffic especially. Many branch lines have become unprofitable. Some have barely any business left at all. Such branches lose money and these losses must be compensated for by revenues from the long haul traffic if earnings are to be maintained.

A Backwards Approach.

In attempts to adapt their operations to changed conditions the railroad managements are hampered by restrictions. To relieve the railroads by extending to other forms of transportation the hindrances from which they are suffering appears to be approaching the problem backwards.

Truck regulation also might be a boomerang for railroads. Only a small proportion of motor traffic is handled by common carriers. The lion's share is taken care of by private and contract vehicles not subject to regulation. And the railroads are rapidly becoming a more important factor in the common carrier division. The number of motor trucks operated by railroads has increased from 900 to 7,000 in the last six years.

Should regulation be extended to include motor transportation the railroads would succeed in having their own motor trucks regulated, while competitive private or contract trucks would be free to operate without like restrictions.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—The stock market got away to a sluggish start this week. Following a fairly promising opening in which prices advanced slightly, the list sagged rather steadily and closing quotations were moderately lower. Leading railroad and industrial shares were the worst sufferers, losses ranging from one to three points. Baking stocks offered a hopeful field for bullish interests, and at the close showed good gains.

Trading went on at a dull pace, transactions amounting only to about 1,300,000 shares. The public appeared to be little interested in the doings of the market, while professionals on both sides were loath to plunge.

Uncertain conditions in the United States, reflected in the closing of several important midwestern banks, combined with the drastic action of foreign nations to prevent an exodus of gold, were generally regarded as the principal unsettling factors in today's trading. In view of the lack of favorable developments, Wall street was disposed to regard the market's performance as showing commendable firmness.

Industrials Are Hit.

High grade industrials such as Westinghouse, American Can, United States Steel, American Tobacco B, Eastman Kodak and Bethlehem Steel were selected as the focal point for selling today. These issues dropped from one to three points, and with the rails presented the saddest side of the market picture.

Renewal of pressure against Westinghouse was accompanied by further ticker gossip to the effect that the board of directors, meeting next week for dividend action again, will see fit to slice disbursements to shareholders. The annual distribution now stands at $4, having been reduced from the previous rate of $5.

Word that an attempt was being made to advance steel prices, especially in the Chicago area, didn't seem to inject much "pep" into that group. Crucible Steel was down a point along with the others.

Bears on Trail.

Unloading of the southwestern rails started bears on the trail of that group, and before the final gong had

I. C. C. APPROVES OIL PRODUCTS RAIL RATE CUT

Washington, D. C., June 15.—(AP)—A 25 per cent cut in railroad rates on refined petroleum products from the midcontinent field was approved today by the interstate commerce commission to assist the roads in meeting pipe line and motor truck competition.

Some pipe lines recently began handling gasoline as well as crude oil and some reduced their rates.

The cut allowed the railroads was less than had been sought. The roads wanted permission to charge 65 per cent of the basic rate, but the commission held this would not be properly compensatory. The commission also denied an appeal of the roads for a free hand in making competitive rates.

The railroads have complained frequently that pipe line and truck competition in handling petroleum products was cutting heavily into their revenues.

The commission in today's decision fixed 42 cents a hundred as the maximum for hauling petroleum products within a radius of 550 miles of producing points, with a reduction of 1 cent for each 25 miles down to 400, 1 cent for each 20 miles from 400 to 160, and 1 cent reduction for each 10 miles under 160. The order allows the roads to make rates 75 per cent of the maximum from points within 550 miles of St. Louis and 340 miles of Kansas City.

GREAT WESTERN PAYS DIVIDEND; BUYS 500 CARS

At a meeting yesterday directors of Chicago Great Western Railroad company declared a dividend of 50 cents per share on its preferred stock, payable July 20 to stockholders of record June 25. In March directors declared a similar dividend and in January $1 was voted on preferred.

The road today placed an order with Pullman Car & Manufacturing corporation for 500 fifty ton steel box cars for early delivery. This involves an expenditure of upward of one million dollars.

Associated Gas, Electric Reports Gain in Output

For the month of May, 1931, Associated Gas and Electric system reports electric output of 251,339,067 k. w. h., which is an increase of 4.5% over May of last year. The output for the twelve months ended May 31 was 3% over the corresponding twelve months of the previous year. This output totaled 3,105,578,914 k. w. h., which is a record for a like period and compares with the previous high record of 3,036,205,790 k. w. h. established for the twelve months ended April 30, 1931. This increase was due in large part to the output of the Saluda dam of the Lexington Water Power company, which began operations last fall.

Ten Years Ago in Finance

The New York reserve bank reduces its rediscount rate to 6 per cent. This makes a total reduction of 1 per cent in the last six weeks.

Bears attack industrial and oil stocks. Mexican Petroleum forced down 13 points.

The Boston and Maine railroad announces that no action was taken on the dividend for its first preferred stock due July 1. Youngstown Sheet and Tube declared a 50 cent dividend compared with $1 paid on April 14 and $1.50 on Jan. 1, 1921. Wilson & Co., Chicago packers, take no action on the common stock dividend.

Henry Ford announces he has paid off before maturity the last of the notes in connection with the $100,000,000 transaction of buying out minority stockholders.

Cluett-Peabody & Co., have put a three day week into effect on account of "depression in the trade."

QUIET DAY IS REPORTED BY CHICAGO BANKS

Chicago banks, both in the loop and in the outlying neighborhoods, reported a fairly quiet day yesterday, with deposits and withdrawals being made in a manner more nearly normal than last week.

A particularly optimistic report came from one outlying institution which requested sixty days' notice in April of savings bank depositors. Of the depositors who gave the notice holders of 75 per cent of the total amount withdrew their notices and only 10 per cent of the rest appeared to withdraw their funds. Little more than 3 per cent of the total on which notices were given was actually removed.

Directors of the Southwest Trust and Savings bank, 35th street and Archer avenue, have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, payable July 1, and the directors of the West Side Atlas National bank have declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent, payable July 1.

More than 100 depositors of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, 1624 West 63d street, closed recently with eleven other banks belonging to the Bain interests, held a meeting last night in Prospect hall, West 64th street and South Ashland avenue. The meeting was sponsored by the West Englewood Business Men's association. The work of auditing and checking will take another month, the speakers said, after which some, and possibly all, of the chain may be reorganized.

Shuberts Default on $6,450,000 Debentures

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—The Shubert Theater corporation today defaulted on interest due on the $6,450,000 of 6 per cent debentures, due 1942. A plan for meeting the situation, the company stated, is now being prepared and is expected to be announced within a few days. The bonds sold today at 10, up 1⅝ from the previous close. They were sold at 96 in June, 1927, to a total of $7,500,000.

Michigan Central Road Asks Lease Extension

Washington, D. C., June 15.—(AP)—The Michigan Central, a unit of the New York Central railroad, asked the interstate commerce commission today for permission to extend until June 11, 1961, the lease by the former of the Detroit Manufacturers railroad. The lease expired June 11, but a new one was signed for thirty years. Permission of the city of Detroit to use certain streets expires simultaneously with the new lease.

Austrian, Hungarian Banks Raise Rediscount Rates

VIENNA, June 15.—(AP)—The Austrian National bank today raised its discount rate from 6 to 7½ per cent. The Hungarian National bank raised its rate from 5½ to 7 per cent.

S. SLOAN COLT AT 38 HEADS BANKERS' TRUST

New York, June 15.—(AP)—S. Sloan Colt was elected president of the Bankers Trust company today, an $800,000,000 institution, becoming the youngest head among the largest Wall street financial institutions. Mr. Colt is 38 years old, and a scion of a family long prominent in the high circles of finance. He is a grandson of the late Samuel Colt, one time president of the Lackawanna railroad.

He has a close competitor for the title of most youthful big banker, however, in Artemus L. Gates, president of the New York Trust company. Mr. Gates is actually two years Mr. Colt's junior, but his bank is only about half the size of the Bankers Trust.

Mr. Colt succeeds Henry J. Cochran who became president in April, 1929, and whose brother Thomas Cochran is a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co. Henry J. Cochran was elected vice chairman of the board of directors today. A. A. Tilney who had filled the latter office since April, 1929, was elected chairman of the board of directors succeeding Seward Prosser who assumed the newly created office of chairman of the managing committee.

Insull Bankers Surprised at Loan Report.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Events in the security markets yesterday were of a routine character and the dullness which settled over the trading late last week remained undisturbed. On the Chicago exchange individual issues responded to special developments, but in the main the price changes were insignificant, with last week's final quotations holding in most cases.

Professional traders did not attempt to attract followings for operations on either side of the market, with the result the total sales of 57,000 shares represented one of the lightest turnovers in many months.

Reports in investment circles that the Commonwealth Edison company is planning to float a $19,000,000 bond issue had little market influence. The reports which emanated in the east found no official confirmation here. At the offices of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Insull bankers, the report was received with surprise.

May Put Out Feeler.

It was pointed out that the Insull interests may wish to put out a feeler to determine the receptiveness of the investment market at this time to utility issues. It is thought probable if such was the case some present high coupon obligations would be retired.

The Insull stocks, with the exception of Public Service, were steady. Insull Utility sold ex-dividend and was off a fraction. Public Service on a 50 share transaction brought 205, which is 17 below the previous price. The issue has been inactive recently.

The filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in federal court yesterday against the Wextark Radio Stores, Inc., stimulated trading in the company's stock, which closed at ¼ a share, compared with its previous price of ⅝. The filing of the petition followed the appointment Saturday by the federal court of a receiver in equity for the company. The Chicago Title and Trust company was named the equity receiver.

Comments on Action.

Commenting on the appointment of a receiver, President Simon Wexler said that the action was taken because the company sustained a loss of approximately $1,000,000 in the last nine months. The heavy loss was attributed to the current business conditions and the expensive leases which the company has had to carry in several states.

"The company is solvent and with the full cooperation of creditors we look toward successful operation of receivership and ultimate reorganization of the business," he declared.

The bankruptcy proceedings were brought by the Jensen Radio Manufacturing company and other creditors with claims of $2,000.

Estimate 1930 Sugar and Syrup Crop at $114,587,000

Washington, D. C., June 15.—(AP)—The agricultural department has figured the total value of United States sugar and sirup crops last year at $114,587,000. It was $120,405,000 in 1929. The average for five years, 1924 to 1928, was $112,052,000. Sugar beet growers harvested 776,000 acres last year which produced 9,201,000 short tons with a farm value of $85,800,000. A total of 14,395,000 trees have been tapped for maple products from which 1,293 short tons of sugar were made with a farm value of $780,000 and 2,949,000 gallons of syrup valued at $9,179,000.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Improves Position.

Not only has the technical position of Electric Bond and Share been improved by the renewed offerings of bear professionals, but it is pointed out that the company has benefited to a large extent by the advances in the stocks which it holds in its treasury. While it has not yet assumed the aggressive leadership shown on many previous occasions, traders are of the opinion that the stock is going through a consolidation period which has temporarily hampered upward progress. Usually, Bond and Share points the way of the rest of the utility group. For this reason its daily swings are being carefully observed by the rank and file of spectators.

Change in Sentiment.

In some investment quarters decided change in sentiment has occurred. This is due largely to the market's action last week.

Brazilian Issue Active.

It is said that the market sponsors for Brazilian Traction have been more active in the stock during the last ten days.

Rubber Firm Gains.

The large appreciation in Sieberling Rubber from its low price of the year is based on the better prospects for the latter part of 1931.

STOCKS DECLINE IN NEW YORK AS MARKET DRIFTS

Baling Issues Exceptions —Show Good Gains.

wonded almost every important carrier had lost a point or more. Santa Fe dropped 2¼, Union Pacific 3, Pe dropped 2¼, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific 1¾, New York Central 1¾, Pennsylvania 1¼, and Baltimore and Ohio 1⅜.

Until the late reaction set in railroad shares were holding their ground well and seemed likely to close better than or unchanged from Saturday's final prices.

The rump in baking shares was uncompensated by specific news. There were several attempts to stage a bullish demonstration behind the advance of these stocks, but nothing permanence was effected. Indeed, professional traders on both sides showed a decided disposition to await development, although it is not clear at the moment what these may be.

One cheerful factor in today's news was the calm way in which nearly $2,000,000,000 government funds were slotted. The money market was extremely quiet despite this huge turnover.

The bond market provided another relief for those looking for signs of better times. German dollar bonds staged a sharp recovery, following announcement that the reichsbank and the Bank of Hungary had raised their rediscount rates from 5 to 7 per cent.

Close watchers of the ticker tape kept their eyes glued on the movements of Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck and Warner Brothers today. Rumors of a merger of the first two companies have been revived and at present have the full attention of those who like to speculate.

Warner Brothers is supposed to have something mysterious on tap. No inkling has come of what is to flow, but the common stock was firm today, closing at nine for a small fractional gain.

WHEAT FIRM AT START OF TRADE; CLOSE IS LOWER

Market Fails to React to Bearish Crop News.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat made a firm start yesterday and wound up with a tame finish. The early advance lifted prices to the highest level since last Thursday, but the technical position had been weakened, and toward the last increased selling pressure found support lacking. The close was at the low point, with net losses of ⅛@⅝c, with July leading. The latter was 57⅝@57⅝c; September, 57⅛@57⅝c, and December, 60⅝@61c, at the last.

Dry weather and unfavorable crop reports from parts of the Canadian northwest seem to have lost their influence on the wheat market for the time being, and more attention is being paid to the increasing movement of new wheat in the southwest. Kansas City received two cars of new grain from Oklahoma, which graded No. 1 and No. 2 hard, while Fort Worth, Tex., had 20 cars of new No. 2 hard. The price paid for the new grain at Kansas City was understood to have been 15c over July, or around 87c.

Weather Conditions Mixed.

Wet weather prevails in Kansas and dry weather in the northwest and the trade is inclined to pay considerable attention to developments as a wet harvest in the southwest is about all that would cause any serious deterioration in that section. Reports to Nat C. Murray from Texas showed the first yields of winter wheat were 16 to 16½ bu per acre, and in Oklahoma 14½ bu, the two states having ½ to 1 bu more than suggested from the government June 1 conditional figures. In Kentucky and Tennessee yields ranged from 15 to 16 bu, compared with the government conditional figure of 12 to 13 bu.

Crop observers who are in the Canadian northwest continue to send in reports showing that the wheat crop in the prairie provinces is very spotted. The Alberta provincial report said conditions had improved since the rain. The forecast was for generally fair.

Lack of Export Demand.

Lack of export demand is having some effect on the Winnipeg wheat market which reacted after being higher early, and closed ⅛@⅝c lower, with July, 61c. Liverpool finished ⅛ to ⅝d lower, with July, 62⅜c. June wheat here advanced 1½c early to 73c, but eased toward the last and finished ⅝c lower at 71c. July acted somewhat firmer than September early, but led the decline later.

The winter wheat crop in parts of Washington and Oregon has been practically destroyed by continued drought, according to a report to the United States weather bureau, and drought prevails in western North Dakota and in parts of Idaho and Montana.

Corn Market Unsettled.

The corn market was unsettled, with the July acting tight, while the December was under pressure due to favorable weather and crop comments. Final trades were ⅝c higher to ⅛c lower, with July, 56⅝ to 57c; September, 53¼ to 53⅛c, and December, 45⅝c, the latter being within ⅛c of the lowest figure of the season.

Country offerings of old corn to arrive were larger, and purchases of 56,000 bu were reported, the premium at 4⅞c of the July as compared with the September being a factor. No improvement was shown in the shipping demand. In the face of the latter the visible supply decreased 1,178,000 bu during the last week, making the total 9,512,000 bu, against 9,510,000 bu last year.

Oats have started to head in parts of Illinois and Iowa, according to reports received by the trade yesterday, while in the Gainesville (Tex.) area new grain is now available and is selling around 16c per bu. Futures were steady early, but eased with corn later and closed ⅛@⅜c lower, with July, 25⅝c; September, 26⅜c, and December, 29c.

Rye finished unchanged with July, 33⅛@⅜; September, 33⅝c, and December, 42⅝c. Trade was light and mainly of a local character, but there was no pressure of consequence on the market.

LARD STOCKS INCREASE

Lard stocks in Chicago increased 1,966,000 lbs. last week and were 46,519,000 lbs. compared with 54,109,000 lbs last year. Stocks of dry salted clear bellies are 10,037,000 lbs against 8,115,000 lbs a month ago and 10,077,000 lbs last year. Of short rib bellies there are 3,290,000 lbs, an increase of 329,000 lbs for the month, compared with 3,737,000 lbs last year.

Trading in lard was fair with shorts the best buyers and selling scattered early, but later becoming light, causing a strengthening influence. At the close last futures were 2c net higher and bellies 2@5c higher. Lard in Liverpool was 6@9d lower, the latter for September. Cash trade was fair in both lard and meats. Exports of lard for the week were 6,333,000 lbs and of bacon, 5,532,000 lbs. For the same time last year movement of lard was 11,824,000 lbs, and of bacon, 4,631,000 lbs. Hog prices were sharply lower at the close, with a larger run than a week ago, but a decrease from a year ago. Prices follow:

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

There was only a routine business in North American cash wheat at the seaboard and at Winnipeg, and no sales of consequence were reported. Foreign bids for barley were about ½c out of line, as compared with sellers' ideas, according to Winnipeg messages.

Chicago handlers sold 2,000 bu wheat, 34,000 bu corn and 56,000 bu oats to the domestic trade with 3,000 bu wheat, 56,000 bu corn and 4,000 bu oats booked to arrive.

Cash wheat prices here showed little change with No. 1 hard sold at 83c. Offerings were limited. At St. Louis cash wheat was ½@1½c lower, and Kansas City was 1@2½c lower. The only reported sale at Omaha was a car of low grade.

Demand for cash corn was fair with the basis here unchanged. No. 1 and No. 2 mixed was July price, and yellow, ½@¾c over the future with No. 1 white 1¾c over and No. 2 white 1¼@1½c over. No. 3 yellow was July price.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Monday: Wheat, 580 cars; corn, 115 cars; oats, 23 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 20 cars.

CROP REPORTS

Reports to Bartlett Frazier company from elevator and local grain men at various points in western Canada under approximate date of June 13 indicate light scattered showers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan but the crop is said to be making very poor progress and general rains are needed.

A report to James E. Bennett & Co., from Decatur, Ill., says all crops making good progress and wheat should be ready to cut last week of June. Local fields are all in good shape, so far as fields are concerned. Corn growing rapidly, with warm weather and plenty of moisture.

A report from Swift Current, Sask., says in large district centering around Maple Creek wheat is 6 inches high and all in shot blade and some in head. Last two days were very hot and irreparable damage every day the hot weather continues.

Conditions throughout Alberta improved by showers past few days, according to report from the dominion department of agriculture. Report indicates that almost all parts of province have received precipitation.

Another drought prevails this year in large part of northwest it was stated at United States weather bureau. Areas affected are southern half of the Dakotas, eastern and central north Montana and Idaho, Oregon and Washington east of the Cascades.

A wire from Lincoln, Neb., to Jackson Bros. says: "Wheat prospects from Lincoln to Sidney range from excellent to poor. The wheat district which is a failure this year is the part of state which is heaviest wheat producing section."

Harvest in Tunis, North Africa has been excellent and grain has been arriving at a rate of 140 carloads a day. A portion will be shipped to France to meet July requirements.

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Butter prices were steady at the opening on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, but liquidation developed later and the close was ⅛c lower. Heavier receipts of eggs and a somewhat bearish storage report had a depressing effect on futures with net losses of ¾@1c. Trade in potatoes was slightly more active, with the finish 1c higher. Sales—Butter, 62 cars; eggs, 68 cars; potatoes, 10 cars. Deliveries—Butter, 3 cars; eggs, 2 cars. Prices follow:

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 20,000; sheep, 10,000.

Last week's price gains in cattle and hogs attracted too many to market yesterday and part of the advance was erased. Offerings came from far and near. Producers from Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana sent in a big share of the supply. Many cattle came from the feed lots of Nebraska and South Dakota. Almost 5,000 lambs were from Idaho range territory. Total receipts of all kinds of live stock at $9,600, the largest since April 20, showed an increase of 21,300 head, or about 30 per cent, compared with the previous Monday.

Hog prices dropped unevenly 10@35c, packing grades showing the sharpest losses. The price range widened again, due to the bigger proportion of heavy packing sows in receipt receipts. The top and average prices were 60c apart at $7.05 and $6.45, showing the widest "spread" for Monday since May 4. These two prices were only 35c apart early last week.

Shippers and small packers bought freely on the break, but the available supply was more than equal to all requirements and 9,000 were still in the pens at the close, the low point of the day. Outsiders bought 11,000 head, the largest shipments since last March. Supplies have been running small for some time. The total at eleven markets for the first two weeks this month at 810,000 compares with 1,030,000 a year ago, with 1,121,000 two years ago, and with 1,204,000 three years ago. The seven year average of corresponding periods stands at 1,158,000.

Today's Hog Bid $7.00.

Light weight hogs for today's delivery were bid $7.00 on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but no offers to sell were made. Contracts for next September hogs carried bids of $7.15 and were offered at $7.50. July and August light were bid $6.50. Mediums for September were bid $7. Heavy grades were offered at $7.65 and bid $7.10 for September delivery.

Although losses were recorded in cattle prices also, the market held up surprisingly well considering the size of the supply. Medium grades of steers and stock lacking finish showed most weakness, many of the latter kinds selling at 25c loss late. Fancy yearlings averaging 908@1,050 lbs., at $8.75 were within 15c of the highest price paid for cattle since May 20.

Late last month top cattle sold down to $7.50. Prime steers averaging 1,317 lbs. sold at $8.35 yesterday. Cattle receipts have been light for several weeks and the dressed meat market has worked off a good deal of the surplus. Cows and heifers declined mostly 25c yesterday. Best calves were firm, while grassy kinds ruled weak and lower.

Lambs Decline 25c.

Fat lambs declined mostly 25c on yesterday's session, although a scattering of natives held steady at the opening. A string of 5,000 Idaho range lambs was sorted by packers at $9, with the cull end going at $6.50. Fancy natives to city butchers reached $9 and top to packers stopped at $8.75.

Matured sheep were slow and weaker again, only fancy light weight ewes bringing $2, while prime 150@210 lb. averages had to go at $1@1.25, new low records for that class. Yearlings sold at $6.50@7, averaging 92@100 lbs. Sheep receipts totaled 15,000. There have been only two smaller Monday totals since Feb. 9, but supplies are running much above normal for this time of the year. Fewer are coming direct to packers. Less than 50 per cent were direct yesterday, against more than 70 per cent a week ago.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 6,000 cattle, 20,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 7,753 cattle, 21,877 hogs, and 7,499 sheep the previous Tuesday, and 7,633 cattle, 32,357 hogs, and 6,854 sheep a year ago.
